It even seemed to be a little cruel to tell him the fish pond will no longer inspire the dreams of Charlevoix kindergartners when the new northside school opens in September of 1969 and the toddlers move into it.

Stroud's possible zoning conflict came to light during a discussion at Monday night's township board meeting concerning a citizen's complaint that his neighbor was pasturing horses in a residential area.

After a thorough check of the zoning code, Mrs. Howe Bergman, township treasurer, informed the board it is illegal to keep livestock on property zoned residential.

The board, which had been putting in a rough evening debating the pros and cons of merger with the city of Charlevoix, enjoyed the lighter moment.

Stroud's elephant is a near-life-size fiberglass replica. Stroud and county Republicans enter it in parades.

Mrs. Andrewina Mathews, township clerk, then asked Stroud, who is a township trustee, where his elephant is.

With a jerk of his thumb toward his motel on US-31 north, Stroud answered, "I've got him staked out."

Charlevoix's Dr. Shanahan heads area's jazz group

By PAT BEGROW
The best Dixieland Jazz you can hear between New York and Chicago is played by the Epsilon Jazz Band of Petoskey, Michigan. Dr. Robert Shanahan heads this group which is amateur by choice only, for although jazz is each man's avocation it could as successfully have been a vocation.

So when this group of doctors, lawyers, merchants, chiefs get together for a jam session they're there to have fun and you're in for a real treat.

The reason why this jazz is unusual is because it is real Dixieland jazz, a musical art form which originated in America but which is seldom played today outside of New Orleans.

During the summer the Epsilon Jazz Band will be playing these old songs every Tuesday night at the Old House at Conway, Michigan. The Victorian atmosphere of the lounge at this Old House lends itself to the authentic string ties and brocade vests. They put on a colorful show enhanced by a red hot singer from Harbor Springs, Joanne Harrison who puts over a song in the easy style of the late Sophie Tucker.

The band plays from nine o'clock to midnight and there is no cover or minimum charge. They play songs which are rarely heard today such as Kansas City Stomp and Ragtime Dance by Kerry Mills. Sheet music for many of these pieces is unavailable.

Turk Murphy made Ragtime Dance famous when he dug the music out of the files of The Library of Congress and Don Greenwell of Petoskey is the son of vaudeville drummer and he uses the classic equipment to produce the old jazz sounds. The crazy sounds of the firebell, Ab-doo-bah-bah, siren, whistles, cat's call and whammy horn are his. Don and his brother were born and raised in Petoskey and run the Greenwell Machine Shop.

Nick Hamilton of Traverse City runs an offset printing business. He often substitutes for Greenwell on drums. His parents are the Ralph Hamiltons of Charlevoix.

Don Dechold has been playing the clarinet with Shanahan's group for years; he has an electrical contracting company in Belleaire.

Jim Acker, the trombonist is the head lab technician at the Traverse City Osteopathic Hospital.

Dr. Bob Allen, a radiologist at Lockwood Hospital, often substitutes for Acker on the trombone. He was an early influence on Shanahan's musical development.

John Wynn who plays soprano and baritone sax, is the owner of Wynn Office Supply in Petoskey.

During the summer he is the busy skipper of the Cygnus, a charter sailing vessel. Many area residents saw the show which he directed in Petoskey last fall. Guy and Dollis Stewart is a graduate of the Chalmers Conservatory of Music.

During the summer, Gary Routsong, a dental prosthesis from Traverse City will be on the tuba.

Gary Carden plays the cornet with the Epsilon Jazz Band. He often gives some interesting comments on the music. Carden lives in Traverse City and is with the Equitable Insurance Company.

These men travel many miles each Tuesday night because they love to play the old time jazz. By playing for others they are bringing to them also an awareness of this authentic American music.

ESSENTIALS OF A GOOD LIFE

The qualifications to become a first class drum major are more than just a flawless physique. Coordination of mind and muscle, with a keen sense of rhythm and timing are more important. These make for poise, assurance and a nervous system under rigid control. The latter are also requisites for a successful and healthful life.

Here again coordination between these physical senses and that invisible essential we call spirit is also of paramount importance. Regular church attendance helps develop the spirit so that we may be aware of it, be guided by it in building a happier, better disciplined, more useful life.

There is a church for you. Use and get its full benefits.

He said last Monday night that he had received several complaints about his statement and council's desire to eliminate the problem.

Council Monday night also reached preliminary agreement to purchase the First Baptist Church property next to City Hall for $11,000. District 15 is the city's third ward minus the east side of State St. The city's third ward is everything east and south of the center of State St. and Clinton St. from State to Round Lake.

City Clerk Ida Heiso said she knows nothing about the new county supervisor districts. The new districts were established by the County Board of Supervisors in April 1967, as required by state law. They have been on file as part of the official record of the county ever since.

To aid voters in understanding what county supervisor district they live in, the Courier will print a map of the new districts before the August 8 primary election.

Councilmen received notice from the Michigan Waterways Commission that it must revise the sewage treatment plant to eliminate at least 80% of the phosphates (nutrients) from effluent no later than December 1972.

Previously the council had been given until 1977 to stop the sewage plant's enrichment of Round Lake.

The Waterways Commission informed the council it will begin action to force the city's compliance with the new deadline if the city does not act voluntarily. It was agreed to discuss what steps the city must take to remove phosphates with an engineering consultant.

In other action the council took bids on asphalt for several streets and new curb and gutter. No action will be taken on the bids until June 24.

The ambulance service and fire protection agreements with Norwood Township were approved.

Adopts new image to attract young people

4-H seeks new lease in life of area's youth

The 4-H is seeking to break from its traditional image as an organization for farm youths.

For generations 4-H has been viewed as a club aimed at agricultural and homemaking projects for youth. Keith Lamkin, Charlevoix County 4-H extension agent explains, "Today fewer than two dozen Charlevoix area young people are active in 4-H."

The reason is simple: Farming and homemaking simply are not the forte of today's Charlevoix youngsters.

But, Lamkin said, neither is today's 4-H movement focused on girls and boys on the farm. His problem is getting this message across.

The 4-H project manual, which formerly devoted most of its pages to such things as raising livestock and home canning and baking, has added pages on hobbies, civic and social programs, and others more fitting the interests of today's youth.

For instance, Charlevoix 4-H clubs could be organized around golf, conservation, camping, hunting, fishing, rock hunting and polishing, flower gardens, dancing, softball, or any of several dozen other activities which city and rural youth are eager to participate in.

These kinds of projects virtually dominate the new 4-H manual, showing the traditional farm activities into near obscurity.

As far as Lamkin knows, no other organized youth program offers this diversity of activities for area youths.

Here's how it would work. A group of young people in town with an interest in, say, fishing, or maybe square dancing, etc., would get together and try to find adult leaders who have some knowledge of the subject. Lamkin would then come in and show the group how to organize, where to get advice and speakers, financial support, suggest field trips it might take and the kind of specific projects it could work on to increase knowledge and skill in the field involved.

If the children cannot find leader, Lamkin will be glad to help them if it is collected.

The children can range in age from 9 to 16.

If in a year, or so, the group feels it would like to work on something else it can change its major project to another interest area. One young person, with an interest in several hobbies or activities could be a member of several 4-H clubs.

Today there are no 4-H clubs in the city. Only four survive in the school district, all of them with meager membership. Mrs. Bob Straw has the Maple Grove 4-H sewing group in Hayes Township. Mrs. William Potter has the Bernard sewing group. Frank Culler is the leader of the 4-H dairy group in Ironton and Charles Killey has an electronics group in Ironton.

Less than a generation ago 4-H was an exciting factor in the lives of virtually every area rural youngster and many city kids, local young parents recall.

In those days there was a 4-H extension agent, such as Lamkin in the area. But several years ago the area lost its 4-H agent and he was not replaced until recently when Lamkin was hired.

A Harbor Springs shop and science teacher until he took his present job, Lamkin, 38, was raised on a farm part of his youth. He started to teach at Harbor, he obtained his masters and bachelors degrees from Michigan State University.

Lamkin is not alone in his effort to revitalize 4-H in the Charlevoix area. A Charlevoix County 4-H Council has been organized. Bill Gault of East Jordan is chairman. Members from the Charlevoix area include Charles Killey, Frank Culler, Bob Straw, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Vandorn of Horton Bay and Mrs. Bert Miller of Horton Bay.

Olck Smith of Norwood has volunteered to organize a 4-H conservation group, whose primary task is to lead a 4-H members who remember their pledge—clean, honest, friendly and cheerful. The group will be led by Mr. Robert E. Turner, President of Charlevoix Valley Community College at Oak Lawn, Illinois.

But what Lamkin needs to get the ball rolling are some adult leaders from town. He's sure there must be former 4-H members who remember their pledge—clean, honest, friendly and cheerful—and who would be interested in helping out. He'd like them to call him at Boyce City, 582-6232.

Summer residents get gas rate cut

The Michigan Public Service Commission has authorized Michigan Consolidated Gas Company to discontinue its $21 advance minimum charge for seasonal gas service.

The deposit had been established to assure the company of sufficient revenue to cover annual fixed costs. The company submitted data showing that this requirement is no longer necessary.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert LaCount of Montcalm County. In addition to their daughter they have a son, Floyd of Utica.

MR. AND MRS. Chuck Bennett hold four prize trout taken from Lake Charlevoix last weekend. Unconfirmed reports are they caught them somewhere in the west end of the main arm of the lake. The biggest rainbow weighed seven pounds on the scales at Edwards IGA.

Ellsworth board balks at state group's dues

ELLSWORTH -- The school board is balky at renewing its membership in the Michigan Association of School Boards because it feels small schools are not being supported by the organization.

The association, like most other organizations for educators, has done nothing to counteract the movement to force small schools, such as Ellsworth, to merge.

School board President Maurice Taylor directed Supt. John Jorgensen to write the association asking what it is, or will be, doing for Ellsworth.

Ellsworth plans for the year would be about $6, based on two cents per child.

The school also recently hired two new teachers, Henry K. Wagner II of Charlevoix will teach social studies, Mrs. Evelyn Morken of Mancelona will teach half a day in the elementary and the other half day high school French and Latin.

The board is considering setting higher scholastic eligibility standards for athletes. A boy with two JPs is now eligible to play varsity sports. Board member Ray Wallick has recommended this be restricted to one J.

Contest on county ballot

Coeleasts for four major Charlevoix County offices were assured Tuesday afternoon as the deadline passed for candidates to file nominating petitions.

Three attorneys are seeking the job of Prosecuting Attorney, including incumbent Harvey Varnum.

Sheriff Phil Sumner is being challenged by another veteran Boyne City lawyer, Everett S. Hadix, a former Police Chief.

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Clarence Rabach is unopposed on the primary ballot, but will face County Democratic Chairman Pete Johnson of Boyne City in the November general election.

Incumbent County Treasurer Anah Potter, a Republican, will face Democrat

Mrs. Geneva J. Vrontman of Wilson Township in the November general election.

Only Republican Register of Deeds Grover Genett faces no opposition among major office holders.

Competition also developed, perhaps for the first time in history, for the office of Drain Commissioner, who in Charlevoix County is a title without an office or funds to operate. Seeking the Drain Commissioner's post are Democrat Fran Martin and Republican Jerry Urick, both of Charlevoix.

Incumbent Mrs. Mary Felndt, a Charlevoix Republican, is unopposed for County Surveyor.

Republican Don Berlage of Charlevoix is challenging Varnum in the August 6 primary for Prosecuting Attorney. The winner of the primary will face Democrat Robert Hoffman of Charlevoix in November.

Hoffman, 32, started practicing law in Charlevoix in 1965, after graduation from the Detroit College of Law in 1963. He is a native of Petoskey, is active in the Charlevoix Lions Club, Charlevoix Flying Club, Petoskey Council of the Knights of Columbus and a member of the St. Mary's school board. He and his wife Jean have three children.

Berlage, 39, came to Charlevoix to join John Michael in the practice of law in late 1967, from Toledo, Ohio, where he worked for the Kaiser Jeep Corp. He received his law degree from the University of Cincinnati.

Berlage worked for the FBI, is an Army veteran and was a special hearing officer for the Department of Justice. His wife, Barbara, taught first grade at St. Mary's school. They have three sons.

George LaBlance challenges Davis for State House

Charlevoix businessman and longtime area political leader George A. LaBlance, 55, has decided to run as a Democrat for the 106th District House of Representatives seat in Lansing.

The former Charlevoix and Beaver Island commercial fisherman will face incumbent Republican State Representative Bob Davis of St. Ignace in the November general election.

Because the deadline for legislative candidates to file nominating petitions with the Secretary of State was late Tuesday, after the County deadline, it is not known if LaBlance will have a Democratic primary opponent for the nomination. He said, however, that he knows of no other Democrat who is expected to seek the post.

A graduate of Charlevoix High School, LaBlance has spent his entire life in Charlevoix County. He has been in the insurance business for 18 years, owning LaBlance Insurance Agency, in which his wife Edna, the former Edna Brooks of Boyne City, and his son Thomas are associates. He also owns several rental apartments in Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. LaBlance have raised five children in Charlevoix.

LaBlance is known to have the unofficial support of most Democratic party leaders in the 106th District, which includes Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet, Oshtemo and Mackinac Counties and parts of Kalamazoo and Chippewa Counties.

He has long been active in the party. For four years he was chairman of the county Democratic organization, of which he is now treasurer. He also served on the State Central Committee and was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1964 and an elector in the Electoral College in 1962.

A lifelong member of St. Mary's Catholic Church, LaBlance served on the Church Committee for 30 years, was chairman of the building committee which rated funds for the new church and is a past president of the Holy Name Society and a member of the Knights of Columbus.

George LaBlance

He is a member of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and a former Chamber president and executive board member.

Odmark to conduct only one summer concert before trip

Clarence Odmark, who has directed city band concerts in East Charlevoix every Wednesday during the summer for 20 years, will conduct only one of the concerts this summer.

After directing the opening concert next Wednesday, June 26 at 8:30 p.m., Odmark and his wife, Janet, will be off for their first extended vacation in two decades--a trip through Europe.

Bruce Kroken and Evelyn Peters, both graduates of Charlevoix High School and Northern Michigan University, will conduct the remaining Wednesday evening concerts, which will continue through August 21.

The 40-member city band has been practicing throughout the winter. It is made up of adults, advanced high school musicians and former Odmark students now in college.

This summer's concerts, Odmark said, are starting and ending a week early because college enrollment begins sooner than it used to.

Mr. and Mrs. Odmark will leave June 28 by ship for the Netherlands. They plan to also visit Germany, Scandinavia and England before returning by plane in late August. They have relatives in both Sweden and England whom they will visit.

Miss Peters and Kroken are also conducting the school summer music program for sixth through ninth graders. They will give lessons daily through August 2. More than 130 students are enrolled in the summer program, which started Monday.

THE SUMMER baseball program is underway, with Morewood and Medusa squaring off Monday night in the Fastball A League. All softball leagues will begin playing soon. See details on page 10.

Lake trout said 'safe' from coho

Federal and state fisheries officials are convinced salmon are not making lake trout a part of their diet in Lake Michigan.

Of 142 coho salmon whose stomach contents were carefully examined recently in southern Lake Michigan waters, 121 were eating alewife, six were eating fresh water shrimp, two were eating other forage fish and 13 had nothing in their stomachs, according to Myri Keller, chief of the Great Lakes Fishery Station in Charlevoix.

Reports that the alewife population is down sharply led some commercial fishermen and sports fishermen to speculate that the salmon would turn to eating young lake trout in their voracious pre-spawning feeding spree.

Keller said biologist Lee Moffitt and others have maintained a close check on salmon this spring and found no evidence of a change in their diet.

Though the number of alewife in Lake Michigan is down from last year's peak, Keller said there are, and will continue to be, enough of the spiny trash fish in the lake to feed the coho for years.

However, both Keller and Gene Mason of Charlevoix, head of the federal government's lake trout rehabilitation efforts on the Great Lakes, point out salmon will eat lake trout and lake trout will eat salmon because the trout are so wide-ranging, they cannot be kept from moving into prime whitefish grounds in the early spring, such as happened this year off the north shore of Lake Michigan, forcing the department to shut down and restrict commercial fishing, Keller said.

He pointed out these same studies show there is no way to control the area lake trout will live in by planting them. Lake trout planted off Charlevoix, for instance, he said, have been found in every area of Lake Michigan.

Replating JPs with a "district" judge in Charlevoix and other outstate counties were approved by the Legislature earlier this month. The district judge plan is the Legislature's solution to the 1963 state constitution's requirement that JPs be done away with by 1969.

The County Board of Supervisors will set the magistrate's pay, which can be either per diem or salary. The system of paying judges will be abolished.

The county's three active JPs are John Cummings of Charlevoix, Charles Landers of East Jordan and Lyle Green of Boyne City.

CHARLEVOIX GIRLS are back in camp at the Girl Scout Camp on the Ellsworth Rd. next to the Belvedere Golf Course. This week 52 Brownie Scouts are day-camping and nine Cadette Scouts were troop camping (staying overnight in the tents). The camp area has been mowed and sprayed for mosquitoes. A new toilet is under construction. Mrs. Jack Russell is camp director.

Fear Is Useless

Many of the fears by which we allow ourselves to be haunted are as bogus as the sign the boy is placing on the fence that encloses his puppies. Many of us waste our energy in worries that turn out to be as groundless as the sign—"beware." They are emotions that should provoke a smile not despondence.

We cannot go forward, fulfilling our responsibilities if we permit ourselves to be lost in the throes of harbored fears and resentments which make for negative personalities. It is at a time such as this that faith and regular church attendance serve as a staff of strength. No matter the effort it may require we should brace our shoulders and go to church this week—and regularly thereafter. For here we may find solace, comfort and spiritual sustenance that will give the confidence with which we may face all the years ahead.

We had a fire early Saturday morning last week at the home of Mrs. Lydia Orvis, formerly Harry Hunter residence that is occupied by the Orvis family. The fire started in the ceiling and spread to the living room which was caused by a spark from the chimney. The other rooms were damaged by smoke, but no one was injured. The Charlevoix Fireman soon arrived and had everything under control and manageable.

Mrs. Mary Hall held Open House last Sunday at the home of Mrs. Lydia Orvis honoring her daughter Lynn, who graduated from the Charlevoix High School.

Mrs. Hilda Crowe entertained the Weekly Club last Wednesday.

Mrs. Lewis McDonald and several members of her family are spending a few days in her local home.

Several members of the Youth Fellowship spent last Thursday evening visiting the patients in Cranbrook Hospital and singing some of their Choir Anthems.

We are happy that Madame

Chevy Serck has returned home after spending the past two weeks in the Little Traverse Hospital as a medical patient.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wood of Charlevoix have bought the two lots from Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Johnson next to the Louis Gilbert home and are making plans to start building a new home. We will welcome them back in our community as they were residents here several years ago.

The Ladies Fellowship are having a "Kaffee Klatch" on Monday June 24 from 9:30 to 11 p.m. at the home of Mrs. N.C. Christensen. Everyone welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. William LaValley are entertaining friends from Detroit this week.

Mrs. Wendy Stane and two children have moved in one of the Wajan Apartments after spending several weeks with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Knudson.

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LODER
CHAMBER MANAGER

Come on there you little guys and gals, let's hear from you as preparations are being started for the pet and dolls parade during the Venetian Festival. Mrs. Ralph Doss, 308 Meech Street, phone 547-9755, is chairlady and her first aid is Mrs. Eugene Dadoir, 105 W. Garfield, 547-2850, will head the committee. You might contact either of these ladies or this writer.

You are reminded of another activity at which you will be welcomed. Saturday July 6 at Alpena, Michigan, which is called Michigan Strawberry Festival. They have quite an interesting program, part of which would interest very much our local horsemen, starting as early as 9 a.m. The halter classes will be held at the Alpena County Fair Ground. In addition to the quarter horse exhibition, Festival features include a beef bar-b-que, with fresh strawberry short cake dessert, air and photograph shows, boat races, and a gigantic fireworks display. All day at Alpena, July 6.

You business people be reminded that June 30, for free, there is a one day workshop for new and prospective small business owners and managers at Room 122, North Central Michigan College at Petoskey, according to President of the college Mr. A.D. Shankland. The workshop is jointly sponsored by small business administration, North Central Michigan College, Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce, and the Vocational Department of Petoskey High School, as a community service program and you ladies and gentlemen of the Charlevoix area have been invited as indicated before through this Chamber. There is a full day program starting at 9 a.m. and ending about 4:15 p.m.

gram is designed to teach principals which can be applied to all kinds of businesses and to develop a better understanding of the managerial business necessary to start a business and operate successfully and there will be a wide variety of topics and this should be a worthwhile program.

Attention all you old timers! I have an inquirer who wants to learn information in connection with item in her scrapbook with relation to what she calls the Charlevoix Riding Academy. She believes at one time Mr. John Wallace of Northville, Michigan bought it from Mr. Ernest Loeb of Chicago. There was also a Mr. James J. Miller involved. She indicates further that it was a school for horsemanship out on M-6 slightly south from Charlevoix. Anyone having any information, please be in touch. Thanks.

Kircher wins

BOYNE FALLS -- Everett Kircher, who seems to have a golden touch in the old business, proved last week he also has a knack for politics.

In his first bid for public office, Kircher outstripped all other candidates for the school board in Boyne Falls. He collected 148 votes to Sylvester Czerkies 117 and Mrs. Joan Wasilewski's 45.

Wisconsin grad

Joy A. Graf of Charlevoix graduated from the University of Wisconsin with a Bachelor of Science degree on Monday, June 10.

Commencement exercises were held at Wisconsin's Camp Randall on the campus with nearly 3,800 students receiving diplomas.

Well, we have another softball season officially underway. This is the 14th campaign for this writer's program, director, and I have a feeling this season in the softball league could be one of the best ever. At least early reports indicate so. The Tip-off double elimination tournament found seven teams ready to go. This is the largest field of entry we've had in many years.

The USAF got strong pitching and plenty of hitting to sweep by County State Bank 10-2. Sonny Wright had a double hit the seventh inning when he weakened slightly to give up three more to the Bank boys. Meanwhile teammates Dardy, Wyall, Hutchinson, and Sander were combining hit for four second inning runs. The winners picked up five more in their final time at bat with Vaughn's home run and the big blow, Gary Stutzman's home run was the only damaging blow for the losers.

The big noise at the park however, was the return of the popular Klooster brothers.

The other leagues swing into action this week. It's Blooper League tonight. At 7 p.m. American Mold will meet the Medicine Chest, 8 p.m. Nova's insurance will clash with Freedmans, and Boyce City will be playing in the nightcap.

We have summer activity guides that have the various schedules for all leagues and pertinent information on the swimming, golf and basketball programs, as well as the senior citizen activities and the special events throughout the summer months. They are free and can be picked up at the following restaurants: Carson's, Lumber, Oleong, Charlevoix Cable T.V., Cellner's Barber Shop, Stale Bank, Hess Furniture, and McDonald's Hobby and Craft Shop. They are free to the public.

Medusa used a four-run second inning to defeat Lake Construction 4-1. John Ferguson had a home run along with Dardy, Wyall, Hutchinson, and Sander were combining hit for four second inning runs. The winners picked up five more in their final time at bat with Vaughn's home run and the big blow, Gary Stutzman's home run was the only damaging blow for the losers.

American Mold advanced tomorrow's (Thursday's) game against the Medusa's to a 3-2 lead. That's an 8-45 game. In the losers bracket USAF plays the Wilcox's home run was the only damaging blow for the losers.

The big noise at the park however, was the return of the popular Klooster brothers.

UM boat refining new testing technique here

A new technique for measuring the amount of nuclear radioactivity in water has been refined here.

The University's research ship, the Mysis, under the direction of Dr. John Ayers, professor of oceanography, will be based in Round Lake for at least the next three weeks while the project is underway.

The new radioactivity sampling technique was developed by Charles Kidd, of Cleveland, Ohio. Kidd's method appears as though it will provide an accurate method for measuring minute amounts of radioactivity in water.

With help from the Mysis's two-man crew and Dr. Ayers, Kidd will place gauge bags from the lake and testing them does not do the job because they do not remain in one place long enough to provide a meaningful sampling of the water's radioactivity.

Dr. Ayers explained that capturing shell shrimp from the lake and testing them does not do the job because they do not remain in one place long enough to provide a meaningful sampling of the water's radioactivity.

The area off Big Rock Point north of the lake was selected for the test, Dr. Ayers said, because the University knew the area was not discharging measurable amounts of radioactivity into the lake.

Kidd's technique involves placing a small, portable, electronic device in the water. The device is a small, rectangular box with a handle on top. It is connected to a larger, more complex device on the Mysis.

Head Start classes ready

Head Start classes for eligible Charlevoix preschool children start Tuesday, June 25, according to Mrs. Dorothy McTear, teacher.

Parents of eligible children have been notified by mail and will register their children Monday morning, June 24, between 9 and noon. Classes will be held daily from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the elementary school from June 25 through August 2.

Assisting Mrs. McTear will be Mrs. Diana Welterger. The children will be served a mid-morning snack and a complete lunch each day. Mrs. Ellen Copeland is in charge of preparing and serving the food.

UNIVERSITY OF Michigan doctoral student Charles Kidd, left, and Dr. John Ayers prepare to begin testing Kidd's new technique for sampling the radioactivity in water from the university's research ship, the Mysis, which will be based in Charlevoix during the tests.

Students in every other district would have benefitted enormously. At a cost of less than $12 a year to most families, every student would have been able to learn a job-entry skill in any of numerous trade, business and technical fields.

Acting alone, no single school district in the area could even Charlevoix with its disproportionate wealth—can even come close to developing a comprehensive vocational education program. For instance, 1.5 million in Charlevoix would raise about $55,000 a year. This would not even cover the salaries of teachers in the broad occupational training program.

The Courier hopes the Intermediate District will resubmit its proposal to voters as soon and as often as necessary to open this door of opportunity to our young people. Next time we hope the Intermediate District does a better job of explaining the proposal and more parents will demonstrate the spirit of the Islanders.

Yet the handful of Beaver Island Juniors and seniors who could benefit from the vocational program are the ones who would be the least likely to because of the almost impossible travel handicap.

Their parents, however, should be congratulated for their unselfishness in being willing to pay part of the cost.

Some of the personalities might be designated as "stros" characters, others as off-beat, but some of the most unusual personalities to be found anywhere were certainly here.

Who remembers Martha Ayers? Old man Blisbee (nobody seems to recall that he had any other name) who lived in the house on Mason street? Of course the hole is no longer there. It has long since been filled and the site now occupied by the homes belonging to the former Munro estate and Mrs. Ira Olney.

Islanders lead in school vote

JUDGING from the unofficial vote returns on last week's 1.5-million area vocational education proposal, Beaver Islanders might be considered the least selfish more sincere parents in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate District.

Beaver Island school district voters were the only ones in the Intermediate District who voted for the 1.5-million. Not a single Islander voted against the levy.

It is hard to conceive of anything more ironic, Islanders had the least to gain from the area vocational education plan.

Students in every other district would have benefitted enormously. At a cost of less than $12 a year to most families, every student would have been able to learn a job-entry skill in any of numerous trade, business and technical fields.

LaBlance an issues candidate

Whether you agree or disagree with his party or opinions, George LaBlance is the kind of citizen who should be getting into serious politics.

His candidacy as a Democrat for the State House of Representatives restores a quality of realism to politics.

Ideally, politics should be a debate between two mature, self-made and self-reliant candidates who differ in their philosophy of government, but who are both concerned with the well-being of the people.

LaBlance can, in the all-American sense, be considered a successful product of Northern Michigan. A student of the University of Michigan, he was a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society and a member of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society.

Unfortunately, his disadvantage may be that he will face a candidate (Bob Davis) whose assets in seeking reelection are his party's politics and in close contact with the people he seeks to represent. Further to his advantage as a candidate, he has a fairly bulky background of conflict with the party he has remained loyal to while trying to make it face up to the realities of Northern Michigan.

Yet the handful of Beaver Island Juniors and seniors who could benefit from the vocational program are the ones who would be the least likely to because of the almost impossible travel handicap.

Their parents, however, should be congratulated for their unselfishness in being willing to pay part of the cost.

Some of the personalities might be designated as "stros" characters, others as off-beat, but some of the most unusual personalities to be found anywhere were certainly here.

Who remembers Martha Ayers? Old man Blisbee (nobody seems to recall that he had any other name) who lived in the house on Mason street? Of course the hole is no longer there. It has long since been filled and the site now occupied by the homes belonging to the former Munro estate and Mrs. Ira Olney.

Martha, nobody ever seemed to know where she was a Miss or a Mrs., was a very busy woman. She had a husband, a son, and a daughter. She was a very busy woman.

THE BROWN building and Brown Motors Co. in Charlevoix have been sold to Ken Depew.
Area's oldest family business
Browns sell business, building in Charlevoix to Kenneth Depew
The longest single chapter in Charlevoix's business history is drawing to a close.
Brown Motors, which for 70 years has been owned by the late Benjamin Brown and his family, has been sold. The business is the oldest under one-family ownership in Charlevoix.
Kenneth Depew, 39, of Summit, N.J., bought the business and Brown Building, which has been in the automotive field for 20 years and was raised in Williamston, Mich., is expected in Charlevoix this week to begin management of the Dodge dealership and various rentals, including six apartments, Fay's dress shop and others in the Brown Building.
Mrs. Laura Courter, who has directed the Brown family's Charlevoix business operation for years, will rent her apartment in the Brown Building from Depew. She is the only member of the family still living in Charlevoix.
The family's automobile business has been headquartered in Petoskey since 1937, at the request of Dodge. Lewis Brown will continue to run the business there. Mrs. Courter has sold her interest to Lewis.
A freight elevator to the second floor was used to lift cars in the early days when they were stored in the winter, Mrs. Courter recalls.
All five of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brown's children were raised in the building--and in the business. Three of the children survive: Mrs. Courter, Lewis and Mrs. Edna (Brown) Dancer of Petoskey. Floyd Brown, head of the business for years, died Jan. 25, 1968. Marguerite died in California in 1937.
Depew has been a regional manager for Goodyear tires for eight years. He has vacationed in Charlevoix frequently since he was a child.
Candidates have until July 2 to file their nominating petitions with the clerk in Bellaire.
Meggison challenges Carson for county supervisor seat
Kit Carson is being challenged in his bid to regain his seat on the Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors.
Don Meggison, also a Republican, has filed a nominating petition to oppose Carson's bid for election to the reappointed county board. Meggison and Carson will be on the primary ballot in the 13th Supervisor District, which is the old City First Ward and part of the Second Ward.
Carson, as chairman of the county board's building and grounds committee, has been the chief architect in getting the county tentatively committed to build a new half-million-dollar jail. This is Meggison's first crack at politics.
No candidates for the county board have filed from the city's other two supervisor districts. Ken Carson, who has been expected to seek reelection from District 15, and Lee Moorland may run from District 15.
Candidates have until July 2 to file nominating petitions with the county clerk.
Another supervisor race has shaped up in Supervisor District 2 (Charlevoix and Hayes Townships). Robert Bergmann, a Republican, has filed to oppose veteran supervisor Lee Smealin, a Democrat.
In District 3 (Eveline and Wilson townships) Ralph Richardson has filed as a Republican.
Clyde Cunningham of Marlon Township is reported planning to run from Supervisor District 2 (Marlon, Newport, St. James and Pelee Townships). Cunningham is now chairman of the county board.
In East Jordan only incumbent Barney Mistein has filed for reelection.
Circulating the petition for Michael is his law partner, Don Herge, who is opposing incumbent Harvey Varnum for prosecuting attorney.

THE BROWN building and Brown Motors Co. in Charlevoix have been sold to Ken Depew.
Area's oldest family business
Browns sell business, building in Charlevoix to Kenneth Depew
The longest single chapter in Charlevoix's business history is drawing to a close.
Brown Motors, which for 70 years has been owned by the late Benjamin Brown and his family, has been sold. The business is the oldest under one-family ownership in Charlevoix.
Kenneth Depew, 39, of Summit, N.J., bought the business and Brown Building, which has been in the automotive field for 20 years and was raised in Williamston, Mich., is expected in Charlevoix this week to begin management of the Dodge dealership and various rentals, including six apartments, Fay's dress shop and others in the Brown Building.
Mrs. Laura Courter, who has directed the Brown family's Charlevoix business operation for years, will rent her apartment in the Brown Building from Depew. She is the only member of the family still living in Charlevoix.
The family's automobile business has been headquartered in Petoskey since 1937, at the request of Dodge. Lewis Brown will continue to run the business there. Mrs. Courter has sold her interest to Lewis.
A freight elevator to the second floor was used to lift cars in the early days when they were stored in the winter, Mrs. Courter recalls.
All five of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brown's children were raised in the building--and in the business. Three of the children survive: Mrs. Courter, Lewis and Mrs. Edna (Brown) Dancer of Petoskey. Floyd Brown, head of the business for years, died Jan. 25, 1968. Marguerite died in California in 1937.
Depew has been a regional manager for Goodyear tires for eight years. He has vacationed in Charlevoix frequently since he was a child.
Candidates have until July 2 to file their nominating petitions with the clerk in Bellaire.
Meggison challenges Carson for county supervisor seat
Kit Carson is being challenged in his bid to regain his seat on the Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors.
Don Meggison, also a Republican, has filed a nominating petition to oppose Carson's bid for election to the reappointed county board. Meggison and Carson will be on the primary ballot in the 13th Supervisor District, which is the old City First Ward and part of the Second Ward.
Carson, as chairman of the county board's building and grounds committee, has been the chief architect in getting the county tentatively committed to build a new half-million-dollar jail. This is Meggison's first crack at politics.
No candidates for the county board have filed from the city's other two supervisor districts. Ken Carson, who has been expected to seek reelection from District 15, and Lee Moorland may run from District 15.
Candidates have until July 2 to file nominating petitions with the county clerk.
Another supervisor race has shaped up in Supervisor District 2 (Charlevoix and Hayes Townships). Robert Bergmann, a Republican, has filed to oppose veteran supervisor Lee Smealin, a Democrat.
In District 3 (Eveline and Wilson townships) Ralph Richardson has filed as a Republican.
Clyde Cunningham of Marlon Township is reported planning to run from Supervisor District 2 (Marlon, Newport, St. James and Pelee Townships). Cunningham is now chairman of the county board.
In East Jordan only incumbent Barney Mistein has filed for reelection.
Circulating the petition for Michael is his law partner, Don Herge, who is opposing incumbent Harvey Varnum for prosecuting attorney.

'Medium-priced' homes planned in subdivision

Jim Ritchie has received tentative approval to proceed with development of a 33-home subdivision near the airport in the southwest corner of Charlevoix.
Ritchie said the houses in the subdivision, the first of its kind in Charlevoix, will "reach the people who have been left out of the housing market." The houses, he said, will cost around $15,000.
The first home in the subdivision was started last week and will be completed this week. It is a three-bedroom, with carpeting, full basement and all utilities costing $15,000. Both local banks, he said, have agreed to provide financing for buyers.
The subdivision is located between Garfield and Carpenter streets, with Grant St. as east boundary. Ritchie has an option on the property from Fritz Allard.
Lot sizes, Ritchie said, will range from 62 to 70 feet wide by 117 feet deep. He said the 82 foot lots are small, but no smaller than those in most areas of the city or in other cities.
All lots in the subdivision, which he is calling Westdale, will meet the R-3 zoning requirements, he said. The area is now zoned R-3.
Most of the factory-built homes in the subdivision will be basically the same, Ritchie said. Differences, he explained, will be possible by using varied finishing touches and elevations.
Charlevoix's continued growth, Ritchie said, depends on having this type housing available. New home building, he said, has been largely restricted to more expensive homes on more expensive lots because local builders and realtors cannot put together a "quality" economy package in the middle-price range, which he will offer at Westdale.
Ritchie said he can foresee the possibility of having houses on all 33 lots by the end of next year.
The subdivision, he pointed out, will upgrade the southwest section of town. He termed his plans "urban renewal coming from the private sector" and added that other new homes have been built in the area, indicating its potential.
City Supt. Jim Taylor said present city water and sewer lines can be extended to serve the proposed first 18 lots in the subdivision. Other arrangements will have to be made to get sewer into the remaining lots, Taylor said.
City Councilmen said they will study Ritchie's tentative plan in more detail, but Monday night gave him their preliminary endorsement to prepare more thorough plans.

Venetian Queen sought

Nine local girls have entered the "Miss Charlevoix" queen contest and more are being urged to enter, according to Don Kowbel, chairman of the event for the Chamber of Commerce.
Entries will be accepted at the Chamber of Commerce office until July 1, Kowbel said. Any girl under 21 years of age with a permanent Charlevoix mailing address is eligible to enter.
Miss Charlevoix will be selected July 13. She will represent Charlevoix in festivals and other beauty contests around the state and compete for the Miss Venetian title July 27 and 28. Miss Venetian of 1968 will be selected from a field of queens from other communities and Miss Charlevoix.
This is the first year both a Miss Charlevoix and Miss Venetian have been selected. The Chamber of Commerce's Venetian Festival Queens Committee originated the new plan to generate more interest in the beauty contest both locally and throughout the North.
Contestants so far for the Miss Charlevoix title are Mary Goodenough, Linda Curtis, Sharon Krueger, Lois Barta, Teri Rusinski, Nancy Hoffman, Arlene Supernaw, Cathy Wood and Jayne Plumm.
The Miss Charlevoix judging program will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday, July 13, and end with the announcement of the winner at an evening program at the school. Tickets are being sold to the evening program.
Judging will begin at 11 a.m., with the swimsuit contest. At noon the girls will be taken to lunch. At 2:30 they will meet with judges at the city golf course clubhouse and at 4 p.m. they will be taken to supper. The evening program will include a talent show and final appearance of the girls in costume.

New judge to relieve Circuit Court workload

The workload is being cut in half for Circuit Judge Charles L. Brown, who reportedly spends more days in court than any other Michigan circuit judge.
The legislature has approved making the 13th Judicial Circuit a two-judge district. The second judge will be elected in November.
The circuit, over which Judge Brown has presided alone for more than a decade, includes Charlevoix, Antrim, Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties.
The new judge will be paid $20,000 by the state plus an undeveloped amount from each county, probably bringing his salary near the $25,000 mark.
Any lawyer under age 70 living in either of the four counties is eligible. Candidates must file nominating petitions, or pay a nomination fee, with the Secretary of State by July 2.

Prizes will be given to four persons who use the drive-in window during the first week at a drawing next Friday, July 5, at the bank. First prize will be a $100 savings account. Other prizes will be $75, $50 and $25 savings accounts.

Tent caterpillars renew attack

State Forester Jack Lockwood does not believe the massive onslaught of tent caterpillars (army worms) which have hit some areas of the county for thesecond year will do any permanent damage to healthy trees.

In some sections of the south and west sides of the county and in the Ellsworth-East Port area, Lockwood reports the caterpillars have literally covered forested areas.

The army worms, as many people call them, eat the leaves off trees, stopping their growth, Lockwood explained. If a tree is healthy, he said, losing its leaves for several days in a row will not do it permanent damage. Weak trees, however, will be killed, he said.

Lockwood is more concerned about a build-up of what he calls "big hairy flies" that eat the caterpillars. Though the predator flies are not harmful to humans or other forms of life, Lockwood said they can become more of a nuisance than the army worms.

With or without the "big hairy flies" he expects the tent caterpillars to continue in large numbers for another couple of years and then decline as a normal cycle.

Ray Wallick at Army camp

ELLSWORTH -- Ray W. Wallick Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray W. Wallick of Ellsworth, is attending Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps summer camp at Ft. Benning, Georgia, with his unit from Northwestern Michigan College at Traverse City.

The six-week training program at the encampment includes instruction in physical conditioning, leadership, rifle marksmanship and taking part in field exercises.

Cadet Wallick received an A.A. degree in 1967 from Northwestern Michigan College, and is a 1963 graduate of Ellsworth High School. After graduating from college and successfully completing summer camp training he may be commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

Girl Scouts continue to improve local camp area

by JEANNE MUTZ
Charlevoix's 28-acre Girl Scout camp again last week echoed the fun and glamour for which it is intended but seldom used.

The primitive camp, next to the Belevaders Golf Course clubhouse on Ellsworth Road, was used last week for the annual day camp and overnight camp. It will probably be used no more than two weeks this year.

Mrs. Virginia Warner, executive director of the Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council, said she knows of no further plans to use the camp after last week's day camp. She said, though, that other plans for its use may be made later in the summer.

Efforts are steadily being made to improve the barren land, which was originally purchased by Charlevoix Girl Scouts from Alma Steakey of New Orleans in 1959.

Shortly after the Council acquired the camp there was disagreement between Charlevoix citizens and Council over selling the campsite because the Council felt Charlevoix was not using the camp to its full potential. The Council now says, though, that it has no future plans to sell the camp.

Each year the Community Chest budgets money for the Girl Scouts. The 1968 budget states that $1,800 was budgeted to the Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council, but no one seems to know just how much of this amount Charlevoix really gets back. The Council did say, though, that they pay for the maintenance and upkeep of the Girl Scout camp and share the cost of improvements, but again, exact figures were unavailable.

The Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council has four camps, each located in a separate district. Besides Charlevoix, there are camps in Manistowishippi, on Bass Lake and on the Pere Marquette River.

The number of Charlevoix Girl Scouts is the largest in the Crooked Tree Council, with a total of 214 girls and adults in Charlevoix and 571 in Charlevoix County.

For the past year, Girl Scouts in Charlevoix have been led by the following leaders and assistant leaders: Mrs. Al Bergmann, Corvina Russell, Mrs. Herman Kroush, Mrs. Jack Russell, Mrs. Jane Alger, Mrs. Frits Puttuff, Mrs. Louts Skel, Mrs. Stanley Whitely, Mrs. James Smith, Mrs. Lester Tripp, Mrs. William Habel, Mrs. Robert Timms, Mrs. Lawrence Watkins, Mrs. David Juliette, Mrs. Verna Helms, Mrs. Alex Moore, Mrs. Albert Webster, Mrs. Edwin Mann and Mrs. Franklin Collier. Troop organizer is Mrs. Wayne Carter. Brownie advisor is Mrs. Oliver Johnson and Day Camp director is Mrs. Jack Russell.

The house, which stands on top of the hill and has been empty for some years, was recently rented, partly as a safe-guard against vandalism, since considerable damage has been done to the property in past years. The Council says it will continue to rent the house with the agreement improvements will be made to the house itself.

In 1962 the Girl Scouts were forced to join the Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council and were given to continue to be Girl Scouts.

Queen pageant unveils 'exceptional creatures'

By Pat Begrow
Thanks to TV, all of us can share each year in the fun of choosing Miss America or Miss Teenage America.

Every year I watch these shows with my mouth hanging open in amazement at the endless number of girls who are beautiful, brainy, quick witted and talented. Is there no end to these exceptional creatures?

There doesn't seem to be and many of them come from right here in Northern Michigan. You can see the best of this year's group tomorrow June 27, and June 28, in Traverse City as they compete for the title of National Cherry Queen.

There will be 18 to 20 girls selected from entries from all over northern Michigan.

On June 27, the girls will compete in a talent show and on June 28 in an evening gown and question session.

Judges for these events will be Stan Dale -- WIS Chicago; Kaye Savage -- Food Editor Detroit Free Press; Jo Dubson, Executive Secretary Indianapolis "500" Festival.

On Friday evening June 28, following the selection of the 1968 National Cherry Queen and her court there will be the Coronation Crystal, fifty-two sparkling crystal chandeliers never before seen in northern Michigan will be displayed. The effect should be breathtaking.

There doesn't seem to be and many of them come from right here in Northern Michigan. You can see the best of this year's group tomorrow June 27, and June 28, in Traverse City as they compete for the title of National Cherry Queen.

There will be 18 to 20 girls selected from entries from all over northern Michigan.

On June 27, the girls will compete in a talent show and on June 28 in an evening gown and question session.

Judges for these events will be Stan Dale -- WIS Chicago; Kaye Savage -- Food Editor Detroit Free Press; Jo Dubson, Executive Secretary Indianapolis "500" Festival.

On Friday evening June 28, following the selection of the 1968 National Cherry Queen and her court there will be the Coronation Crystal, fifty-two sparkling crystal chandeliers never before seen in northern Michigan will be displayed. The effect should be breathtaking.

Will be William P. Hill, News Director of WKBT Muskegon. Agnes Williams will serenade the Queen and the Mademoiselles will entertain the contestants. Tom Edwards will be featured organist.

The contests on both evenings will be held at the Traverse City High School. Tickets for the Talent Night are $1 for adults. Tickets for the Coronation Crystal on Friday night are $2 for adults and $1 for children. They can be purchased in advance in the Traverse City Area Chamber of Commerce Building.

If you're planning to hear pianist Van Cilia who is presenting a concert at Interlochen on July 13, now is the time to order your tickets. There are 4,100 seats available, but they are going like hot cakes. Undoubtedly this will be another sell-out audience.

Interlochen is to play the over-popular Grieg Concerto, accompanied by the camp's top high school orchestra. Fifty-two sparkling crystal chandeliers never before seen in northern Michigan will be displayed. The effect should be breathtaking.

Must widen scope of effort to save Jordan River

Charlevoixian Gene Mason, who is head man in the united effort to restore lake trout to the Great Lakes and one of the most respected men in the fisheries business, has become the target of an uninformed, savage attack by some persons who profess to be interested in saving the Jordan River from man's mauling.

In a recent editorial in the greatly improved East Jordan newspaper, it was said Gene "skillfully and in a manner befitting the longtime governmental politician that he is, defended the (Jordan River) hatchery from all accusers and finger pointers."

Anyone who has any experience with Gene has to be embarrassed by such a statement. Among others in the fisheries business, Gene is almost infamous for refusing to play politics and widely admired for his "practical" knowledge of the business.

If Gene were a politician he would not have stood up at a meeting on commercial fishing regulations last winter and suggested gill nets have already killed half the lake trout planted since 1965. A savvy federal bureaucrat just doesn't speak that bluntly . . . right or wrong.

One of a newspaperman's greatest frustrations with Gene is that he speaks quietly, calmly and to the point without apparently giving a good darn if you believe him or not. He's telling you what years of field experience have taught him. If you don't believe him, well go ride a rail out of town or forget it. But that's the way he sees it and he isn't going to try to color it up so it will make a better story or sound better to the public.

And that just isn't the way a "politician" does things.

Gene Mason is top man in his field because he is best man for his job. That's the only reason. Any man who suggests he is some kind of tawdry politician should be ashamed.

But, to the editorial writer's credit, the week before the editorial was printed, the same paper ran a news story reporting Mason told members of the Great Lakes Watershed Commission the Jordan River Hatchery is dumping enriching nutrients into the Jordan, but that he does not believe it is causing harmful pollution.

Mason, according to the East Jordan paper's story, urged the Commission to make an impartial study of the hatchery's pollution to determine if something should be done. If it should, he assured the commission, he will see that the right action is taken.

The same editorial that belittled Gene made something of a hero of Dr. Howard Tanner, former head of Michigan's fish division. Dr. Tanner, it pointed out, has stated the hatchery is dumping the equivalent of raw sewage from a community of 1,200 people into the Jordan.

This writer is no more qualified than is the extremely capable young editor of the East Jordan paper to critically compare Dr. Tanner and Gene Mason's observations.

But, from experience, it is absolutely fair to say Dr. Tanner is the best politician in the field of fisheries in the Great Lakes region today. Because of it, Michigan's fisheries program is probably the greatest in the Great Lakes region.

However, it seems appropriate to be more constructive. The major threats to the Jordan River's survival as an unspoiled Michigan trout stream is not the hatchery, though the hatchery may be a contributing menace.

If the Jordan is to be saved township supervisors must be forced to plug for and then unwaveringly enforce strict land controls which keep development well back from the stream. Farmers must be forced to accept unseasonable controls on how they use their land and ordered to limit fertilization and spraying.

Once you take a really close look at this '68 Impala Custom Coupe, chances are you won't care what other people's 1969's are going to look like. But we'll tell you anyway.

This particular model—with its formal "notchback" roof line—is the most popular one we build. Which means it's by far the most popular '68 anybody builds. Which means (and this is on open secret ground Detroit these days) some other cars are going to look a little like it in '69.

Frankly, we're kind of used to being borrowed from this way by now. Whether it's styling, riding comfort or just plain painstaking workmanship, we know that putting you first keeps us first. And we can't blame either carmakers for wanting to catch up.

But meantime the thing for you to do is drop down and have a talk with your Chevrolet dealer now. Great as our styling looks on this '68 Impala, we can't promise it's going to look so good on a '69 something else.

Happening now at your Chevrolet dealer's, a tremendous explosion of extra buying power. Only the dealer could make it happen.

Save on popular V8 engines, automatic transmissions, whitewall tires—and more. Just take a look at these five bonus savings plans. Then see your Chevrolet dealer.

School census takers find 77 more children

The just-completed 1968 census of school children shows there are 77 more school-age children in the Charlevoix district than last year, according to Supl. Rex Milligan.

School officials had estimated there would be approximately 75 more children in school next fall. This year's official enrollment was 1,452.

The 1968 census, Milligan said, shows there are 1,554 persons between 5 and 19 years of age in the school district, compared to the 1,477 counted during the 1967 census.

Since 1963's census, the school district has increased by nearly 300 school-age youngsters. In 1963 the school census takers counted 1,281 children between 5 and 19 years old. There was little increase in 1964 when 1,300 children were counted.

This year's increase of 77 is the largest one-year jump since 1965 when 1,406 children were counted, an increase of 108 above 1965. In 1966 there was an increase of 34, up to 1,440. Only 37 more children were counted the next year, 1967, when the census showed 1,477 school-age children and 1,425 children.

With the exception of the 1967-68 school-year when the census showed 1,477 school-age children and 1,425 children were enrolled in the public schools, the number of children counted in the census is usually more than 100 students higher than the enrollment.

This is shown by the following comparison of the census and enrollments from 1967 to 1968: In 1967 there were 1,477 children counted and 1,425 enrolled; in 1968 census counted 1,498 children and 1,429 enrolled; in 1964 only 1,151 of the 1,300 children counted enrolled, and in 1963 1,281 children were counted and 1,092 enrolled.

The census takers also count children who are below school age (under 5). Unofficially, the number of preschoolers counted has declined in the last six years while enrollment has continued to increase.

The census of pre-school children, from 1968 to 1963 has been 424, 430, 385, 497, 469 and 445.

Youths aid campground work

BEAVER ISLAND--Efforts to expand and improve the state campground here are being furthered by two students who have been hired by the state, according to Jack Lockwood, state forester of Boyne City.

The two youths, Ed Conaghan and Leonard Kowalik, are working for the Conservation Dept. under the state's vocational training program. They are working directly for Bernard Wagner, island fire officer.

Lockwood, who is in charge of state lands on the island, said the San Bay campground has been expanded from 15 campsites to 25 and 15 more will be added as soon as possible.

Conaghan and Kowalik will spend much of their time this summer improving the campground and maintaining it. They will also assist Wagner in maintenance and improvement at the Conservation Dept. office in St. Ignace.

Since Abraham

Down through the centuries God has called upon man to do great things. This is as true today as it was in the time of Abraham. A cowboy herding his cattle is as apt to get the summons to lead his people as did Moses while tending his sheep on the mountain. God speaks to man through man's own mind. His calls today are just as real as was his summons to Moses to lead his people out of bondage. Many get the call to become ministers and leaders of the Church but do not heed it because it was not made in a startling manner, such as a genie appearing in a sudden flash of flame.

Brought on by our shortcomings, slaves to our own mistakes, self-pity and fears the need for good leaders in our churches is as evident today as it was in the time of Moses.

It is obvious that we all need the Church and that the Church needs men.

Since Abraham

Down through the centuries God has called upon man to do great things. This is as true today as it was in the time of Abraham. A cowboy herding his cattle is as apt to get the summons to lead his people as did Moses while tending his sheep on the mountain. God speaks to man through man's own mind. His calls today are just as real as was his summons to Moses to lead his people out of bondage. Many get the call to become ministers and leaders of the Church but do not heed it because it was not made in a startling manner, such as a genie appearing in a sudden flash of flame.

Brought on by our shortcomings, slaves to our own mistakes, self-pity and fears the need for good leaders in our churches is as evident today as it was in the time of Moses.

It is obvious that we all need the Church and that the Church needs men.

Gun controls

WHITE HOUSE sources have finally admitted proposed gun-control laws will be ineffective in halting crime and violence, as critics of the proposed controls have always said they would be.

With passage of strict gun laws closer than ever before, Administration anti-gun supporters evidently woke up to the fact that if they get the controls crime is not going to subside and Joe Doakes is going to want to know why. So they are now laying the groundwork that will give them an excuse for the controls not doing the job the public has been lead to believe they will do.

All of this came out in the Sunday paper, under the byline of Merriman Smith, the senior reporter at the White House, who is generally considered to have the closest inside line to President Johnson's thinking.

"In the furor over legislative gun control, a large section of the public has come to feel that with such laws will come an end to crime, violence and assassination," Smith wrote. "The law enforcement specialists can foresee a period of public outcry when violent crime falls to disappear or subside dramatically. Blame for a continued high rate of crime, then would fall on those responsible for enforcing new gun laws."

"Federal officials feel that what is urgently needed is support of anti-gun laws with a program of public education; inspiration of individual responsibility as opposed to leaving everything to the government," White explained.

Get that business about "a program of public education and inspiration of individual responsibility." Most of us have been lead to believe parents, schools and lawmen have been conducting efforts to educate people to oppose crime for centuries.

Of course, what we need is a believable government that has the will and power to crack down on criminals and responsibly face the problems of our nation's people.

The Courier is not opposed to meaningful gun laws. We can see no reason for anyone to have the right to buy anything but sporting arms. Things like bazookas and automatic weapons should not be sold to the public.

Nor do we oppose shutting off the mail order sale of firearms. Obviously, it is hard for a mail order firm to determine if a customer's several hundred miles away is a criminal or emotionally unstable.

We feel there will be adequate control of firearms if only sporting guns are sold and only through local retail outlets, which keep a record of who buys what and do not sell to persons who might predictably be dangerous.

Our concern with controls that require individuals to register all guns and apply for permits to buy a shotgun or hunting rifle is that when lawmen and politicians see that these rules are not being complied with by criminals, they will frantically resort to more extreme measures.

Smith's story tells us politicians know gun laws won't solve the problem, and everyone knows "public education" hasn't done it. So our fears of a massive witch hunt to deprive all citizens of their firearms appears more realistic than ever.

A second judge

ADDITION of a second judge to the 13th Judicial Circuit will be welcomed by many citizens who have had dealings with the Circuit Court in Charlevoix County.

Not only should a second judge make it possible for persons with a grievance to get their day in court, it may also restore a more balanced perspective to our view of justice.

Too often in recent years we have heard old citizens complain that they do not feel they can get a fair shake in court. Instead, they contend, the courts are allowing, and even encouraging, attorneys for plaintiff and defendant to collaborate outside the courtroom in reaching a compromise, rather than debating the legal issues in open court.

This "justice of expediency" has left many Charlevoix area persons frustrated and convinced our court system is a closed shop, operated for the convenience and profit of its practitioners, instead of the public.

Hopefully, the second judgeship will attract several qualified candidates, giving the public a chance to make a real choice.

However, it must be remembered that having a second judge to relieve the load on Judge Charles Brown will not eliminate the political reality that if judges want to hold down opposition when they come up for re-election they must keep attorneys content.

Repulsive comedy

IT MAY BE fortunate that most northern country residents do not take the Michigan Legislature seriously. If they did the frustration of trying to make sense of its inability to reason would drive them to madness or rebellion.

Certainly, no reasonable citizen could consider a body of high paid legislators who cannot agree on rules for orderly elections or court reorganization as serious politicians.

Despite an income tax and bigger salaries for themselves, the legislators have left us in a quagmire of confusion as to when or whether we elect township officials and county supervisors this year.

The legislature has had four years to revamp our lower court system as required by the 1964 constitution. Yet they were haggling about it right to the last minute.

Issue after issue comes out the same. Trifling things that a squad of Explorer Scouts could thrash out to a common sense answer repeatedly confound the boys in Lansing. The only solution for citizens seems to be to view it as an expensive, repulsive comedy.

by Jim Fitzgerald

A Massachusetts man has been buried beneath the 18th green at his favorite golf course. I guess he was dead.

If I am ever buried on a golf course it will be because I committed suicide there and no one would drag my body away.

For instance, I slam my usual drive smack down the center, at least 20 feet. "That won't hurt you," says Harvey. "What he means is that loosey drive won't kill me. It will just leave me maimed and limping. It is the looniest shot I've ever seen and I'm sure just like it might get me on the green which is that pretty patch of grass with the hole in it. I've never been there before."

Another thing Harvey often says is, "You had the distance." This means I should have hit the ball 200 yards and, by golly, I did hit it 200 yards. The trouble is I should have hit it north but I hit it south.

The reverse of this comes when Harvey says, "You hit it right on line." This means I poked that ball straight at the hole, 350 yards away. But the ball only 20 yards.

And at the end of the game as he takes my money, Harvey explains that

Sae of Brown Property recalls much from past

Charlevoix, today, is growing and prospering. Despite her close attachment to Charlevoix's past, Mrs. Courter welcomes the changes and hopes Dodge can revitalize sales of Dodge, which has slipped in recent years as the Brown Motor Co.'s automobile business concentrated nearly its entire effort in Detroit.

After the death last January of Floyd Brown, one of the area's best-known businessmen and a former champion-ship Charlevoix athlete, the remaining members of the family, Laura, Mrs. Edna (Brown) Dancer and Lewis, apparently decided, after much soul-searching and wrestling with deep-rooted sentiment, to sell the Charlevoix end of the business because the Petokey dealership was much more active and Lewis's ties are centered in Petokey.

Many people have known the change was coming for some time. And Mrs. Courter says, it will be a good thing for Charlevoix to have an aggressive young businessman on the job for Dodge.

It may be hard to think in emotional or sentimental terms about anything as large and diffusely used as the Brown Building.

But for Mrs. Laura Brown Courter the huge building is 40 years of personal memories of her family, business and Charlevoix.

Though born on Dixon Ave., Mrs. Courter spent nearly all of her childhood and all but 20 years of her adult life living and working in the building. Selling it to Ken Dewey was not an easy decision.

In fact, leaving the building would have been impossible. So she has a lifetime lease on her apartment overlooking Round Lake.

She has been running the building, which looks almost as contemporary today as it did when completed in 1917, for about 25 years. Little things like making faucets, door locks, lights and until recently, shoveling coal in the stoker two or three times a night, have been her daily concern for more than two decades.

More than that, though, the corners of what are now a storeroom are filled with memories of childhood with her two brothers and two sisters. She recalls the warmth of the apartment after the day-and-a-half trip back to Charlevoix from Grand Rapids when they picked up a new car for a customer and the business lessons she and her brothers got from their father, Benjamin.

The towns first concrete curbs caught Mrs. Courter unprepared. Her knees still ache from tripping over them.

She speaks of "the privilege of living in Charlevoix" and bemoans the fact that so few people seem to appreciate or even understand the wonder of this privilege. Having been spell-bound by the sunrise behind Round Lake and the moon glimmering on the lake for more than 50 years, Mrs. Courter is sincerely disappointed in the number of people who take Charlevoix for granted.

You could see the flag meant much to this man. As a young priest, he had emigrated to America. He became a true "convert," and was thrilled to pass on his enthusiasm to us natives.

Much later when I myself was a priest, during and after World War II, I became acquainted with many priests and the Negroes. In the last two years we have made more progress in this cause than in the previous hundred. Now, however, one almost despair to see such a warped conception of their liberty as is exhibited in the desecration of our (their) flag. If the flag is not a symbol waving in the distance and proudly coming in their direction! It meant the ar-gular red light had malfunctioned and stayed red for several hours.

"Now, as to paying income tax, I think it is equally reprehensible for people to pay taxes simply from blind obedience. I recognize the necessity for compulsion in a democracy in requiring all to contribute to the support of governmental functions. However, perhaps one thing that distinguishes a democratic society from a totalitarian state is the essential voluntary nature of taxation."

"... something about taxation and representation. Hopefully, I'm not too far off base in my persistent assumption that we, in effect, tax ourselves."

"Your remarks must be interpreted that U.S. Citizens pay taxes either out of fear of getting caught or out of sheep-like conformity."

"I would like to envision a United States where people pay their taxes because they recognize the importance of the functions performed by government and acknowledged of the importance of taxpaying in a democratic state."

"In proper deference to one of the shrewdest of a nation's sheep I suppose I should apologize for thinking I should take issue with you. You are obviously more aware than I of the docility of a law-abiding American who pay taxes because we stop for traffic lights on untraveled streets."

"By the way, how many Americans actually collected a million dollars or more in 1966 and how many of them paid more than twenty percent of their gross income in income taxes?"

"Sincerely, Daniel R. Brown."

"P.S. Try going through that red light next time if there's no traffic. You'll glow inside."

Oh, bury me not under that 18th green writes it down -- in ink.

I don't know what bugs me worst, his fountain pen or the money changer he wears on his belt.

But back to the Massachusetts man, I want to kidding, his name was Edward Faber and his ashes are buried beneath the 18th green at Stow Acres Country Club in Stow, Mass. Cremation was necessary because the greens-keeper didn't want lumps in the green.

Faber requested the unusual burial site in his will. "He just said this was so much and this is what he really wanted," his widow explained.

Owners of the club are enthusiastic about the idea they plan to erect a plaque to mark the grave. The possibilities do appear promising. Why not a grave or two at every green, and perhaps some by the traps and rough? A guy's mind attending a funeral and if he could chip up onto the burying surface. Of course, the undertaker would have to add a few services -- such as caddies for pallbearers -- but I'm sure all such problems could be solved with a minimum of knowing.

So long as slow funerals allow fast funerals to play through.

Onward and Upward.

New judge to relieve Court workload

The election is non-partisan for a six-year term. If more than two candidates file, the two who get the most votes in the August 6 primary will be on the November general election ballot.

County supervisors and the bar associations in all four of Judge Brown's counties asked the Legislature to approve addition of a second judge to the circuit to relieve Brown's workload.

Citizens in Charlevoix County have for several years expressed frustration with the slowness of the court procedure, which is the result of the overloaded Judge Brown has had to handle on his own.

The increased caseload in just one year is evidenced by the number of new cases started in the first quarter (January through March) of 1967 compared to this year. Last year 22 new Circuit Court cases were started in the first three months of the year. This year the number more than doubled to 45.

During the first quarter of this year, figures compiled by County Clerk Pete Babin show, Judge Brown disposed of 39 Charlevoix County cases and spent 141 days in court in the county. The judge started the new year with 133 Charlevoix County cases pending and ended the first quarter with 129 pending.

This is 52 more cases than were pending at the end of the first quarter last year, when 77 Charlevoix County cases were unsettled by the end of March.

Below estimates that Circuit Court work in Charlevoix County has increased nearly one-third since 1965. And it just keeps going up.

Speculation among some area attorneys is that the circuit's second judge will probably be elected from Traverse City. Grand Traverse County has more population than any two other counties in the Circuit.

No Ellsworth supervisor candidate

For the first time in the county's history a village will have a supervisor on the county board. In the past township supervisors have represented the villages within their township on the county board. Under the reorganization plan, Mancelona, with a population of 1,411, will have its own supervisor.

Eight candidates have filed for supervisor in six of the county's nine new supervisor districts. None have filed from District 1—Mancelona Township District 2—Central Lake; or District 4—Elk Rapids; or District 5—Elk Rapids.

Candidates who have filed are Merrill Fox, a Democrat, in District 3 (Clark Lake and Milton townships); Fred C. Bailey and William E. Robinson, both Republicans, in District 2 (Forest Home and Helena townships); Gerald Smith, a Republican, in District 6 (Kearney and Custer townships); Daniel Krusey, a Democrat, in District 7 (Echo, Jorina, Ham, I. Conway, a Republican, in District 8 (Star and rural Mancelona townships); and George Curry and Robert W. Sanders, both Republicans, in District 9 (the Village of Mancelona).

Church fund drive raises $30,000

Sixty men of the First Congregational Church raised an estimated $30,000 in pledges Sunday toward construction of an addition to the church, according to William Peck, chairman of the drive.

The success of last Sunday's drive will make it possible for construction to begin in the fall, leaving approximately $35,000 yet to be pledged. The additions expected to cost $65,000.

The addition will include a Fellowship Hall suitable for larger meetings, dinners and wedding receptions as well as Sunday school classes and choir rehearsals. It will be built between the church and parsonage.

Those leading the teams for the fund drive were Peck, Glenn Kenney, David Fowler, Tom Hanna, Dr. John Lignell, James Hiller, Ed Shanahan, Kil Carson and Prosecutor challenged

ELLSWORTH — Antrim County Prosecuting Attorney Harry T. Cook has been challenged for his office in the upcoming election. Scott S. Power, of Forest Home Township, filed his petition last week to oppose Cook's re-election bid.

There will be no other races for Antrim County offices, the proposed candidates are: Robert Curtis, sheriff; Laura M. Dunson, county clerk; Phyllis Mills, treasurer; and Annabelle Fraser, registrar of deeds.

Klevorn runs for judgeship

Robert Klevorn, Bayne City attorney, is a candidate for the second Circuit Judgeship in the 13th Judicial District.

If elected, Klevorn will serve with Judge Charles Brown in the circuit, which includes Charlevoix, Antrim, Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties.

City Attorney of East Jordan and Village Attorney for Bayne Falls, Klevorn is secretary of the Bayne City school board, a past president of the Charlevoix Bar Association and a member of the Michigan State Bar Crime Prevention Committee.

He and his wife Thelma have three children, all except Kevin, 10, are grown.

Council ok's bids for paving

City Council Monday accepted low bids on street paving and sewer curbs, costing a total of $10,000. Tri-City Concrete's low bid of $2.94 for curbing was approved. The low bid of eight cents a square yard for prime sealcoat came from Northland Construct Co. of Petoskey. Sealcoat is planned on portions of Park, Grant, Clinton, Mason, Sherman, Upright, Cherry and Antrim. Curbs are planned on portions of Antrim, Burnside and Meach.

Council also discussed a tentative request from a citizen to buy a 25-foot wide-tye-owned lot on Robinson St. The request was taken under study when Councilman Jerry Whitney urged that it not be sold unless it is put up for bid. Approval was also given to hire United Associates, engineers, to make a preliminary study of expanding boat launching facilities at the foot of Perry Ave. Cost will be $1,500. The state is expected to pay at least 50% of the cost.

Thank You

THE NEW CITY Hall siren looks like a two-stage rocket as it towers above assistant fire chief Al Bergmann.

45 year-old siren retires

Charlevoix's 45-year-old City Hall siren is being retired. The siren, which since 1923 has called firemen out of bed and announced the noon hour and curfew, is being replaced with a shiny, three-voiced yellow one.

The new siren, which with stand is taller than a man, meets civil defense criteria and is what is called a three-signal air raid siren-which, apparently, means it has three tones.

Firemen report the old siren was not loud enough to reach all areas of town. For instance, if a northwest wind is blowing, volunteer firemen on the North side sometimes didn't hear the siren.

Not only that, the old siren has been having old-age problems for several years.

The records show volunteer firemen bought the siren in 1923 and took about two years to pay for it. Money was raised by sponsoring dances.

The three-tone feature of the new siren will be used only for fires. When the noon and curfew hours are blown there will be a single-tone wail.

Fuel tanker burns on hiway

ONLY THE CHARRED skeleton of this 4,400 gallon fuel tanker remained Tuesday morning after it caught fire on the shoulder of US-31 just north of Lexaite, about six miles north of Charlevoix, Monday evening. Here the truck is coated with foam, used to suffocate chemical fires. The Charlevoix fire department

Township action sought to control air pollution

The Charlevoix Township Board will be asked to begin enforcing its air pollution ordinance at its meeting Monday, July 8, according to township trustee Oscar Stroud.

Stroud said he expects a delegation of citizens to join him next Monday in asking the board to take action to control air pollution from Medusa.

Complaints about dust and noise from Medusa have become more frequent in the last two weeks. Some of them are coming from summer residents on the north side of town and in the township. Others, Stroud pointed out, are coming from year-round residents who were willing to wait until now before demanding action.

"We wanted to make sure they had plenty of time to get the plant running right," Stroud said. "They've had plenty of time now."

Bernard Bloomfield, director of the air pollution division of the State Health Dept., should have machinery stationed here to keep daily records of pollution from Medusa, Mikulski said.

Henry Krom, plant manager, has refused for several months to publicly discuss the air pollution problem.

In addition to the township board action which Stroud reports will be asked for Monday evening, a group of summer residents and year-round residents are planning to organize within the next week to ten days. This group's preliminary plan is reported to be to seek court action against the State Health Dept. for not monitoring and controlling air pollution to apply political pressure in landing to get some action.

If Monday's Township Board meeting produced results, persons organizing the new group report they may hold off on their plan.

At least one Charlevoix car dealer has reported what he suspects is cement dust on new cars parked outdoors. There have been frequent complaints from homeowners, especially north of town, about dust on houses and clothes hung outdoors.

A rumor started last week that Medusa is considering building a dock on Lake Charlevoix. Mrs. Ross Bergmann, township treasurer, reports the rumor is due to a misunderstanding caused by state land appraisers.

The appraisers, she said, were sent to Charlevoix to determine if township board members would allow rezoning of the property Medusa owns on Lake Charlevoix's north to American Mould for a dock. Medusa has a railroad right-of-way from its plant to the Lake Charlevoix site.

The current company, Mrs. Bergmann explained, had based its valuation for the area of its right-of-way crossed by the re-zoned section of M-66 on the alleged fact that it would someday use the strip of land to transport cement to a dock on Lake Charlevoix. Due to the new road a railroad overpass or underpass would allegedly have been required to reach the tentative dock site, thus raising the cost.

However, Mrs. Bergmann and other township board members, reportedly told the appraisers they would not consider allowing Medusa to construct a dock on Lake Charlevoix.

For other boats the bridge will open every half hour--on the hour and half-hour--for six minutes to let all boats pass. Most pleasure boats can pass under the bridge by lowering their antennas.

Any boater who blows a distress signal will be allowed to pass immediately. Luedke said, he warned, though, that abuse of this can lead to prosecution.

The bridge opening regulations were proposed by city officials to the State highway department. The highway department asked for the Coast Guard's approval.

The highway department has promised to post notice of the regulations in the channel and clearly post clearance, in feet, under the bridge.

called on the East Jordan department and Coast Guard for help. A Coast Guard helicopter flew more foam in from Traverse City. Doug MacDougall, Charlevoix, who was driving the truck reported the trailer containing gas broke loose and skidded into the ditch. Firemen fought the blaze for more than two hours.

CHARLEVOIX'S NEW Dodge dealer, Ken Depew, right, has taken over the dealership from Brown Motors, which has been under the same family ownership for 70 years. Lewis Brown, left and Mrs. Laura Courter, center, turned the reins over to Depew last week.

Republicans battle in 4 county areas

Primary election contests between Republicans have developed in four of Charlevoix County's 15 County Board of Supervisors Districts. The deadline for filing petitions was 4 p.m. Tuesday, July 2.

A three-way primary contest for the new $18,000 a year District judge's job also developed at the filing deadline. Seeking the nomination are John Michael of Charlevoix and Richard Smith and John Murphy of Petoskey. One will be eliminated in the primary.

In Ellsworth, Hans DeYoung, a Republican, is the only candidate for Antrim County Supervisor from Blanks Township (District 1).

The only Charlevoix city primary contest on the August 6 ballot will be between Kim Carson and Don Meggison in District 13, which is Charlevoix's First Ward and part of the Second Ward.

Candidates from other districts who are unopposed are: Delbert Ingalls, a Republican, in District 1 (South Arm Township); Clyde Cunningham, a Republican, in District 2 (Marion, Norwood, St. James and Peeline townships); Charles Leist, a Democrat, and Ted L. Davis, a Republican in District 4 (Bay and Evangeline townships); Ralph Richardson, a Republican and John Vredman, a Democrat in District 5 (Eveline and Wilson townships); William Carson, a Republican in District 7 (Boyer Falls, Boyne Valley and Hudson); Barney Mielstein, a Republican, in District 9 (East Jordan's First and Second Wards); Forbie Tompkins, Harry Tompkins and John Kuwajski, all Boyne City Republicans, in Districts 10, 11 and 12 respectively.

Charlevoix's home building boom appears to be slowing down in the city, but keeping pace in the township.

So far this year the city has issued building permits for five new houses. At this time last year permits had been issued for 14 new houses, according to the City Manager's office. Permits for 22 new homes were issued during all of 1967.

In Charlevoix Township, Supervisor Clarence Rabach reports he has issued permits so far this year for six new homes.

The last two permits issued by the city were to James Rieck for two frame houses, having an estimated value of $10,500 each, on Garfield between Sherman and Grant.

Roy Bennett heads youth bid for jobs

Mr. G. William C. Bennett, head of a statewide effort through service clubs to help find summer employment for youth, reports the effort has been supported by the Kwanza Club of Charlevoix.

"I am very pleased," he said, "to have the assistance of this club and to know that the contact person is Roy Bennett."

Club members have pledged to locate job opportunities, inform applicants about any openings, and serve as "coaches" to provide job guidance on an individual basis. Wherever possible, the club will cooperate with other local summer job placement efforts.

June 1968 marks a half century of operation in Charlevoix for Palace Theatre. The Palace was opened in 1918 by Lou Moon, and has been under the same family ownership - management since. Mr. Moon passed away in 1925 and his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Moon, carried on the business until 1962.

In March 1945 fire destroyed the building. It was not until August of 1945 when the theatre could be reopened.

Mr. and Mrs. L.H. Taylor, present owner and manager, takes great pride in operating the Palace Theatre to the highest standards of the motion picture business. Each season the theatre is closed briefly for necessary maintenance, which makes the Palace outstanding as one of the cleanest theatre operations anywhere.

One of the biggest problems in continuing the policy of courtesy, cleanliness and service is constantly increasing costs, Taylor said. He added, however, that due to good taste of the people of Charlevoix he had decided to increase the cost of adult admissions to $1.25, rather than cut the quality of the Palace Theatre operation. Children ticket prices will remain unchanged.

Library Notes

Recent fiction available at the library covers a wide range of reader tastes. For example:

The Business of Loving, by Geoffrey Smith. This is the story of two young men, one a cynic, the other a romantic, of their friendship and their involvement with the same girl. No cynic himself, the author finds life is an extraordinary adventure, in which grief, pain and frustration are offset by joy, happiness and the exhilarating daily miracles of existence.

Downstairs at Ramsey's, by James Leitch. Two young men, both victims of unhappy marriages, find love in the same woman.

Concert program

Following is the program for tonight's (Wednesday's) City Band concert in East Park at 8:30 p.m. The public is invited. There is no charge.

places, occupy the downstairs of an attractive house owned by Victor Ramsey, a retired film actor. To Ramsey's amazement, he discovers that the ventilators in his upstairs apartment enable him to hear every sound from below. This is Ramsey's account of the events that take place in the downstairs apartment, during a year in which the current lady friend of one of the tenants is killed in a freeway accident and the two young men find themselves the guardians of her fourteen-year-old daughter, who comes to live with them. Told with wit and humor, it is not just a comedy, but a bitter-sweet and often funny love story, involving real people as revealed through some excellent dialogue.

The Impossible Proof, by Hans Erich Nossack. Told in the form of a transcript of a murder trial, it is actually a fiction of a mare imagination, during an inhuman night. In his nightmarish imaginings he tries to explain the apparent disappearance of his wife. As a defendant means to be cooperative during the interrogation, but he finds himself constantly misinterpreted. In the course of his imaginary arguments with the court, and his efforts to give truthful testimony, the truth about his seven-year marriage is gradually revealed to him and he comes to terms with himself.

Listen Ruben Fontaoez, by Jay Neugeboren. Harry Meyer, a New York school teacher, alienated Jew, aging widower, long ago forsook the risks of commitment and love, and resigned himself to lonely retirement, until his loneliness was shattered by violence. His accidental capture of a killer sets off a chain reaction that involves him in strange kinships with Danny Santini, whose child has been murdered, with three wild runaway boys who take refuge in his apartment and initiate him into their peculiar cult practices. Through these relationships and his growing love for Ruben, one of the three boys, he is forced to give up the detachment on which he had prided himself and become involved in the comic madness, the brutality, the very terrors of existence as seen within the West Side rooming-house ghetto, to the halls of a crowded Brooklyn school, the dark alleys of Harlem and the fierce classrooms of Chasidic Jews.

DeFord, by David Shields. DeFord, a carpenter who has spent his life on the ranches and in the lumber camps of the West, is summoned back East by the death of his last remaining relative. He represents the American myth, direct, self-sufficient and alone, until he suffers a heart attack in New York City, symbol of man's greed and corruption. Without friends or sufficient money, he is forced to take a room on the Bowery, where he is robbed and threatened with death. Thus forced to seek help and understanding for those who live on the Bowery, his own life is given new meaning by his ability to salvage the life of a young painter.

Girl Scout leaders will change uniforms

The 600,000 adult members of Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. will adopt a new uniform late this summer.

The familiar two-piece dress Girl Scout leaders have worn for some 30 years is to be replaced by an up-to-date dress. More than 26 million girls and women have belonged to Girl Scouts since the organization was founded in 1912, and the Girl Scout style was generally in line with the era--though bloomers were frowned upon in the early days. Times have changed.

The Girl Scout leader's new look is modest, comfortable and durable... but most important, it is a visible sign that Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. are constantly changing and moving to meet the needs of every era of American youth.

Since Abraham

Down through the centuries God has called upon man to do great things. This is as true today as it was in the time of Abraham. A cowboy herding his cattle is as apt to get the summons to lead his people as did Moses while tending his sheep on the mountain. God speaks to man through man's own mind. His calls today are just as real as was his summons to Moses to lead his people out of bondage. Many get the call to become ministers and leaders of the Church but do not heed it because it was not made in a startling manner, such as a genie appearing in a sudden flash of flame.

Brought on by our shortcomings, slaves to our own mistakes, self-pity and fears the need for good leaders in our churches is as evident today as it was in the time of Moses.

It is obvious that we all need the Church and that the Church needs men.

Kids to test skill in city track meet

The seventh annual City Recreation Department's track and field meet is scheduled for July 11 and 12 in the afternoon at the high school track.

A look at the records set in the past at the two day event indicate there are still records standing that were set back in 1962, the initial year of the program.

As in the past, two divisions will be run off for both boys and girls. The Junior division is for youngsters 8 through 10 years of age, with the senior division for those 11 through 13. The boys are slated to start things off Thursday, the 11th, with the girls scheduled for the following afternoon.

Ribbons will again be awarded the first three finishers in the 25 and 75 yard dash, 60 yard hurdles, broad jump, high jump, softball throw, and the 440 yard relay.

play their final game to the Peatball tournament. Mold squeaked by with a narrow 2-1 win to hand the Morwell gang their second loss of the tourney.

It wasn't a well played game. In fact errors made the difference as the winners capitalized on two first inning Morwell miscues for both their runs.

Ken Boss led off with a single, an error moved him along, and he scored as Ken Stalch's fly ball eluded the outfielder. Don Korbelt then scored Stalch with the winning run with a line single to right. Bob Klooster's first inning home run was the only scoring mustered off winning pitcher Nate Boss, although he was in trouble often, due mostly to shoddy fielding by his mates.

The tournament did prove that Mold once again must be reckoned with if anyone has high aspirations. Morwell lost two narrow one-run contests, to the defending champions and have to be a little threat if Bob Klooster stays healthy. Medusa has good hitting and must

Playground program starts on Saturday

The start of a new Saturday morning playground program, Adventure Club, sponsored by the City Recreation department, begins July 6.

All local children are eligible for the Adventure Club, which is being held every Saturday morning at the Depot beach.

Youngsters from 6 to 10 are to meet from 9 to 10:30 and those 11 to 14 will meet from 10:30 until noon. The program, which is supervised by Paul Bour of Central Michigan University, will include organized games, stunts and tumbling, story hours and other outdoor activities.

Morwell got a brief scare from the Air Force before winning 4-3. The losers had the winning run at the plate when the contest ended. Bob Klooster's home run was the big blow for the winners.

SLOOPER LEAGUE
In SLOOPER action Freedmans scored in extra innings to defeat rival American Mold 8-7. Junior Supernaw and Floyd Genia had two hits for the winners. The Coast Guard won a forfeit from the Medicine Chest in the only other game scheduled.

Medusa used three Lake Construction errors in the bottom of the seventh for four runs and a 5-5 win over the blue and gold. The losers threw the game away when Medusa combined three hits

PEANUT LEAGUE

The PEANUT LEAGUE action saw one of the best contests played in the history of the league as the Astros and Tigers battled through 12 innings before the Astros won 5-3. The winners scored without benefit of a hit as four walks and a hit batsman accounted for the three twelfth inning runs. Lee Simpson had two hits for the winners.

The Braves were sent into extra innings when the Cubs rallied for seven runs in their final turn at bat, but were able to score in the eighth for a 10-10 Braves win.

The Tigers scored the first second win with an 7-2 win over the Dodgers. Dan Green had a double and played well in the field for the winners.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Novaks continued to lead the JUNIOR LEAGUE as they beat Deyoungs in impressive fashion, 7-2.

Rain rained out three nights of play and games will be rescheduled for a later date.

Sharon Nielsen participated in the Annual Honors Band Clinic at Ferris State College, Big Rapids, June 24 through 26. Students attending the clinic join with the Ferris Band at the graduation program held on the 16. Sharon will enter the School of Commerce at Ferris College in September. Attending the graduation program and dinner were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nielsen.

Several members of the Ole Oshkosh family from Detroit spent last week in their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Alexander and daughter, Diane, Susan, and Mary, Mary Carol Nielsen, and Debbie Barlett and Katherine Lieberman of Charlevoix enjoyed a trip to the Soo and Tahquamenon Falls, the occasion being Diane's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tabor returned to their home at Morrison Lake after spending several days with their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Nielsen.

Madame, Cheryl Serck has returned to Little Traverse Hospital as a surgical patient. Her many friends extend their very best wishes.

Mrs. Burl Walker is attending Summer School in East Lansing.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Davis and daughter, Monica, of Antrim, Mich., are spending several weeks in the recently remodeled house of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Scott, known as the Ferry House.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Summers and family were guests of friends in Custer, Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Marilee Scott, of Nashville, Michigan, were guests at the home of their son and daughter-in-law.

Mrs. and Barbara Scott and also two nephews of Cleveland, Ohio are guests this week.

We were happy to have some of our friends from Sequoyia with us again this Sunday morning at our eleven o'clock service.

I have been receiving the new apartments several times and calling them the Wagon Apartments, which were built by Wagon, but they are the "Buckdo Apartments," and Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Carson are the caretakers. Sorry.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cooper and family are busy moving from the Eric Arthur house to their new home, which Mrs. Parsons has been busy building for them.

I really got quite a chuckle from the rumor in the paper about the late Martha Ayers of Charlevoix. Yes, I remember her well and her miserly ways. At the time, 1918, I was a clerk in my uncle, A.E. Mason's dry goods store when Martha came in one day and the other clerks ran to the back of the store.

But, you know me, I walked up and asked to help her. Well, she wanted one eighth of a yard of lavender voile to put at the neck of a blouse. So I started to measure it and she said "Now, Missle be sure and give me good measurement so I will have enough." Well I must have because she came in soon after with the "waist" as we called them then, on.

And I have a pair of 11th Buttoned Kid leather shoes with Cuban heels and turned up toes that have the most wonderful squeak when you walk. I have worn them to several dances, also a bright Red Paisley Kimono that Martha must have prized for she never had worn it. But my biggest prize of Martha's are Gilding Platform Rockers of Maple with the original factory tag and the directions to grease them with tallow or some other lubricant to keep them from squeaking. Yes, Martha was quite a character and now I am wondering if the future reporters will write something about her life and maybe some day, well, you know, I am sure, you will all need a chuckle or two to get through these trying times that are facing us today.

Mr. and Mrs. George Schiff returned to their home in Warren, Indiana after spending several days with Pete and Mary Bennett.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Keating of Detroit are spending several weeks in their cottage.

The Kaffee Klatch given by the Ladies Fellowship last Monday at the home of Mrs. N.C. Christensen was very well attended and all baked goods were sold. The total proceeds were $60 and we wish to thank everyone who worked and donated to this, and also those who attended.

Sharon Nielsen and Yvonne Mitchell were in Big Rapids Monday and Tuesday for orientation at Ferris State College where they will continue their education.

The Sunday morning Church Service was in charge of the Youth Fellowship, with Kelly Smith and Susan Saunders giving the sermon "The Golden Rule," and the Choral Anthem, "An Evening Prayer," by the Junior Choir. We wish to commend them for this service.

Mrs. Lydia Orvis has returned home after spending two weeks with relatives in Finland.

Don't expect miracles

The Conservation Dept.'s recent survey of fish populations and water conditions in Ellsworth Lake, St. Clair Lake and others in the Chain of Lakes is a timely reminder of the vastness of the state's fishery program.

Many people in Charlevoix are, understandably, inclined to think in terms of the Great Lakes when they discuss the department's fish management efforts. But the fact is the state has thousands of small inland lakes, such as those in Ellsworth, which offer many hours of recreational opportunity to Michigan families.

Ellsworth area residents and fishermen should be cautioned, however, not to expect the survey to result in a miraculous improvement in fishing. Quite likely, the department will find the fish population in most of the lakes in healthy condition and the lakes are supporting as many fish as they can reasonably be expected to.

More optimistically, the survey may reveal factors about water conditions (such as oxygen count) which will aid fishermen in locating and patching fish.

Persons who would like to see the Conservation Dept. do something dramatic to restore the lakes to their former glory, once more, are asking for too much. The Chain of Lakes Association will have to take it on itself to spearhead an effort to develop more effective sewage collection and treatment from cottages and homes on the lake shores and, perhaps, stock some fish.

During the Venetian Festival a Venetian Queen will be picked from a field of girls representing other communities and Miss Charlevoix.

This not only adds prestige to the Venetian Queen title and attracts outside attention to the contest, it also gives Miss Charlevoix's crown more year-round glitter. The committee hopes this will lead to more financial support for Miss Charlevoix.

Unless the committee works miracles, there will be some rough edges on this year's first attempt at the new format. But we're sure, ragged edges or not, Charlevoixians are going to enjoy it.

This year, all area girls are being invited to compete for the title of Miss Charlevoix, a new honor. A hopefully, glamorous pro - Venetian Festival program will be staged to select and crown Miss Charlevoix on July 13. The winner will represent Charlevoix in other festivals around the state throughout the summer and winter.

New subdivision fills major void

JIM RICHEY's plan to develop 33-home subdivision of houses in the $16,000 price range appears to be a long-awaited breakthrough.

Critics who react with fears that the lots are not large enough (62 to 70 feet), that "factory built" homes are not of desirable quality or that all of the homes, being basically the same, is somehow deflating are not being realistic and may be acting out of prejudice based on hearsay.

The reality is that Charlevoix seems to badly need new homes in the price range Richey expects to offer. As he says, many families have been left out of the housing market because the only new housing available has generally been relatively expensive custom-built homes on equally expensive lots.

A community cannot bypass the needs of the majority of its citizens and maintain balanced growth. A middle-income family should have as much opportunity to spend its earnings on a new home as a family with higher income.

Though no one at the Courier is personally qualified to judge the quality of home construction and materials, the fact that Richey's "factory built" almost "instant up" homes meet all federal and state building recommendations should convince us they are not flimsy. As with automobiles, it seems reasonable that production line manufacturing of houses should result in high, uniform quality at a considerable savings.

As for the lot sizes, they do meet all of the city's requirements.

Westdale, as Richey pointed out, will considerably upgrade the southwest sector of town. Until now, the only solution to that area of town's rundown condition appeared to be an urban renewal or public housing project. All citizens should be grateful if the improvement can be made with private funds, instead of tax money.

Why, if this type housing has been needed hasn't it been available until now? The answer is lack of low-downpayment financing.

Thanks to progressive policies at Charlevoix banks, and a unique plan which allows buyers to earn part of their downpayment, Charlevoix families now appear to have the same home-owning opportunities downstate as have enjoyed for years.

Needless to say, patriotism has varying shades of meaning in our conglomerate society, which some of our governmental leaders claim is a "jerk" society. If American society is sick then the whole world is sick and patriotism tainted with psychotic overtones in every land.

Robert Kennedy's assassin is alleged to be an alien from a totally different culture who apparently felt Kennedy's death was the one solution to his own country's problem of confusion. Upon Federal demand, the honest citizen will, of course, give up his freedom.

These three assassinations, one at least inspired by a "jerk" patriot, have brought to a halt a rash of concern amounting to near panic and the cry is heard: Abolish weapons! A faithful According to Wm. E. Buckley Jr., liberal as the death have been they are no more tragic than the deaths of any three military men serving in southeast Asia, even though the latter have been killed in the line of duty.

Michael's move revives interest

Hampton suit again in politics

by GLEN SHEPPARD

John Michael's candidacy for the just-created Charlevoix-Isle-McCormick District judgeship makes it essential that the Circuit Court promptly settle the conflict of interest charge brought against him by plaintiffs in the Hampton Village suit.

The suit was started by property owners on the edge of Hampton Village in an attempt to stop the city from charging them part of the cost of developing a street into the subdivision. In the suit they claim Michael acted illegally because he was city attorney and had a financial interest in Hampton Village.

Circuit Judge Charles Brown last winter failed to take action on the taxpayers' complaint against the city and Michael. At the time, Brown claimed the suit appeared to be politically timed because one of the plaintiffs, Mrs. Jean Vogler, was running for city council.

This, then, appeared like a reasonable assumption. However, after more thorough examination, it appears too hasty a conclusion. The suit was filed by a person of former president, John F. Kennedy.

The man, James Earl Ray, who allegedly shot down Dr. Martin Luther King, is said to have a criminal record and to date there is no known reason for his having committed the deed.

would come up in court. They had been trying for months to get it into court. Had their attorneys acted according to their wishes it would have been settled long before election time.

Now, due to the court's failure to settle the charge, it definitely is a matter of immediate concern to voters. Again, the plaintiffs can in no way be blamed for this. They certainly had to control over the legislature's decision to create a district judgeship here over Michael's decision to seek the seat.

Michael, it can be assumed, is the most eager to get the matter cleared up well ahead of the August 6 primary election.

Adding to the confusion is the un-election, until the matter is officially disposed of by the court or Attorney General, voters will naturally have doubts.

The long delay in getting a court decision and the mysterious absence of several documents can only sharpen voters' doubts.

Last February city officials allegedly requested a formal Attorney General's decision on the conflict charge. It was promised that this decision would be made public. Certainly, that decision, if actually asked for, should have been rendered by now.

However, in making these judgments we must hope voters will overcome their growing cynicism about politics and decaying respect for our legal and court system.

While it is agreed that the morality of a nation cannot be controlled by legislation, still our legislators and law enforcement agencies are responsible for what they are accomplishing. The sum total of NOTHING!

More firearms laws cannot stop assassinations while "killing" is an ultimate solution to political and social problems remains in the minds of sordid criminals as well as potential criminals.

More civil rights laws can be added to the list. First drafted in 1866, which even then banned racial discrimination, but racial discrimination will be with us a young and still unbalanced generation learns that there is only one race of people on the face of the globe—the human race!

United Fund sets record '67 goal

The Charlevoix Community Chests 1968 campaign will get underway in August, with a goal of $16,515, the largest in history.

Chest drive chairman Thomas G. LaBlance announced the 1968 goal this week. It is up nearly $2,000 over last year's goal of $14,670.

Mrs. Don J. Anders, executive secretary, pointed out, however, that area residents and business donated $16,612 last year, nearly $2,000 more than the goal and slightly more than this year's goal.

Fisherman's Island 'natural' area eyed

Preserving the Fisherman's Island area as a "natural area" if the state agrees to buy it has been proposed by state forester Jack Lockwood.

Lockwood said he is adding his recommendation that the Lake Michigan shoreline area be left in its natural state to his original proposal last month that the Conservation Dept. purchase the property. No state action has been taken on the suggested purchase and probably won't be for several months.

"This is one of our last chances to preserve a relatively unspoiled, but readily accessible, example of Lake Michigan's most scenic shoreline for the enjoyment of nature lovers," Lockwood said.

His suggestion to the Conservation Dept. officials is that all access to the beach and island in the region near the island be limited to persons walking. The main road, which ends at Inwood Creek, would remain open. Feeder roads would be closed to vehicles, including motorcycles and beach buggies.

No facilities would be built in the "natural area," however use by audiobooks, rockhounds, backpackers, campers, students, photographers, hunters, fishermen and others who can enjoy the outdoors in the raw would be encouraged.

"The idea," Lockwood said, "is to leave the island and nearby beach areas just as they are—forever—so that people who really want to enjoy nature can, for instance, where else can someone walk and wade 2 miles, or so, and spread a sleeping bag for the night on a wilderness island? No where, that I know of."

THE blackened area in this map is the Lake Michigan shoreline area forester Jack Lockwood is proposing the state purchase and preserve as a "natural area." The shaded area is property now owned by the state. The unshaded area is Clipper View subdivision. Fisherman's Island is about halfway down the shoreline.

The long years of dormancy for the old North Side (or Washington) School on the corner of Burns and Petoskey Ave. may be drawing to a close.

Mike Estok of Chicago, owner of the property for the past five years, is finally free to build the motel he bought the site for.

Estok has a valid city building permit to put up the motel. He had a permit for five years and has renewed it every two years, according to the City Manager's office.

Construction, however, could not start because he had an agreement with Bob Nowakowski—to whom he sold the Capitol five years ago—that he would not go into competition with him for five years, Estok said.

Ask law be enforced Medusa dust cited

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Clarence Rabach Monday night promised the township will take action to control Medusa air pollution if state officials continue to neglect the job.

Rabach told a group of 30 city and township citizens he would make an effort to get state air pollution chief Bernard Blomquist on the job in Charlevoix. If Blomquist does not respond immediately, Rabach said he will call a special meeting of the township board to consider hiring a private firm to scientifically monitor pollution from Medusa.

Most of the citizens at the meeting repeatedly expressed dissatisfaction with the township's failure to put its air pollution ordinance into operation.

Rabach admitted the township has made no effort to install equipment to monitor dust and other pollutants from the plant, as required by the ordinance. He suggested this was the state's job.

Rabach said the state installed several special air sampling devices before construction of Medusa started to determine the "before Medusa" purity of Charlevoix's air. The instruments were removed after the tests and have never been re-installed, he said.

Upon questioning by Berlage, Rabach said the township appointed an air pollution control board, as required by its ordinance, but the board has never met. Members of the board are Dr. John Lignell, William Paddock, Vane Smith and Dr. Robert Lipke. Dr. Lipke of Gaylord is the township's health officer and is director of the four-county District Health Dept.

Dr. Lipke's office has attempted, but been unable, to get state officials to install continuous air pollution monitoring equipment in Charlevoix. Dr. Lipke told the Courier.

Ralph Dorn told Rabach private consulting firms can be contracted to install monitoring equipment and make accurate and impartial tests of Charlevoix's air purity.

The township's air quality control code, a copy of which Berlage had with him and repeatedly referred to, authorizes the township to employ a private firm to make the tests.

Cal Gould and Oscar Stroud said they suspect most of the pollution area residents are complaining about comes from Medusa Portland Cement Co. has been directed to reroute trucks bringing shale from Ellsworth to its South Point plant in an effort to stop damage to the Marion Center Rd. (Ellsworth Rd.).

The Charlevoix County Road Commission also requested that Medusa contribute to higher maintenance costs on the main road, made necessary by the trucks.

If the company refuses to cooperate, the Road Commission warned that it could impose weight restrictions on the two roads, which could stop their being used by the shale trucks.

Road Commission chairman Jack Fitzgerald said Medusa has tentatively agreed to reroute the trucks across the Atwood Rd. from Ellsworth and then up US31 to Charlevoix.

an almost microscopically fine dust the company collects as a waste product from its process and then pours on in an open hole. This dust, he said, is six to ten feet deep in the hole where it is dumped and is so fine a child or adult would be in it if he fell in.

Rabach said he contacted Medusa officials about this problem and was told the company was aware of it and with another year, or so, of engineering hoped to solve it.

It was then pointed out Penn-Dixie has been polluting in the Petoskey area for years on the pretext that with a few more months engineering all of its problems will be solved.

Stroud, a township trustee, and several others said they feel Medusa has had plenty of time to solve its problems and should now be forced to live by the ordinance.

Borlage said he contacted South Point plant manager Henry Krebs and was told that, as far as the company is concerned, the plant is not causing pollution.

About a half-dozen summer residents were among the 30 citizens at the meeting. Three members of the City Council arrived at the meeting about 9:15 p.m., coming from a council meeting which adjourned early.

Attorney outlines failure to enforce township law

Charlevoix Attorney Don Berlage wrote the following letter to state and township officials asking for enforcement of air pollution laws.

The letter is in the form of a formal citizen's complaint, which, Berlage explained, should be all that is legally required to obtain a comprehensive investigation of Medusa's air pollution. The letter follows:

"Please consider this to be a complaint by a resident of Charlevoix County alleging violation of the Michigan Air Pollution Act, No. 248 of 1965, and a violation of the Charlevoix Township Air Quality Control Code of 1965.

"Medusa Portland Cement Company, Charlevoix Township, has at many various and sundry times violated both the state and township air pollution control laws, sections of which expressly prohibit air contaminants injurious to life or property and which unreasonably interfere with the enjoyment of life and property. Generally, the air pollution has been such to produce an offensive deposit of dust and dirt resulting in an area soiled border on members of the public in keeping clean their homes and items of personal property, such as automobiles.

"Your specific attention is directed to the period of time on or about June 24, 25 and 26, 1968, at which time there was a widespread discharge of a yellow substance (asthenic silt) which was readily apparent to the eye. One of the effects of this deposit is believed to be a bleaching of convertible tops and pitting of the paint of automobiles.

"There has also been an intermittent but frequently occurring offensive production of noise emanating from the plant.

"It is therefore requested that the Michigan Department of Health and Charlevoix Township, through its Health Officer, make appropriate investigations as authorized and required by law and to take whatever action is necessary as a result of the investigations.

"It is further requested that both agencies, in an attempt to prevent a recurrence of air pollution violations, make the field studies and air samples provided in MSA, Section 14.58 (2) of the State Act and Section 7.03 (B) of the Charlevoix Township Code.

LOOKING RATHER forlorn and lonely, the long unused North Side school building may have a new future.

Library notes

It's hard to imagine anyone who does not enjoy music, when one considers all the ways in which music can be enjoyed. One can perform, compose or just listen to it. One has sufficient talent to perform, there is a multitude of instruments to choose from, in addition to voice, and one's performance may be solo or in a group. For the creative talent, think of the wide range of forms for musical composition. It is the most of us, you are just a listener, there is an almost infinite variety of musical fare for your listening enjoyment. That's why we like to suggest another way to enjoy music. On the theory that the more one knows and understands about music the more one enjoys it, we would like to suggest that summer is the best time to read about music. During the stormy weather last week the lightning struck three large trees, having struck one and followed to the other two splitting the last one nearly in two. From there it went in the ground for ten feet next to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ouderkirk which really shook them up at three o'clock in the morning. All three trees lost so much bark they will have to be removed. It really was a close call for them as the last three which were split could have ruined part of their home.

Unsurpassed in navigational importance are the famous Locke at South St. Marie which unite Lake Superior with the other four Great Lakes.

Hospital rates

Increasing costs have forced the Charlevoix Hospital Board to increase room rates, according to Anne Baumgartner, administrator.

The new rates are $37 daily for a private room, $31.75 for a semi-private room, $25.00 for a patient's room, and $12.50 for a patient's room. The previous rates were $34.50, $28.50 and $12.50.

City sells lot

To a brief meeting Monday evening the City Council approved selling a 25-foot wide city-owned lot on Robinson St. to Mrs. Jesse Newman for $100.

Councilmen said no one else was interested in the small lot, which adjoins other property owned by Mrs. Newman.

A parade a day sets pace at Traverse City festival

By Pat Begrow
This week is a big one for the Traverse Bay Area. For it is the occasion of the National Cherry Festival. This festival is over 40 years old and now comprises a week full of activities.

Both events will close in time for the audience to find a place from which to view the fireworks over Grand Traverse Bay. This magnificent spectacle will begin approximately 10:15 p.m.

The Traverse Bay Area produces 70% of the tart red cherries grown in the United States; and, Traverse Bay cherry growers have pioneered methods of cultivation, harvesting and processing.

At the cherry harvest they really have something to celebrate and celebrate they do in the cherry capital of the North, Traverse City.

For one thing there are four days of a parade. Today, July 10, is the famous Festival of Balloons Parade at nine in the evening. On Thursday, July 11, is the National Cherry Festival Youth Parade, both starting at two o'clock. On Saturday, July 13, at one o'clock is the National Cherry Festival Western Parade followed by the N.C.F. Rodeo.

Aliases

Meet Mr. Anxiety, alias Mr. Fear, alias Mr. Feeling of Insecurity. Regardless of all his aliases he is nothing more or less than Mr. Scarecrow, with a pumpkin for a head. He is the embodiment of all the useless anxieties, fears and hates that haunt man's mind, becoming entrenched in the sub-conscious and making a negative personality of that which should be a glowing positive character. These inhibitions sharply curb the usefulness of one who would otherwise enrich the world in his lifetime.

When one discovers that he is the victim of the negative characteristics he should first work daily to drive the scarecrows from his conscious and sub-conscious mind and replace them with positive characteristics: calm demeanor, courage and love. The Church can be a mighty ally in helping anyone replace the negative with the positive since it has always championed the cause of the individual. It teaches positive lessons from positive texts and can be a source of strength and power to any who call upon and use it through regular attendance.

Action livens in city rec softball leagues

Morwell Steel continued to win the close games, and, as a result, took over the lead in the FASTBALL LEAGUE. They beat Medusa 1-0, and the win was their third narrow victory over the boys in green. Richardson and Doss combined for singles and when an attempted bunt was wildly thrown into right field the only run that Bob Klosser needed was in. Rich Heeres hurried a line three hitter but took the loss.

Earlier in the week Klosser's fifth inning homer powered Morwell by young Lake Construction 5-3. Steve Smith's single was all the hitting the losers could muster while Morwell bats rang up eight hits.

American Mold stayed in the thick of things with the two undefeated teams clashing last night. The results of the Cardinals game is not known but the winner will go into first place.

May widen poverty battle to 12 counties

Expanding the War on Poverty's local front from a four county battlefield to 12 counties is being considered.

The Charlevoix County anti-poverty committee last week approved exploring the possibility of Two-Cap merging with Sevo-Cap and Thunder Cap.

Two-Cap is the four-county anti-poverty agency with headquarters in Petoskey for Charlevoix, Emmet, Cheboygan and Ogemaw counties. Sevo-Cap is the anti-poverty agency for Oshtemo, Ogemaw, and Cass counties.

Perfect at MSU
Each of the three agencies now has a director, who makes approximately $10,000. The merger, reportedly, would eliminate any personnel but would make it possible to cut administration expenses on programs by running them on a broader base.

Two receive
Neil Cross completed his sophomore year at Michigan State University with a perfect 4 record (all-A's) for his last term.

Since going to MSU two years ago, Cross has a 3.20 record. He will be a junior this September and is studying economics, with tentative plans to study law. This summer he is working at the Big Rock information center.

Two receive
Kay L. Davis and John F. Ochs of Charlevoix were among 952 students named to the Dean's Honor List at Ferris State College for the Spring Quarter.

Miss Davis is majoring in Health Sciences and Ochs in Pharmacy.

To be named to the list a student must maintain at least a B average while carrying a full academic load.

Local
Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hamilton have left for Toronto, Canada to attend a Kiwanis Convention. En route some they will go to Rantoul, Illinois to visit their son, Sam and his family and bring their three grandsons, Sammy, Toby and Andy back to Charlevoix. They expect to be gone ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Little from Northfield, Ill., after spending the last two weeks at their summer farm on Lake Charlevoix, left and will return later to spend the remainder of the summer.

Part of Berlage's law career was spent as a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation in San Francisco and New York City. He worked in the criminal law and internal security fields.

One of his important FBI assignments, Berlage said, was investigation in the 1950s of the underground operation of the Communist party in this country. The underground organization, Berlage said, was formed when the Communists, fearing federal prosecution might ban their overt activities, arranged for ten of their leaders to jump bail, drop from sight and attempt to control and direct the party on a clandestine basis.

Born in Cincinnati, Berlage is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati college of law. He also attended the University of Alaska and holds a degree from Miami University in business administration.

An Army veteran and former lieutenant in the Air Force reserves, Berlage continued his interest in flying as a private pilot.

He is a member of the State Bar of Michigan, Emmet-Charlevoix County Bar Association, and the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

Berlage's wife, Barbara, teaches in the Charlevoix schools. They have three sons.

GILL NETS are lifted in Ellsworth Lake by the Conservation Dept. fish survey crew while Roy Rowe, right rear, representing the Chain of Lakes Association looks on. The Association requested the survey and Rowe accompanied the crew to get a better understanding of what was happening.

Oxygen shortage found in Ellsworth's lakes

ELLSWORTH--A week-long Conservation Dept. survey of the Chain-of-Lakes has revealed weaknesses in Ellsworth and St. Clair lakes which have long been suspected by fishermen.

District fish biologist Bob Drummond points out the survey is not completed and it will be sometime next winter before positive conclusions can be reached.

However, Drummond said preliminary indications are that Ellsworth and St. Clair lakes are in some trouble as far as their fish populations go, while Six Mile and intermediate lakes, especially, are in good shape.

The survey is only partially completed. The first phase included gill netting in the entire Chain of Lakes and sampling of the oxygen level at various depths.

The next step is electro-fishing. This entails using a shocking device to stun fish, which are then counted and released unharmed. Drummond is not sure if the electro-fishing will be done in the next few weeks or next fall. The time depends on when the equipment is available.

Gill netting, Drummond said, is an inconclusive form of surveying because bass stay away from the nets and are almost impossible to capture. The electric shocking technique is the only comprehensive way to check a lake's bass population.

On Lake St. Clair the gill nets took 12 pike, the biggest being 29 inches; six perch; one bass; five bluegills; a garpike and several rock bass and bullheads.

The survey on Ellsworth Lake was even more disappointing. Only two pike, the biggest 24 inches; 24 perch; two bluegills and several suckers and a crappie were netted.

It was a completely different story on Six Mile Lake, where the nets took 32 pike, the biggest 27 inches; 237 perch; six largemouth bass; one musky; five bluegills and numerous other panfish and rough fish.

Scale samples and other information taken from fish captured in the nets will be examined in department laboratories this winter so more conclusive facts can be compiled, especially regarding fish age and the possibility of stunting.

The gill nets used were 125 feet long. Each net had several sizes of mesh in it to aid in taking various size fish. Several nets were set in each lake.

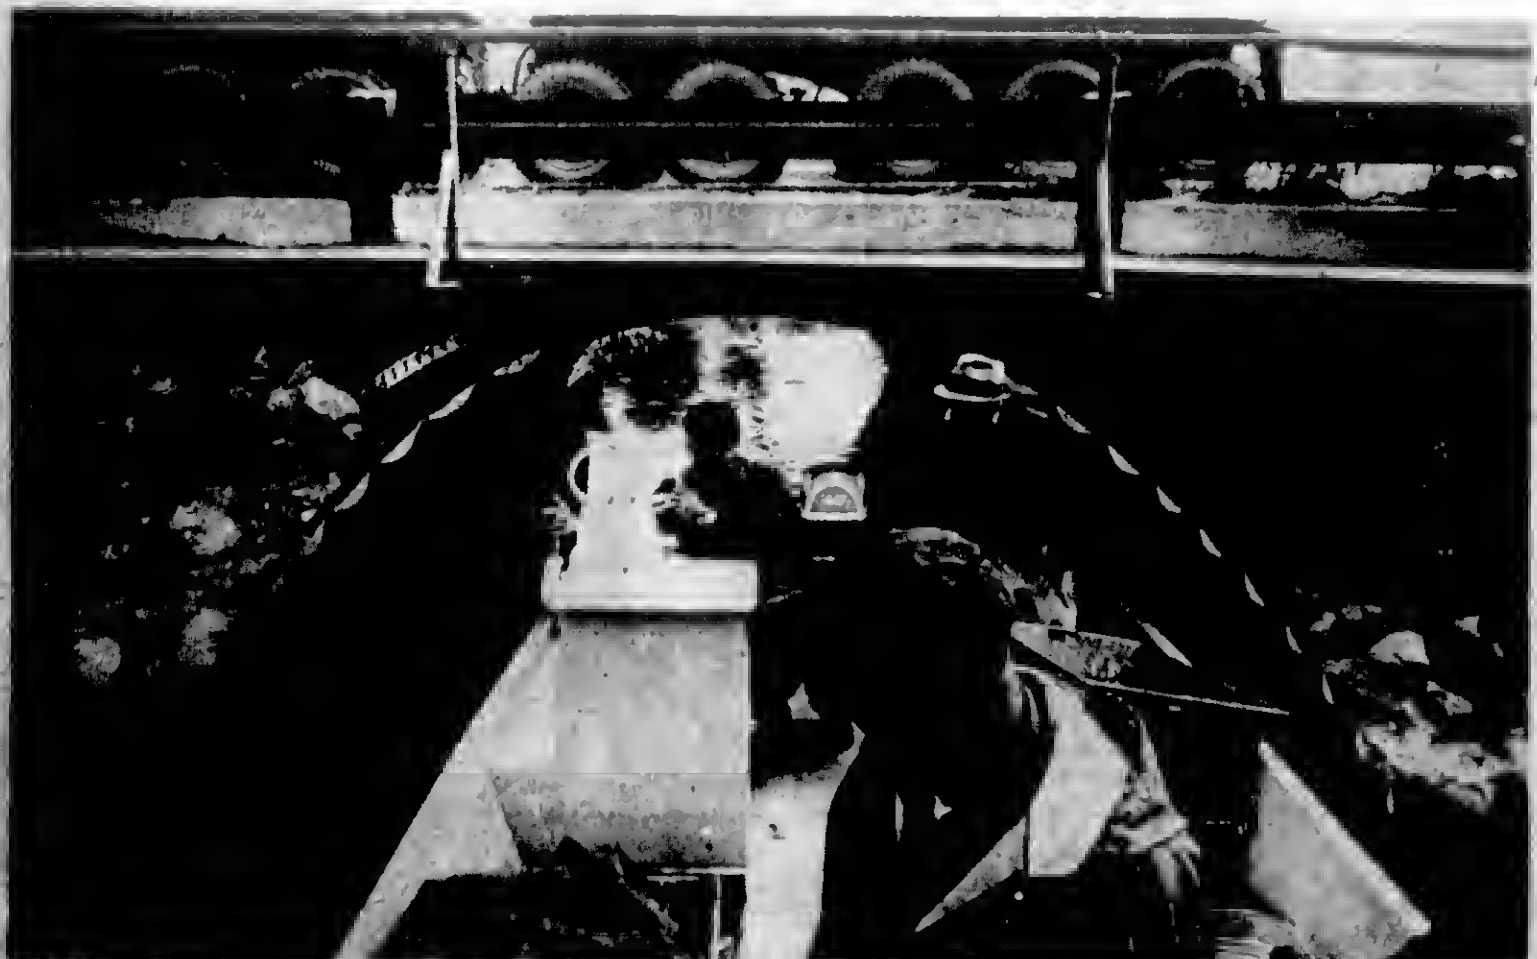

Drummond said he knows of nothing that can be done about the lack of oxygen. He pointed out it does not diminish the opportunity for largemouth bass and other warm water species, such as pike, D.C., and panfish, to thrive because they live in the warmer surface waters where there is adequate oxygen.

He theorizes that cold water species, such as trout, walleye, musky and whitefish which might be in Ellsworth and St. Clair in the winter move into intermediate and Six Mile lakes during the summer.

The most discouraging discovery--though not unexpected--was the extremely low oxygen level in Ellsworth and St. Clair lakes. Below 15 and 20 feet, the survey crew found, there is not enough oxygen for fish to live.

Drummond explained this is due to a natural overturn of the lakes' water which captures cold water at lower depths because warm water on top holds it there. Plant life, speeded up by fertilization, devours what oxygen there is in the lower levels and without a continuous overturn the oxygen is not replenished.

During spring, fall and winter he said, ever-changing temperatures keep the water moving from top to bottom and plant growth slows down or stops, revitalizing the oxygen.

EVERYBODY DUCKS as the Conservation Dept.'s fish survey boat goes through the tube between St. Clair and Ellsworth Lakes. An electro-shocking survey will be taken soon to complete the study of the Chain-of-Lakes fish population.

AEC checks radiation in Charlevoix area

A small white and tan airplane will fly low over the Charlevoix area during the next few weeks.

The twin-engine airplane flying at about 300 feet is part of a continuing national aerial survey program conducted by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), which makes these survey flights to determine normal background radiation levels. Locally, the airplane will fly over an area roughly bounded by Good Hart on the north; East Jordan on the south; and Bay View on the east.

Harbor Springs, Petoskey, Boyne City, and Charlevoix are among other cities and towns in the survey area.

These routine measurements help determine present levels of radiation which come from low-level radioactivity in surface soils and rocks, and which result from normal atomic energy operations. Knowing today's normal radiation will make it possible to compare any future variation which might result either from nuclear testing by any nation or from other sources.

Since 1958 more than 25 sites including San Francisco, Los Angeles, Washington, D.C., and Cincinnati, Ohio, have been surveyed.

The present survey will include five locations in the Midwest: Morris, Illinois, La Crosse, Wisconsin; Ellsworth, Minnesota; Charlevoix, and the Quad Cities, Illinois, regions.

The survey will be conducted for the AEC by EC&G, Inc., of Las Vegas, Nevada. A special waiver of civil air regulations has been obtained from the Federal Aviation Agency to permit the low-level flights. All flights will be made in July and early August during daylight hours and as weather conditions permit.

THIS FLOWING well is now in commission at Bells Bay State Forest Campground. The 140-foot deep well was dug by R.O. Pittman, with the city and township sharing the cost. The Conservation Dept. has agreed to build a concrete base around it and fill the area with gravel to eliminate the mud problem. The well is about midway between the original campsite, which already had a well, and the last beach campsite further down the lake.

Charlevoix County Has Something for Everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula. It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1889. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan--Mt. Pisgah--lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

THE EASTERN half of the county is dominated by Lake Charlevoix, a 13-mile long body of water with the city of Charlevoix at its eastern extremity and Boyne City at the western end. The city of East Jordan lies at the end of the lake's South Arm, a narrow, picturesque body of water with many beautiful summer homes along its shores.

Other Lake Charlevoix communities include Ironton, where auto ferry service is offered across the South Arm, Hortow Bay, famed for its Ernest Hemingway lore, and Advance, home of Top O' Michigan Rural Electric plant.

SEPARATED from Lake Michigan by Round Lake (within the city of Charlevoix) and the upper and lower Pine River Channels, Lake Charlevoix is a mecca for boating enthusiasts. There is usually a fair breeze for sailing, without the high seas which sometimes make Lake Michigan precarious for small craft.

Fishermen also find Lake Charlevoix much to their liking. Scrappy rainbow trout are to be found in increasing numbers in her crystal waters, and excellent small mouth bass catches are reported regularly. (Two years ago, an eight-pounder was taken near the C&O railroad bridge just off Charlevoix.)

The village of Ironton is noted for its perch run, and although the number of perch in the lake is down substantially from what it was a few years ago, there are still some good size yellow-bellies taken summer and winter near Ironton.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

In addition, there are many fine public and private camping areas in the county, including Young State Park on the Boyne City Road between Charlevoix and Boyne City, Whiting Park on the south shore of the lake and Belle Bay state campground on the Lake Michigan shore four miles south of Charlevoix.

The federal government recently has earmarked $109,950 for the development of 170 new campsites at Young State Park, the money to be matched by the state.

Young State Park offers modern sanitary and shower facilities, and electricity is available. Visitors to Whiting Park and Belle Bay "rough it."

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs--the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club--are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county--Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanches), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters

One-day scenic, historic tour

Charlevoix resorters seeking a momentary change of pace will find an abundance of Michigan's beauty and history within a comfortable one-day round-trip drive of their cottage.

One of the most interesting "Charlevoix-and-back" auto tours recommended by the Automobile Club of Michigan is the shoreline route to Mackinaw City, across the Big Mac bridge and on to Sault Ste. Marie.

The way the Auto Club charted it out for Playtime, this is a 260 mile round trip. The Club's tour department reports this is generally about the mileage that can be covered comfortably in one day.

You'll want to take your time so you won't miss the many unmarked scenic overlooks that suddenly pop into view as you round a curve on the road between Harbor Springs and Cross Village. Good restaurants and picnic grounds abound along the route.

The first lap of your trip will take you up the shore 27 miles to Harbor Springs, where you will want to make a special point of visiting Chief Blackbird's home, which is now a museum. Harbor's yacht basin will also interest you, as will the Holy Childhood Indian Mission School.

Heading out of Harbor Springs up the shore, the next 19 miles to Cross Village are among the most beautiful in Michigan. Attractions include the Indian church under the hill at Good Hart, the Great Lake's Indian Museum and huge cross marking Father Marquette's landing in Cross Village.

From Cross Village it is 23 more scenic miles to Mackinaw City and a breathtaking view of the Mackinac Bridge and historic tour of Fort Michilimackinac.

The five-mile drive across the bridge to St. Ignace will give you a panoramic view of the Straits of Mackinac and you will marvel at the construction and engineering genius that went into Mighty Mac.

Historic St. Ignace boasts numerous attractions, including Castle Rock, Fort Algonquin Museum, Marquette Park and an Indian burial ground.

If your day isn't complete enough at this point, it is 55 miles to Sault Ste. Marie, the third oldest continuous white settlement in North America. There's a viewing stand where you can enjoy shipwatching at the Soo Locks, the busiest in the world. Or you can take a two-hour sightseeing boat cruise of the locks, take the Soo Tour Train, visit historic Diorama of the Soo and Brady Park.

For the return trip you may want to take US-31 out of Mackinaw City, instead of retracing your route up the

Petoskey Stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone—the state stone of Michigan.

Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful—if you have a sharp eye—many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Belis Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

'Spider' Dune Rides Offer Thrills Aplenty

ATWOOD -- Sand dune rides--long a popular form of recreation in western Michigan--are available at this Antrim County community 12 miles south of Charlevoix.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider Sand Dune Rides," offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian campground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

ESSEMBERG says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour.

"Kids simply refuse to get out, and teenagers start begging for money so they can ride again."

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Charlevoix is located 604 feet above sea level and has an average temperature of 45 degrees. The average summer temperature is 68.2 degrees, based on records of the past 22 years.

How About a Boat Ride?

IRONTON -- How about a short boat ride?

For 35 cents, you, your car and your family can take a five-minute boat ride across the mouth of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Ferry docks are located at Ironton, about seven miles south east of Charlevoix on M-66, and at the tip of the high, rolling peninsula which separates Lake Charlevoix from the South Arm.

THE FERRY runs from early spring until late December, or whenever ice conditions make the passage impossible.

The ferry ride makes a scenic expedition of the trip to or from East Jordan and Boyne City to Charlevoix.

Shuffleboard Courts Open

Shuffleboard fans will be able to practice their sport during their Charlevoix County vacation.

Courts are located in East Park and at the Lake Michigan Beach in Charlevoix, at East Jordan's Tourist Park and at Veteran's Memorial Park in Boyne City.

This summer, Charlevoix Senior Citizens are taking up the sport, with matches every Wednesday afternoon at East Park.

Beaver Land Boom Brings New Activity to Scenic Isle

ST. JAMES -- Beaver Island is undergoing its most dramatic change since King Strang and his Mormons settled there in the 1840's.

The 54-square mile island is the site of the largest land development project in the Midwest. Recreational Properties Inc., affiliated with American Central Land Co. of Lansing, is handling the 1,000-acre development called Port St. James along Font Lake and the northwest portion of the island along Donegal Bay.

Along with developing the land and building between 40 and 50 miles of roads to service the area, the corporation offers many extras to persons who buy lots. Among other things these persons find a swimming pool, riding stable with eight horses and a golf course at their disposal.

Hundreds of persons, including many from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, have already bought lots within the development.

MUCH OF the attraction to buyers lies in the seclusion the island offers. As an escape from commercialism, the island affords a slow, peaceful way of life. Although the development is geared to this seclusion, both Donegal Bay and Font Lake are only minutes away from both the airport and St. James Harbor.

This seclusion is coupled with the excellent hunting and fishing areas to make the island a perfect vacation spot. Miles of untouched forests where deer, wild turkeys, grouse and rabbits abound are equaled only by the clear, blue fishing waters where smallmouth bass, bluegills, and pike are pulled up by the thousands every year. Add still another attraction -- the miles of natural sandy beaches.

Golf Courses Lure Fans

Golfing is a favorite pastime among visitors and year-round residents alike. Here are some of the golf courses you might like to try:

Beaver Lodge Golf and Country Club, 9 holes, Beaver Island.

Miniature Golf Course, Harbor Hills, Beaver Island. Ye Nynne Olde Holes, Ironton Ferry Rd., Boyne City. Boyne Mountain Golf Course, 9 holes, Boyne Falls. Golf Driving Range, Walloon Lake.

Belvedere Golf Course, 18 holes, Charlevoix. Charlevoix Golf Club, 9 holes, Petoskey Avenue.

Music Delights

Music lovers will find plenty to please their ear in Charlevoix County.

The Charlevoix City Band has scheduled concerts in the park every Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. in East Park. Composed of local musicians, summer visitors and college students home for the holidays, the band is directed by C. A. Odmark.

Boyne City band concerts also are scheduled Wednesday evenings at 8 in Memorial Park. Dancing follows each concert.

BAY VIEW Assembly just north of Petoskey has concerts scheduled every Sunday evening, with other musical events planned on weekday evenings throughout the summer.

Of course, the National Music Camp is located only a short distance south of Traverse City, with many fine concerts planned for the summer.

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our Fascinating Bridge

CHARLEVOIX --- No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over Pine River Channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained by the State Highway Department, the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries U.S. 31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

IT IS RAISED whenever a vessel to high for clearance must pass between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. Three blasts of a boat's whistle is the signal that a boat operator wants the bridge opened. The bridge tender responds in kind and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals to let her pass.

THE FIRST STEP in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches. Gates are dropped across the highway and the sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done, the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

TRAFFIC pileups sometimes occur on each side of the bridge, particularly during the busy summer season.

This is why the State Highway Department recently reiterated its instructions to the tender not to open the bridge if the only object on a boat too high for passage is a collapsible radio antenna.

Sometimes in the past, operators of "puddle jumpers" have whistled for the bridge to open, just to let their passengers see the bridge in motion. Fortunately for motorists, the Highway Department has turned thumbs down on such shenanigans.

In summer there is sufficient channel traffic to let everyone see the bridge in motion, even if he is in Charlevoix only for an hour or two.

LOCATED on the former Loeb estate two miles southeast of Charlevoix on M-66, Castle Van Haver's superb medieval architecture (left) takes the visitor on a fantastic journey into the past.

Ruins Beckon Visitors to Castle Van Haver

CHARLEVOIX -- A visit to Castle Van Haver is almost like stepping backward 1,300 years into the era of fabled King Arthur and his knights of the roundtable.

Located on a broad plain overlooking Lake Charlevoix, Castle Van Haver opened last summer and is one of Charlevoix's newest tourist attractions.

THE MAGNIFICENT stone building on the site were built in 1917 by the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Loeb and were used initially as the farm buildings on their sprawling dairy ranch.

After 40 years of disuse, the property was purchased by John Van Haver, a Muskegon foundryman with a dream of turning the ruins into an art foundry and craft center with a genuine European flavor.

THE GROUNDS and buildings were cleared of debris, brush, trees and abandoned equipment. Roofs, windows, doors and floors were repaired and electricity, plumbing and heating units were installed.

Lawns were added, sidewalks and driveways laid out, and studios, workshops and craft shops set up.

The restoration and the establishment of the art foundry has taken seven years.

Plenty of campgrounds are located in the Charlevoix area.

The largest is Young's State Park located on Lake Charlevoix off the Boyne City Road. Across the lake is Whiting Park, located on the Ironston Ferry Road near Advance.

SOUTH of Charlevoix is Bell's Bay park where about 20 rustic campsites are located along the Lake Michigan shore. The campground offers "box toilets," but no electricity is available.

The East Jordan Harbor Trailer and Tourist Park is located on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix at East Jordan.

Other private campgrounds also are open during the summer.

FOR PICNICKING, there's Kennedy Park on U.S. 31 N. about five miles from Charlevoix on the Lake Michigan shore. BOYNE CITY'S Chamber of Commerce is located in this rustic log cabin. Beside the cabin is a billboard advertising Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival which draws thousands of persons in early May.

Boyne City offers much for summer, winter fun

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Roble Industrial Courier Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills. In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has several area parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on 11's 536 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m., hand concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Indian Past Lives Again at Greensky Hill Church

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearly stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ojibwa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area. Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

THE FIRST structure was a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 26 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud. THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, in spite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Green-

A-Plant Tours Popular

CHARLEVOIX--One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumer's Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant.

Situated five miles northeast of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the Information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,000 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone.

Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m., seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-motion picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Belaire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

Learn water skiing

Dry land technique can take the guesswork out of learning how to water ski. It's a quick way to get the "feel" of the skis and gain self-confidence, says Tom Dorwin, a former national champion and now an advisor to Evinrude Motors.

The dry land technique is a simplified form of instruction that can be given anywhere, even in your livingroom. All you need is an instructor, a pair of water skis and a tow line.

Dorwin suggests that you try a few deep knee bends to limber up. They also help to sharpen your sense of balance and coordination. When putting on the skis adjust the binding by sliding the heel piece forward. The fit should be snug, but comfortable. If you're near water, wet your feet and the skis. Your feet will slip into the bindings easier.

Grasp the tow line handle and have your instructor lower you down into a sitting position. Stretch your arms out straight, knees between your elbows. If done correctly the tow line handle will be just in front of your knees.

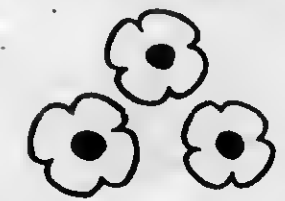

Have your instructor pull on the tow line, slowly raising you to a standing position. Don't try and stand up. Let the instructor exert the pulling force. This simulates the manner in which you will be pulled to the surface when actually water skiing. Repeat this procedure several times.

Once you are in the water, review the dry land technique. Check the position of your knees and the tow line handle. If you've learned your lesson, you'll be flashing across the water on your first try.

LEARNING TO water ski with the dry land technique can be safe and fast.

Some Tips on Beating the Heat

Is the heat wearing you down?

It's hot in most of the United States in mid-summer. In the desert and in the south, it's even hotter, but by August it's often hot even in the mountains.

Regardless of whether one blames the heat or the humidity, it's still hot.

THERE'S nothing you can do about the outside temperature. Unless you're fortunate enough to have an air conditioned office or shop, home and auto, there's nothing much you can do about it inside either.

But there are some things you can do to be more comfortable—things that can help you beat the heat.

STAY OUT of the sun as much as possible, especially during the middle of the day when the rays are hottest. Wear light, loose clothing, the less the better. The ladies have an edge over the men in this respect. Drink more liquids than usual, but take extra salt only on your physician's advice, particularly if you have liver or kidney trouble or a heart condition. Take a shower or dip in the pool once or twice a day to cool off. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Eat your regular diet and don't go overboard on cold cuts and salads unless you like them anyway.

GET UP EARLY in the morning to do your heavy work on the lawn or garden. Or work at dusk in the evening, but try to avoid heavy exertion during the hottest hours of the day. You need exercise in the summer as well as in the winter, but don't overdo it, especially on extra hot days. Don't overdo physical exertion, whether at work or play. The more relaxed outdoor life of the summer months has many advantages to compensate for the heat. Stay relaxed and use common sense, and you can beat the heat—at least somewhat.

Dancers Welcome

Square dancing is a popular pastime in Charlevoix County for year 'round residents and visitors alike.

In Boyne City, square dances are held the second and fourth Wednesday at the American Legion Hall.

School considers charge students for textbooks

The school board Monday took under study a recommendation that it charge students for textbooks.

The proposal, made by Supt. Rex Milligan and high school principal Ray Carr, touched off an immediate protest from board Treasurer Dale Boss. "I feel we are clear out in orbit to even consider this," Boss said.

Other board member, while not as firm in their opposition, said they want to consider the matter further.

Milligan, in making the recommendation, said the school experiences considerably more damage to its textbooks -- which are free to students -- than schools which charge for books. He suggested some kind of token fee, such as $1 for each hard-cover textbook.

Carr said Charlevoix is the first Michigan school he has worked in where textbooks are free and that students are far more careless in caring for their books here than in other schools. He added that charging students for books would also help cover their cost.

Board President Glenn Kenney asked Carr if he were suggesting the charge to encourage responsible use of textbooks or cover the cost.

Carr said both.

Kenney replied that he feels the students should be taught to take care of property and respect it, he asked if this cannot be accomplished through Carr's efforts to better enforce payment for damage to books turned in at the end of the year.

Carr said that last year the high school started keeping better tabs on book condition, resulting in many students being charged considerable amounts for damage at the end of the school year.

Boss said Charlevoix taxpayers have been willing to give the school the operating funds it asked for and he does not think it would be right to pull a head tax on books. Carr admitted that overcrowded lockers in the high school cause some of the book damage. This is expected to be corrected when junior high students move into the present elementary school in 1969.

Turning to other matters Monday, Milligan revealed the cafeteria ended the school year with a $1,297 deficit. Last year it had an $800 deficit. The board agreed to transfer the necessary amount from the general fund to the cafeteria fund to make up the deficit.

The deficit is due to increasing labor and food costs, and decreasing state aid support for hot lunch programs, Milligan explained.

Dr. Lytle Ance, 304 Clinton St., asked that the board do something about dirt that covers the sidewalk beside the elementary school playground and the condition of the tennis courts. Kenney promised the problem would be given top priority.

The board approved borrowing up to $50,000 August 1 to cover summer payroll and bills. Milligan pointed out many teachers collect their pay on a year-round, instead of nine months, basis.

Because the district is collecting less state aid, due to increased valuation, Milligan said that to avoid borrowing it would have to end the school year with a balance of $120,000 to see it through to January and February when property taxes start coming in.

The board also discussed an accident insurance program for students and athletes.

Charles Diehl's bid of $2,701 for the school's 1968 Pontiac station wagon was accepted. It was the only bid. The school paid less than $3,000 for the car.

Lakes group to hear Schweigert

ELLSWORTH -- State Sen. Tom Schweigert will be the featured speaker at the Upper Intermediate Chain of Lakes Association meeting in the Community Hall Wednesday, July 24.

The meeting, which is open to the public, begins at 7 p.m. Admission is free.

Other speakers will be Howard Palmer, field representative of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs and a Conservation Dept. fisheries biologist. Palmer will show a film and speak on the advantages of the Association joining the MUCC. The biologist will explain information discovered during the recent fish survey on the lakes.

The Association is an organization to maintain natural resources, pleasures, beauty and property values; to solve such problems as water pollution, water accidents, and promote greater community spirit and cooperation.

Refreshments will be served at the end of the meeting.

MISS CHARLEVOIX, second from right, Mary Beth Goodenough with her court, from left, Erin Arvilla, Lois Barta, Sharon Krueger, Arlene Supernaw, Queen Mary Beth and Kathy Wood. Miss Goodenough won the title Saturday evening at a program in the high school attended by about 80 people. Miss Supernaw as named Miss Congentiality. Miss Krueger and Miss Arvilla tied for runnerup. Miss Goodenough will now compete for the Venetian Queen title against reigning beauties from other towns. Judges were Gregg Smith Sr., Mrs. Albert Schaller and Mrs. Keith Carey.

Judge won't dismiss suit

Circuit Judge Charles Brown last week refused to dismiss the citizens suit to stop the city from levying a special assessment for construction of a road into Hampton Village.

City Attorney John Michael presented the city's motion that the suit be dismissed. Michael said the judge had indicated on Feb. 14, 1968 that the plaintiffs, in effect, had no suit because the special assessment has not been levied. The plaintiffs are not asking that the road not be built.

The suit was started last year by citizens who own property next to Hampton Village and who will pay the special assessment if it is levied. They charge the special assessment is unjust.

At the February 14 hearing Michael argued that the plaintiffs have not been damaged until the special assessment is levied, at which time they should start court action if they feel unjustly taxed.

At the February 14 hearing Brown angrily threatened to find the Courier's editor in contempt of court for reporting and commenting on the case before it was settled.

At last week's hearing on the motion to dismiss, he again attacked the Courier. This time for a column on the editorial page of the July 3, 1968 Courier, which commented on the charges contained in the suit that attorney John Michael has a conflict of interest in the development of Hampton Village.

"I have about as much respect for newspapers as this newspaper has for me," Brown said last week. He further declared he is "not going to be forced to hear this case ahead of 800 others."

Community mourns death of Suomela

Funeral services for Uno A. Suomela, 60, who died Saturday, July 13, 1968, will be held at the Bethany Lutheran Church at 2 p.m. Wednesday, July 17. The Rev. Duane E. Imig will officiate. Burial will be in Brookside cemetery.

Mr. Suomela died late Saturday afternoon at the Charlevoix hospital a short time after being admitted by ambulance.

Born at Ishpeming Sept. 12, 1907, Mr. Suomela was graduated from the Ishpeming high school and Northern Michigan University. He taught in Flint before coming here in 1944 and has taught here since then except for two years at Saginaw Steering Gear Co. as senior design engineer. He taught industrial education at the Charlevoix high school and was instrumental in building the program to its present status. In recent years he has devoted his time to teaching drafting, art and math. He was instrumental in organizing the Top O'Michigan Industrial Education Society and was its secretary-treasurer for several years. For two and a half years he taught in the East Jordan area Tool and Die Training program which was established to provide skilled labor for area industrial plants.

He was a member of the Bethany Lutheran Church, the National Education Association, the Michigan Education Association and the Michigan Industrial Education Society. He served on many committees of the latter organization. He had been active in the local Boy Scout program and for many years was a member of the Boy Scout and Cub Scout committees serving as merit and award badge chairman during that time. Surviving are his wife, the former Mrs. Unga, whom he married in Detroit in 1930; two sons, Neil R. of Grosse Pointe Woods and Dale A. of Flint, five grandchildren; his mother, Mrs. August Suomela of Marquette and five sisters, Mrs. Betty Vickery of Detroit, Mrs. Louis Olesak of Charlevoix, Mrs. Arthur Bernthal of Roscommon, Mrs. Harry Nelson of Marquette and Mrs. Velko Roos of Neenah.

The family will meet friends at the Winchester Funeral Home from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. Monday evening. Memorial contributions may be made to the Bethany Lutheran Church.

Savings Bank raises capital

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank's board of directors voted Friday, July 12, to increase the bank's capital stock by increasing the undivided surplus by 50% from $100,000 to $150,000, making the total capital and surplus now $250,000, according to Jerry Redeker, vice president.

The move, Redeker said, reflects a profitable first six months operation and is in keeping with the directors' long-range plans of expanded services to the community.

Students seek public involvement in Vietnam debate

Though Charlevoix men are fighting in Vietnam and many Charlevoixians young and old—oppose the war, they have never had a direct opportunity to get involved in the peace movement.

The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, with members in Charlevoix and Petoskey, intends to see that change in the next week by giving local people a chance to listen to and participate in the pros and cons.

The league's effort to involve local people in the debate about U.S. foreign policy centers around five young visitors from three countries; three from the United States, one from Germany and one from Ghana.

The students are spending several weeks in the area as part of a Peace Caravan, sponsored by the League and American Friends Service Committee. Their objective is to talk to as many people as possible about Vietnam and other vital issues.

This Monday they appeared at the Lois Club. Next Monday, July 22, they will be at an open meeting for women in the Charlevoix Library at 1 p.m. All members of local women's groups (clubs, circles, etc.) and individuals are invited to this meeting, according to Mrs. Jean Vogler, who is coordinating the program here.

Following their discussion with women's groups, the students will be available at the library for informal discussion with area young people. This will start around 2:30 p.m. All interested youth are invited.

That evening the Peace Caravanners will address the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club. Tuesday, July 23, 8 p.m. they will hold a Draft Education Night at the Petoskey 4-H center. All adults and adage citizens are welcome. July 26, 8 p.m., they will hold an open meeting in Petoskey's Sheridan school.

Contrary to the popular image of Peace-niks, all five of the Caravanners have haircuts and are neatly dressed. They are not waving placards or urging protest demonstrations. They are asking people to talk and think about the moral questions raised by Vietnam, the draft and poverty and prejudice in our country.

Richard Hudson, 21, a native of New Castle, Ind. and a graduate of DePauw University, is fast to point out he and the others have no special genius or brilliant answers.

They have, however, dedicated many months of their non-study hours to learning about Vietnam and domestic issues. Most people, Hudson points out, do not have the time to go into the issues this thoroughly.

Their objections to the Vietnam war are based on what they consider America's illegal and immoral participation in a civil war.

Arguments that the Vietnamese people would face mass purges if the Communists take over are countered by the fact that nearly one million persons have been killed by the war, the students point out. Further, they question that Communism would be any worse, if as bad, for the Vietnamese than the corrupt dictatorships they have lived under.

Communism, they contend, cannot hold and survive only in countries where the population has been suppressed by its government.

Meeting Communism with violence is playing into the Communists' hands because violence is their specialty, the Caravanners say.

The United States, Hudson points out, has fought Communism with violence for 20 years and we are no nearer peace than we were two decades ago.

The Vietnam war started as a civil war between Communist South Vietnamese and other nationalists against an oppressive, U.S. supported government, Hudson explains. The intervention of U.S. troops in the civil war is what prompted the North Vietnamese to enter, he contends.

The compulsory draft comes under sharp attack from the five students. "You can't fit a draft system into a democracy," Hudson says.

Without the draft, he said, the government could not have gotten the U.S. involved in the Vietnam war. Americans, he said, would not volunteer to fight in this war if given the democratic choice to refuse.

Yet he says many of the young men who would elect not to fight in Vietnam, were they given this legal option and many who are illegally protesting the draft would not object to a "just" war, such as World War II.

The Caravanners feel strongly that the U.S. faces a domestic crisis due to unrest among economically underprivileged classes. These problems, they say, can only be solved by freeing the money going to fight in Vietnam for work at home.

Race discrimination also concerns the group.

Charles Ankras, 22, a Negro student from Ghana has personally experienced this. Ankras says it took him more than four months to find housing in Pittsburgh, where he attends the University of Pittsburgh. Real estate people and property owners, he said, have found numerous ways to get around open housing laws.

Others in the group are Christine McCrory from Rye, N.Y.; Gisa Muschner from Wiesbaden, Germany; and Lewis Perry from Colorado Springs, Colo.

Cycle club takes over area park

Antrim County Sheriff's Department took action during the Fourth of July weekend when a motorcycle club from Detroit moved into Barnes Park in Eastport. The group took over the camp, sleeping on the ground and in tents, deputies report.

There were about 40 young people between the ages 18-30, with three or four girls in the group.

The group reportedly became loud and rowdy Friday night and the Sheriff's department moved to the campground in five cars to keep the situation under control. Rumors were heard about a picnic table being burned, but the Sheriff's department could find no evidence of any such destruction, deputies said.

People in the area were reported alarmed by the rough looking bunch, but rumors that went around proved to be false. The Sheriff's department said.

The second week of this third season started off on Monday morning with it being sunny and warm, in fact, about the hottest day thus far. It was a fine day for the activities and everyone was in a happy mood. Activities ran as usual, and after the afternoon activities were over, Rusty Smith took his cabin 16 on a hike over to Sunn Lake for an overnight. These boys were: Charles Bushman, Scott Bettrick, Paul Dancer, Eric Burnheimer, and Chris Douglas. Our first two Junior Cabins to use the new camping area also left in a state of much excitement as they are the two cabins of our new boys in camp. These boys were: Chris Ryan, Pat Green, John Clarend, Bruce Crawford, Duane McDaniel, and Jamie Sullivan. Cabin 2, with Paul Silver and Rick Osborn took these boys: Mike Healy, David Murray, Chip Douglas, Jimmy Anderson, Larry Webb, and Steve Cullison.

Tuesday was another bright and sunny day and the boys were pleased as the water was great for swimming, and our swim program started off in full swing. We have been having such windy days with high waves that our boys had a hard time swimming, but Tuesday the lake was quiet and the boys really enjoyed the water. Of course, the windy days were great for the sailors, and our fleet of boats were quite a sight on the lake. After the afternoon activities were over, two more Junior Cabins took off for the overnight camping area: Steve Martin and Mike Floor took cabin 4; these boys were: Stewart Comoli, Robert Staley, Jim Chalberg, Kent Bowman, Eddie Gils, and George Henriksson. Cabin 5, with Tom Case and Ken Oakley also took these boys: Steve Edmunds, David Townsend, Mike Flaherty, Bobby Scherer, Carl Werner, Robb Suttrick and Carl Werner. It was a beautiful moonlight night and the boys really enjoyed it. The Junior Section had a Green - Grey Tennis match and the Greens won 5-2. The boys played very well, several of the matches being very close. It was a fine experience for the boys and they learned much. Our tennis team consisted of: Karl Bowman, Ken Mahabatt, Steve Hentschler, Eric Burnheimer, Frank Ballantine, and Curt Hiescoe. Two cabins took off for the camping area for an overnight. Cabin 8, with Mike Reynolds as counselor, took Robb Quinn, Tripp Fraser, Scott Gilmore, Kurt Joseph, Mark Muller, Paul Francisco, and Steve Baker. Cabin 18, John Richardson's boys also took off, these boys being: Tom Hogland, David Sanders, Dick Geddes, Dick Houston, Dick Jewell, Steve Hentschler. In the evening, the Senior Section had a Scavenger Hunt which was really a tough one, the boys having to find objects or information. The GREYS won the point, making the score GREENS 6, GREYS 2.

Friday morning found the riders getting ready for their horseback trip over to Mt. Mead. The men in the riding department, Dick Spader, Joe Cadle, Tom Shelton, Tim Rogers and Mike Kelly had picked out the best riders for this trip. The lucky boys were: Andy Case, Steve Heller, Bill Harbeck, Steve Storms, David Hama, Leigh Merrill, Greg Caskin, Steve Gunning, Bob Phillips, David Townsend, Jim Douglas, Curt Hiescoe, Jeff Nyland, Eric Franzen, Dave Morton, Paul Dancer, Tom Harbeck, Dana Young, Bill Otto, and as the counselor, along John Deane. In the afternoon, the last teams had a practice getting ready for their games with Camp Sea-Cull. On Saturday, in the afternoon, two more cabins left for the campsite area. Jerry Sandy took his cabin, Chuck Zitsman, Mark Oetting, Jeff Nyland, Lance Miller, and Cabin 19, with Ed Robb as counselor. His boys were: Steve Bromley, Ken Mahabatt, Speedy MacDonell, Bill Ramey, Dave McAninch, Doug Mulligan, and Doug Lambin. In the evening, the Intermediate Section had a Scavenger Hunt, which was a "dilly". After an hour of hunting, the winning team was the GREYS, bringing the score to GREENS - 6, GREYS - 6.

Saturday morning the horse trip returned as did Cabin 19 and 9 from their overnight trips. We had a few sprinkles during the night but nothing to dampen the spirits of these overnights. The Senior Section was excited about their dance at Camp Click-A-Bill and boys were getting cleaned up for their big night. At 10 in the morning, we were the guests of Camp Sea-Cull down the lake in baseball games. The Junior team was made up of: Rick Charley, Tony Smith, Bob Scherer, Mike Fisher, Steve Harter, Steve Edmunds, David Swain, Robb Suttrick, Robb Butler, Jim Johnson, Chuck Boyer, Greg Gilmore, Lock McKelvey, Paul Judge. The Senior team was composed of: Bob Camblin, Eric Burnheimer, Fitz Simmons, George Mason, Tim Washburn, Tom Smith, Jim Webb, Chris Douglas, Dave Washburn, Chuck Osborn, Stan Kryder, Jamie Stuart, Tod Soderstrom, John Cooper, Robb Howell, Dick Goldis, Steve Hentschler, Doug Mulligan, Ken Mahabatt, and Speedy MacDonell. When the teams returned, we learned that we lost three games, all by big scores. So our record thus far is 0-3. Not good, but the boys enjoyed playing away from camp. After supper, the Senior Section left for its dance date with a girl's camp Camp Click-A-Bill, and they all looked sharp. At the supper, Ken said that his asking the boys to have like real gentlemen reminded him that when he was a teenager and was ready to go out, he would always ask his grandmother how he looked and she would answer "If you act as well as you look, you will get along very well". The rest of the camp had "NIGHT" when five cabins put on a skit each, boys enjoy these very much, and it does give our budding actors a chance to show their talents. Consumers aids river cleanup

BOYNE CITY—Consumers Power Co. has pitched in to help remove litter from the Boyne River. The power company has directed its free trimming crew to work on the Boyne Clean-Up when it is not occupied with its regular duties. Three Consumers' employees—Royce Delaney, Jim Eggers and Floyd Peck—launched the project last week. They fished everything from bags of garbage to a chamber pot from the stream.

The Boyne Clean-Up was initiated by the VAW Local to make, but it is the persons that we need. The young man who helped last year in transporting the queens and court to the annual affair, handled the float at the East Jordan parade also. By the way, they too received big applause at both East Jordan and Traverse City. We have other talent and parade material here. What has happened to it? When I can, if there is room, I park my car on the hill on Antrim Street opposite the office. The other day after work I went to get the car and I noticed sort of a flow like substance downgraded, not pay too much attention until I got into the car and the seat was a note "Your transmission fluid seems to be looking for your car. We are thinking you need to know this before driving off." Signed - a passer-by. After a humid day, so to speak, that I just ended at work, finding this

The new District Court will replace all justices of the peace in both counties. To be effective the court will require a seasoned trial lawyer experienced in criminal law for its judge. These qualifications, his proven record of accomplishment and his reputation for integrity make him the logical man for the office. His election will assure maintenance of high standards of impartial justice, law and order in this District.

In the afternoon, we had a GREEN-GREY WATERPOLO match. The Junior boys were getting cleaned up for their big night. The Junior team was made up of: Rick Charley, Tony Smith, Bob Scherer, Mike Fisher, Steve Harter, Steve Edmunds, David Swain, Robb Suttrick, Robb Butler, Jim Johnson, Chuck Boyer, Greg Gilmore, Lock McKelvey, Paul Judge. The Senior team was composed of: Bob Camblin, Eric Burnheimer, Fitz Simmons, George Mason, Tim Washburn, Tom Smith, Jim Webb, Chris Douglas, Dave Washburn, Chuck Osborn, Stan Kryder, Jamie Stuart, Tod Soderstrom, John Cooper, Robb Howell, Dick Goldis, Steve Hentschler, Doug Mulligan, Ken Mahabatt, and Speedy MacDonell. When the teams returned, we learned that we lost three games, all by big scores. So our record thus far is 0-3. Not good, but the boys enjoyed playing away from camp. Admitted to Grandvue recently were: Mrs. Minnie DeWitt of Boyne Falls on July 2, Mrs. Wendolene Crowell of East Jordan on July 10, and Mrs. Anna Potts of East Jordan on July 11. Returning to their homes were Benjamin Palmer, East Jordan, and Anna Wolf, Boyne City, Mrs. Grace Pittner left the facility to make her home with Mrs. McClashen in East Jordan.

Enjoying recent vacations were Kay Braman, Betty Snider, Rose Trojnek, Ellis Toulson, and Lucille Joshi. Mrs. Linda Watkins, administrator, was guest speaker at the Rotary luncheon in East Jordan on July 2. Grandvue employees were deeply saddened by the sudden death of Helma Murray on July 7. Helma had been employed here since 1951. On August 1 and 2, the Divisional Therapy of Grandvue will hold a bazaar on the hospital grounds. This bazaar will be open to the public, and several items, all made by the patients, will be offered for sale. Please keep the bazaar in mind and plan to attend. You will be glad you did.

Have any of you seen in your harbor a more beautiful display of the different cruisers being this up here in the last two weeks. There were a few nice smaller ones but such a great lot of five streamlined larger craft. A very fascinating display and attraction to our visitors.

We are yet looking for participation in the Venetian Festival parade on Saturday evening, here in Charlevoix.

EAST JORDAN -- Funeral services for Mrs. Lee Wright, 60, who died, July 5, at Charlevoix Hospital after being admitted by ambulance, were held at the Watson Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Thursday, July 11. Burial was in Sunset Hill cemetery.

Kenney family welcomes charming Filipino miss

by PAT BEGROW
For a city as geographically isolated from the world as Charlevoix it's remarkable how many excellent opportunities there are to meet people from around the world. There are often European or Asian visitors to Charlevoix, some for an hour, some for a year.

One of these foreign visitors who has come to spend a year in Charlevoix is Carmina Tantoco from Quezon in the Philippines. Miss Tantoco is 16 years old and will enter Charlevoix High School in September. She is here through the international program Youth for Understanding.

How much Miss Tantoco will learn from us is hard to say, but from simply talking with her for an hour I gained a whole new understanding of the Philippines. For one thing I simply failed to relate a history book study of The Spanish American War to the present Philippines. Because Spain dominated the Philippines for over 300 years until 1898 Spanish culture is still a strong influence. Many Filipinos go abroad to college and the place they go is to Spain. Every Filipino student must take one year of Spanish in high school.

Because the people of the Philippines speak 60 dialects Filipino or Tagalog is also required, although only 6,000,000 Filipinos speak it. Miss Tantoco attended a convent run by the Maryknoll Missionaries from the United States so they required English as well that it seems natural to her.

Action and Reaction

The Republic of the Philippines consists of over 7,100 islands spread for 1,150 miles from the Pacific Ocean to the South China Sea. Miss Tantoco's native city of Quezon is the official capitol of the Philippines. Quezon is near Manila, Davao and Cebu.

The people of the Philippines suffered dreadfully during the Japanese invasion of the islands. Manila was devastated. A million Filipino men and women died either during the invasion or afterward in prison camps.

At the U.S. military cemetery just outside Manila are two stone arches curved like supplicating arms and bearing the names of 36,279 American men who died defending the islands. When the Republic of the Philippines came into existence in 1946 they modeled their government on that of the United States. Quezon is named for Manuel Quezon the first President. These island people have close ties with the United States.

Today the islands shelter Clark Air Base the chief base for air supply to Vietnam, and the Clark Air Base Hospital is the first place Americans wounded in Viet Nam are brought.

They also live near water and love it. They have cruisers and sailboats, they skin dive and duck hunt. Surprisingly enough they also deer hunt, but they must travel south for this. Carmine Tantoco has traveled far to bring her experiences to Charlevoix and to gather her impressions of us. She seems to be as delighted to live with the Kennys as they are to have her. She left behind a family of three younger brothers and one younger sister. She claims that one little brother said he was glad to see her go, which sounds much like little brothers everywhere.

Miss Tantoco does have a cousin who has come on the same exchange program to stay in the greater Detroit area. The Kennys are hoping to bring this cousin and her best family north for the Charlevoix Venetian Festival. So if you see two bright eyed happy girls taking in the sights with two smug sets of parents they just might be two visitors from halfway around the world.

Each summer the Bay View Association near Petoskey brings fine musical talent to Bay View for the enrichment of its members. Fortunately for us the programs are open to the public at the ridiculously nominal fee of fifty cents. These programs are present-

Guild seeks students for scholarships

The Women's Guild of Charlevoix Hospital met Monday evening. The main topic of discussion was the scholarship awards which will be presented at the August meeting.

Two scholarships are offered each year, one for a nursing career and one for any other field of hospital work. They are available to graduates of area high schools. Information regarding them may be obtained from high school principals or counselors.

Caroline Tantoco has each Wednesday and Sunday evening at eight o'clock in the Bay View Auditorium. Tonight, July 17, three artists will be performing.

Judy Gardner, Harpist, is the president of the Indiana Harpist Guild and plays regularly with the Indianapolis Philharmonic. Miss Gardner is a native of Indianapolis, but during the summer she lives on Lake Charlevoix near Boyne City.

The Guild would like to have more students apply for either of these. Application blanks were sent to East Jordan, Boyne City, Ellsworth and Charlevoix schools.

Ask your engine what makes Leonard Premium 500 such a great gasoline!
The engine and fuel system in your car are really the proper critics of the gasoline you use. Some engines, like some people, can stand almost anything. But if yours is a high-performance, discriminating engine, these are the qualities in gasoline it would demand if it could talk:
• Smooth conversion to the proper gasoline-vapor-air mixture to give fast starts and warm-up in any season and weather.
• Fast unleashing of high-octane, powerful components like platformite and alkylate into pure energy, with no wasteful knocking and the minimum of engine deposits.
• Clean, dry fuel, free of dirt, moisture and gum which would clog tiny passages.
• Additives that effectively stop corrosion and carburetor icing, that keep the spark hot and strong mile after mile, and that keep carburetor and exhaust parts cleaned to tune-up conditions for long mileage.
• Uniform quality, tankful after tankful, so that the engine is always eager to give top performance.
And, these are the qualities you get in new Leonard Premium 500. Try a tankful - it's a great gasoline!

Charlevoix County has something for everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula. It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan -- Mt. Pisgah -- lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs -- the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club -- are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and traveler. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county -- Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Bear Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

Biggest show of year It's Venetian Festival time

CHARLEVOIX -- The biggest extravaganza in Charlevoix is just around the corner -- the Venetian Festival.

Set for next weekend, July 27-28, the Festival annually attracts thousands of visitors to northern Michigan.

As usual the City of Charlevoix will be in a holiday mood from start to finish.

The east side of Bridge St. from Clinton to Mason will be lined with booths sponsored by a dozen or more church groups, clubs and service organizations. They offer everything from home-baked pie to games of chance and feather flowers.

Across Bridge St. in Erber's used car lot, the Charlevoix Lions Club will hold its annual chicken barbecue Sunday with club members manning the charcoal pits.

The Firehouse Five, Petoskey's renowned Dixieland combo, will entertain in side and outside the community's pubs.

The action moves off Bridge St. to the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club on north US-31 at 1 p.m. Saturday, July 27, for a Western horse show.

At 7:30 p.m. the Venetian Parade begins on State St. at Robinson Ave. (one block off Bridge St.).

As in other years the parade will include the high school marching band, queens from various communities and numerous other marching groups and floats. Star attraction will be Miss Charlevoix, Mary Beth Goodenough, and her charming court on the city's new float, which has never before been seen in Charlevoix.

The parade route, beginning on State near Robinson, will proceed north on State to Park St., then west on Park to Grant and south on Grant to Antlin where it will disperse.

The judges' stand will be in front of the County Building.

Sunday morning the Bridge St. booths reopen at 11 a.m. The Doll and Pet Parade begins at 2 p.m. Sunday, July 28. This is one of the most unique festivals in Michigan. Costumed children and their favorite dolls and pets march past reviewers on the band stand in East Park. Prizes go to the most unusual entries.

Following the Doll and Pet Parade, about 3 p.m., there will be a water ball fight between East Jordan and Charlevoix volunteer firemen. The battleground will be at the foot of Clinton St.

When East Jordan and Charlevoix's "finest" finish dousing each other Charlevoix Boy Scouts will take a crack at the greased pole in East Park.

At 6 p.m. Sunday Gary Stutzman's Steinmon will entertain at the band shell.

At 8 p.m. the Venetian Queen will be announced and crowned. Oklahoma football coach and former Rayder star Chuck Fairbanks is expected to be in town to crown the queen.

Included among queen contestants will be Miss Charlevoix, Miss Boyne City, Miss East Jordan, Miss Petoskey, Miss Alpenfest from Gaylord and Miss Traverse City. The Queen will be selected Saturday afternoon at the Weathervane Inn.

About 10 p.m. comes the highlight of the festival -- the parade of lighted boats. The parade forms in Lake Charlevoix, moves through the railroad bridge channel and then circles Round Lake. All kinds of boats, from high-masted sailing craft to small outboards -- take part in the parade.

The grand finale is a massive fireworks display over Round Lake.

Visitors are well advised to find their places along Round Lake early for the boat parade and fireworks as they are one of the most popular attractions in northern Michigan.

One-day scenic, historic tour

Charlevoix resorters seeking a momentary change of pace will find an abundance of Michigan's beauty and history within a comfortable one-day round-trip drive of their cottage.

One of the most interesting "Charlevoix-and-back" auto tours recommended by the Automobile Club of Michigan is the shoreline route to Mackinaw City, across the Big Mac bridge and on to Sault Ste. Marie.

The way the Auto Club charted it out for Playtime, this is a 260 mile round trip. The Club's tour department reports this is generally about the mileage that can be covered comfortably in one day.

You'll want to take your time so you won't miss the many unmarked scenic overlooks that suddenly pop into view as you round a curve on the road between Harbor Springs and Cross Village. Good restaurants and picnic grounds abound along the route.

The first lap of your trip will take you up the shore 27 miles to Harbor Springs, where you will want to make a special point of visiting Chief Blackbird's home, which is now a museum. Harbor's yacht basin will also interest you, as will the 18th Childhood Indian Mission School.

Heading out of Harbor Springs up the shore, the next 19 miles to Cross Village are among the most beautiful in Michigan. Attractions include the Indian church under the hill at Good Hart, the Great Lake's Indian Museum and huge cross marking Father Marquette's landing in Cross Village.

From Cross Village it is 23 more scenic miles to Mackinaw City and a breathtaking view of the Mackinac Bridge and historic tour of Fort Michilimackinac.

The five-mile drive across the bridge to St. Ignace will give you a panoramic view of the Straits of Mackinac and you will marvel at the construction and engineering genius that went into the bridge.

Historic St. Ignace boats numerous attractions, including Castle Rock, Fort Algonquin Museum, Marquette Park and an Indian burial ground.

If your day isn't complete enough at this point, it is 55 miles to Sault Ste. Marie, the third oldest continuous white settlement in North America.

There's a viewing stand where you can enjoy slipwatching at the Soo Locks, the busiest in the world. Or you can take a two-hour sightseeing boat cruise of the locks, take the Soo Tour Train, visit historic Diorama of the Soo and Brady Park.

For the return trip you may want to take US-31 out of Mackinaw City, instead of retracing your route up the shoreline through Cross Village. If you return by US-31 you will want to turn off the highway for a few blocks to see "old Levering," which is now a ghost town, and enjoy Peliston, Alanson, Oden and Conway, before, perhaps, stopping for dinner at one of Petoskey's many marvelous restaurants and then home to the cool splendor of a Charlevoix sunset.

CHARLEVOIX is easily accessible by air. The city's new municipal airport welcomes flyers from all over the mid-west.

Petoskey stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan.

Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bella Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

'Spider' dune rides offer thrills aplenty

ATWOOD -- Sand dune rides--long a popular form of recreation in western Michigan--are available at this Antrim County community 12 miles south of Charlevoix.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider" Sand Dune Rides, offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian campground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

Essenberg says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour.

"Kids simply refuse to get out, and teenagers start begging for money so they can ride again."

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Charlevoix is located 604 feet above sea level and has an average temperature of 45 degrees. The average summer temperature is 68.2 degrees, based on records of the past 22 years.

How about boat ride?

IRONTON -- How about a short boat ride?

For 35 cents, you, your car and your family can take a five-minute boat ride across the mouth of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Ferry docks are located at Ironton, about seven miles south east of Charlevoix on M-66, and at the tip of the high, rolling peninsula which separates Lake Charlevoix from the South Arm.

THE FERRY runs from early spring until late December, or whenever ice conditions make the passage impossible.

The ferry ride makes a scenic expedition of the trip to or from East Jordan and Boyne City to Charlevoix.

Shuffleboard Courts Open

Shuffleboard fans will be able to practice their sport during their Charlevoix County vacation.

Courts are located in East Park and at the Lake Michigan Beach in Charlevoix, at East Jordan's Tourist Park

Charlevoix center of new angling era for the Great Lakes

A new era has come to the Great Lakes. The era of the sports fishermen. And Charlevoix is the key to making that era an enduring one.

The Conservation Dept. recognized this by establishing the Great Lakes Fishery Station in the old Charlevoix National Fish Hatchery and assigning its new 63-foot Great Lakes survey boat, the Steelhead, to the station.

The station and boat are under the supervision of Myrl Keller, a graduate biologist and member of a pioneer Great Lakes commercial fishing family. Bill Palmer, an Oneida Indian, is skipper of the Steelhead.

The station and boat, the only ones of their kind on the Great Lakes, represent the first comprehensive effort made to gather information on fish in the lakes so that their long-ignored sport fishing potential can be developed. The station was dedicated May 2, 1968.

It's Keller and Palmer's job to find out where the coho and chinook salmon are, what they are eating, how fast they are growing, etc. From this, and other information, gathered by its elite Charlevoix crew, the Conservation Dept. will plan and develop programs to provide maximum sports fishing for salmon, trout and other Great Lakes species.

The Steelhead is equipped with the most modern fish survey gear, including sophisticated electronic equipment.

and conventional rugs for netting fish. It has just one mission: Prowl the Inland Seas in search of better sports fishing.

The station, next to the city's Lake Michigan beach, is open to visitors. The old hatchery facilities are now used for rearing young salmon.

Historically, Charlevoix has been the center of commercial fishing activity on the Great Lakes. During the last two decades, when fish tugs disappeared from nearly all other Great Lakes ports, Charlevoix remained home port for commercial fishermen.

Now it has become the nerve center of this new era to make the Great Lakes the greatest sports fishing water in the world.

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our fascinating bridge

CHARLEVOIX--No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over the Pine River channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained and built by the State Highway Dept., the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders--Ted Bergmann, Elmer Gibson, Chiek Gallagher--and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries US31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

The bridge is raised for vessels too high to pass under it between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. The bridge is required to open only every half hour--three minutes before and three minutes after the hour and half hour--for commercial and pleasure boats. A long blast and a short blast of a boat's horn are the signal to get the bridge raised. The bridge tender answers the boat's whistle and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals.

The first step in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches to warn traffic. Gates are lowered across the highway and sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However, the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

Increasing boat and highway traffic in recent years has led to longer and longer pileups on US31, particularly during the height of the summer season.

According to the highway department 103,071 cars had to wait for the bridge during the most recent 12 months survey period, costing motorists an estimated accumulated total of 286.2 days delay. Last year the bridge opened 3,685 times. Of these, 1,047 openings were in July and 691 in August.

In an effort to eliminate unnecessary openings last year the bridge tenders were instructed by the State not to open the bridge if boats would have enough clearance by lowering their radio antennas.

More restrictive action was taken this year with the new regulation limiting "required bridge openings to every half hour. Traffic conditions on US31 allowing the bridge tenders are attempting to be as liberal as possible in implementing these regulations for the convenience of boaters. Any boater in trouble coming in from Lake Michigan can have the bridge raised immediately by blowing a distress signal. However, persons who needlessly take advantage of this can be prosecuted.

COMMERCE

BOYNE CITY'S Chamber of Commerce is located in this rustic log cabin. Beside the cabin is a billboard advertising Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival which draws thousands of persons in early May.

Boyne City offers much for summer, winter fun.

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Robie Industrial Courier Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills.

In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has several area parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on 11 1/2 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Indian past lives again at Greensky Hill church

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road. Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground. Nearby stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winogarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ojibwa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area.

Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

THE FIRST structure was a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 28 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud.

THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council Trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, despite a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Greensky's wife. The older graves, all facing East, are marked off with wooden fences and or rude wooden crosses.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation retreat, why not try Beaver Island--America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cabs and motorbikes may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Hilly Cross parsonage. LIKE MOST islands, Beaver

Island has a mystery. Archaeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

IN THE LATE 1840's, a band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were aghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing

A-plant tours popular

CHARLEVOIX -- One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumers' Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles north-east of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone. Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

Summer concerts

Most lovers will find plenty to please their ear in Charlevoix County.

The Charlevoix City Band has scheduled concerts in the park every Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. in East Park. Composed of local musicians, summer visitors and college students' home for the holidays, the band is directed by C. A. Edmark.

Boys' City band concerts also are scheduled Wednesday evenings at 8 in Memorial Park. Dancing follows each concert.

BAY VIEW Assembly just north of Petoskey has concerts scheduled every Sunday evening, with other musical events planned on weekday evenings throughout the summer.

Of course, the National Music Camp is located only a short distance south of Traverse City, with many fine concerts planned for the summer.

Golf courses lure players

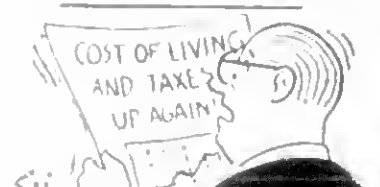

Golfing is a favorite pastime among visitors and year-round residents alike. Here are some of the golf courses you might like to try:

Beaver Lodge Golf and Country Club, 9 holes, Beaver Island.

Miniature Golf Course, Harbor Hills, Beaver Island. Ye Nynne Old Holles, Iron-ton Ferry Rd., Boyne City. Boyne Mountain Golf Course, 9 holes, Boyne Falls. Golf Driving Range, Walloon Lake.

Belvedere Golf Course, 18 holes, Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Golf Club, 9 holes, Petoskey Avenue.

ing the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-motion picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers' network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Bel-lair.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

Kit-chi-ossining

Every spring, after leaving their winter camps, the Indians rendezvoused at The Place of the Big Rock on Little Traverse Bay just north of Charlevoix. They called it—"kit-chi-ossining."

Now, scientists, physicists and government leaders from all over the world visit Big Rock—to see Consumers Power Company's Nuclear Power Plant. You too are welcome at Big Rock. A Public Information Center there has displays, exhibits, films and lecturers to tell you the exciting story of the atom-at work—bringing electricity to Michigan's Lower Peninsula. The Center is open seven days a week, 8-5, through October. After that, Monday through Friday.

Come to the fair

CHARLEVOIX -- Artists from throughout Michigan and nearby states will converge on Charlevoix August 10 for the 10th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen.

The fair is held in East Park, against a backdrop of Round Lake and the yacht basin.

In fact, many artists come to Charlevoix by boat to show their wares.

Exhibitors are allowed space throughout the park to display their wares.

In addition to paintings of all kinds, woodcarving, ceramics and sculpture are on the bill of fare.

On the park stage, Mr. and Mrs. Nate Cummings of Chicago usually show some of the paintings from their personal collections, which include work by Picasso, Renoir and Degas.

The fair has become famous among Michigan painters because many visitors have a penchant for buying. One summer a sculpture student sold his entire work. His profits allowed him to continue his studies at the University of Michigan.

The exhibit appears to professionals too, which many well established artists numbered among the regular exhibitors.

The fair also fills a genuine need in northern Michigan, where museums and art galleries are few and far between. Youngsters and adults are given an opportunity to see original works of art and to chat with their creators.

This year's fair is under the direction of Mrs. Edward McNamara of Dixon Ave.

by Capt. Fred Log, Director Marine Safety, Raytheon Company & America's Cup championship sailing master.

New for Venetian

SEEN FOR THE first time at this year's Venetian Festival will be the new city-owned Charlevoix float, above, as it appeared in last weekend's Alpenfest in Gaylord. Miss Charlevoix, Mary Beth Goodenough will be in the same spot on the throne in Saturday evening's Venetian parade.

Coast Guard calls double last year's Pleasure boaters are getting in nearly twice as much trouble near Charlevoix this year as they did last summer, according to Charlevoix Coast Guard Station commander Chief Richard Covey.

Covey reports that since July 1 his men have handled 24 rescue calls, compared to 40 all of last year. If the number of rescues continues at this rate, he foresees as many as 150 before the fiscal year ends July 1, 1969.

Not all of this increase, he explained, is due to boaters getting in trouble. This year the men at the Charlevoix Station are running more patrols, which result in finding boaters in trouble who might not otherwise report their problems to the Coast Guard.

In previous years, Covey said, some of these boats may have been assisted by other boaters, instead of the Coast Guard.

Covey sends out one of his two patrol boats (a 40-footer and a 44-footer) at dawn and sunset on weekends. The patrols search Lake Michigan from Grand Traverse Bay to Oriskany Village.

Men at the Beaver Island Station, which is also under Covey's command, make similar patrols around the island group. All 20 of the rescue missions since July 1 have been conducted by men from the Charlevoix Station. "Things have been pretty quiet around the islands... so far," Covey said.

Nearly all of the rescues, Covey said, were caused because boaters:

- Ran out of gas.

- Had mechanical failures which could have been avoided with common sense maintenance.

- Failed to navigate according to lakes charts, or

- Did not have adequate experience in operating their boat.

The most frequent cause of trouble, Covey said, is boaters who run out of gas before reaching the dock. The second most is minor mechanical breakdowns.

Improper navigation, or just plain refusal to believe charts, has caused at least two cruisers to go aground trying to pass between Fisherman's Island and the mainland and a sailboat off South Point, Covey said. The charts, he pointed out, clearly indicate there is not enough water for a boat between the island and mainland or close to South Point.

Capitulating of small sailboats has jeopardized several lives, Covey said. He urged sailors to learn to handle their boat before venturing far from the harbor.

Boats out of gas are becoming such a regular problem that Covey said he is considering having the patrol boats carry cans of fuel. This would avoid the patrol boat having to tow these boats into port. The boater would be charged a minimum of $10 for the gas by the Coast Guard.

The disadvantages are that it is difficult to pour gas into a tank while a boat is rolling in the lake and gas is dangerous to carry in loose containers.

COAST GUARD Chief Richard Covey, standing, has three men busy filling out rescue reports due to the more than 50% rise in the number of pleasure boat rescues since July 1. Working on their reports, from left, are BM2 Tristan Sierzpukowski, BM2 Gerald Nettleton and EN1 Tom Dembinski.

Sunday liquor on County Bd. Friday agenda

The sale of liquor on Sunday by Charlevoix County restaurants and resorts will be decided Friday by the Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors.

Board Chairman Clyde Cunningham of Marion Township reports a special meeting has been called for 10 a.m. Friday in the County Building to act on the new state law authorizing Sunday liquor sales.

The new law, Cunningham said, authorizes County Boards to approve Sunday sale of liquor by the glass in establishments where 50% or more of the gross business is other than liquor sales.

Cunningham said he suspects at least five county businesses would benefit: the Grey Gables, Argonne, Weatherhaven Inn, Dilworth Hotel and Boyne Mountain Lodge. The county's other two major ski resorts, Thunder Mountain and Walloon Hills, would probably be eligible, too.

The special meeting, Cunningham said, was called at the request of Boyne Mountain Lodge, which contacted Prosecuting Attorney Harvey Varum.

Other area counties reportedly have already approved Sunday liquor sales.

Cunningham said he, personally, will vote against the proposal.

The liquor issue is the only thing on the board's agenda, Cunningham said. Discussion should begin about 10 a.m. The meeting is open to the public.

Island's P.O. to stay open

Reports that the Beaver Island Post Office may be closed as part of a federal government spending cutback are untrue, according to Charlevoix Postmaster Dan Genett.

Genett said the Post Office Dept. has no plans for eliminating the post office at St. James. If such plans were in the offing, Genett pointed out, the Charlevoix Post Office would be informed because mail to the island is routed through Charlevoix.

If it is possible, he explained, that if Beaver Island Postmaster Frank Nackerman should retire the post office there would become a contract sub-station of Charlevoix. However, he is sure it will not be eliminated.

The postal budget tightening will result in several changes for Charlevoix and other area residents.

Starting July 27 the Charlevoix Post Office's window will not be open on Saturday mornings. The window is now open from 8 a.m. to noon Saturdays. Mail delivery will continue on Saturday, Genett said.

It's Venetian weekend; two days of fun on tap

Word from the Chamber of Commerce is that all is ready for the 1968 Venetian Festival, annually one of northern Michigan's favorite summer attractions.

Scheduling and some of the format for the two-day festival this weekend is slightly changed, but the focus remains on a spectacular grand finale boat parade and fireworks, street parade, pretty girls, and fun in East Park.

The first big event is the street parade which starts at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, July 27. Floats from other communities, local floats representing organizations and businesses and several carrying Venetian Queen candidates will highlight the parade.

The parade begins on State St. near Robinson and moves north on State to Park, west on Park to Grant and south on Grant to Antrim. Parade entries should assemble about 6:30 p.m. at State and Robinson. Putting the parade together this year are Ken Empey, Al Smith and Lyle Miles.

Saturday afternoon still unannounced judges will select the Venetian Queen at the Weatherhaven Inn. Contestants include Miss Charlevoix, Mary Beth Goodenough, Miss East Jordan, Miss Traverse City, Miss Petoskey and Miss Alpena.

Petoskey's well-known Fire House Five Dixie band will be in the parade and will play all downtown bars. Sponsoring the group are the Weatherhaven Inn, Top Side, Town House, Airport Bar, Woodshed and Argonne.

Saturday morning will find the sidewalk booths open on Bridge street between Clinton and Mason.

A side attraction Saturday will include a Western horse show at the Rod and Gun Club, starting at 1 p.m.

The annual All Star softball game, pitting the Kalamazoo all stars against Charlevoix's finest stars at 7:15 p.m. Saturday at the softball field on Carpenter Ave.

Charlevoix players selected their all-star team for the doubleheader. Fishers will be Nate Boas and Bob Klooster, with Sonny Wright as an alternate. Hank Klooster will be on first base, Glen Mayhew of East Jordan will be at second and Gary Stutzman of County State Bank will be at third. Ken Balch of American Mold will hold down the shortstop slot. Outfielders will be Gene Hutchinson, Levi McClellan and Dave Smith, with Perry Bennett, Denny Warner and Bob Drenth filling in. Art Drenth and Duane Davenport will share coaching chores.

Kalamazoo has been bringing its all stars to Charlevoix for the annual Venetian softball contest for several years.

Persons who like their action fast and noisy will enjoy the motorcycle races at 1 p.m. Sunday four miles north of town on Burgess Rd.

The first big attraction Sunday, and always one of the most popular, will be the Doll, Pet and Dress-Up Parade at 2 p.m. in East Park. Mrs. Ralph Doan is this year's chairman.

The parade is for all children between 4 and 12. There are three divisions.

In the dress-up division children can dress as any character they wish, singly or in a group. In the pet division, any pet may be entered, but must be on a leash or in a cage. Dolls of any size or description may be entered in the doll division.

Three prizes will be awarded in each division. Entry blanks are available at Edwards IGA, Oleson's, Neff Bros. and the Chamber of Commerce.

Judges will be Mrs. Don Berlage, Mrs. George Plumm and Mrs. Jack DeWitt. Working with Mrs. Doan to make the parade a success are Mrs. Gene Dietz, Mrs. Morris Cudd and Mrs. John Raymer.

Following the Doll, Pet and Dress-Up Parade, firemen from East Jordan and Charlevoix will stage a water ball fight in East Park.

Next attraction will be the greased pole climb in East Park. This will be followed at 6 p.m. by the Stetson's music at the band shell.

At 8 p.m. the Venetian Queen will be crowned at the band shell. Former Kalamazoo and now Oklahoma's football coach Chuck Fairbanks is expected to crown the reigning beauty. The crowning ceremony will be followed by a Charlevoix High School band concert.

The boat parade gets underway at 10 p.m. in Round Lake. Chairman Lyle Miles, who had the job of organizing the parade turned over to him last week, reports entries should assemble in Lake Charlevoix outside the railroad bridge about 9:30 p.m.

There will be no particular theme to this year's tightest boat parade, Miles explained. Nor will there be prizes.

Sixty strings of lights are available for boats at the Chamber of Commerce. Miles is hoping boat owners will help make the parade a success by participating.

The boat parade will be capped by the fireworks over Round Lake, which have become known as one of the finest displays seen each year in the north country.

State air pollution chief meets with local citizens

Michigan's chief air pollution official toured Medusa's South Point plant when it wasn't running last week and met with four of the persons who have been complaining about dirt from the plant.

Bernard Bloomfield, head of the State Health Dept.'s air pollution office, held an unannounced meeting with local officials and the small representation of complainants in the County Building Friday afternoon.

Bloomfield told those present that his tour of the plant convinced him the company's claim that the smokestack is eliminating 95% of the potential air pollution and is being operated at all times.

He promised that his office will have continuous air quality monitoring equipment operating here within a month. He added, however, that the monitoring equipment may not be able to accurately identify the source of dirt in the air.

Attorney Don Berlage asked Bloomfield if his office would give validity to air samples collected by a qualified private firm. Bloomfield said the state would not.

"I'm beginning to wonder whether you ever can Charlevoix for any conclusion as to whether Medusa is violating," Berlage said.

Berlage asked what Bloomfield suggests people do about dirty windows, which he contends are caused by dust from Medusa.

Bloomfield answered, "Wash them!"

Charlevoix Township Trustee Oscar Stroud suggested a time device be installed on the precipitators which are supposed to keep dust from escaping from the smokestack to determine if they are operated whenever the kiln is.

Bloomfield said this is not necessary because he is convinced the company is operating its air pollution control equipment whenever the plant is in operation.

Our red foghorn disappears under new white paint

Boaters coming into Charlevoix had better make note that the red navigation marker is no longer on their right when returning to harbor. In fact, there is no longer a red navigation aid.

The red foghorn on the south pierhead disappeared last week. At least the red vanished. The foghorn turned white on orders from Washington.

Coast Guardsmen painted the foghorn white in compliance with a Washington directive that all stationary navigation aids be that color.

The reasoning at Coast Guard headquarters is that boaters can see a white marker a lot further than they can a red one, Charlevoix Coast Guard Station commander Chief Richard Covey said. White paint has been replacing red on lighthouses and other stationary aids for several years, he explained.

The long-standing rule "red right returning" is out, Covey said. The rule will continue to prevail for floating channel markers only.

Some Charlevoixians were complaining last week, as they watched the red foghorn disappear under a coat of white, that the new color is drab and takes some of the scenic punch from the harbor entrance. It was also pointed out the new color will outdate the popular color postcard of the pierheads.

Covey's records show the foghorn was erected in 1865 on the other side (the north side) of the harbor entrance. His records did not accurately indicate when the about 35-foot high metal structure was moved to the south side.

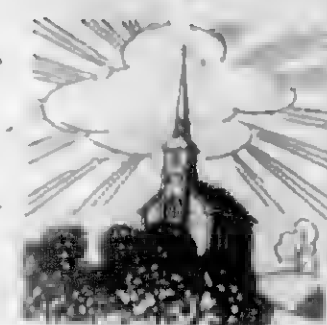

Earl Young thinks the foghorn, which also has a flashing red light that can be seen for about nine miles, was moved about 50 years ago. It was painted red when it was moved, he said. Until then it was white.

THE SMALL PATCH of red left near the bottom of the south pierhead foghorn disappeared under the coat of white a few minutes after this perhaps historic picture was taken last week. The foghorn's color was changed by Charlevoix Coast Guardsmen under orders from Washington.

Aliases

Meet Mr. Anxiety, alias Mr. Fear, alias Mr. Feeling of Insecurity. Regardless of all his aliases he is nothing more or less than Mr. Scarecrow, with a pumpkin for a head. He is the embodiment of all the useless anxieties, fears and hates that haunt man's mind, becoming entrenched in the sub-conscious and making a negative personality of that which should be a glowing positive character. These inhibitions sharply curb the usefulness of one who would otherwise enrich the world in his lifetime.

When one discovers that he is the victim of these negative characteristics he should first work to drive the scarecrow from his conscious and sub-conscious mind and replace them with positive characteristics: calm demeanor, courage and love. The Church can be a mighty ally in helping anyone replace the negative with the positive since it has always championed the cause of the individual. It teaches positive lessons from positive texts and can be a source of strength and power to any who call upon and use it through regular attendance.

Softball teams capture titles for first half

American Mold moved a step closer to claiming the first round Pastball League title with two victories during the week. Bitcher State Boss hurled a four-hit shut-out against Lake Construction then edged Wilson's 2-2. They need only a win over Medusa in a game played earlier this week (Monday) for a 8-0 first round record.

Three second inning runs and Harv Cole's grand-slam homer in the fourth gave the Mold men all the help they needed for a 8-0 win against Lake. Wilson's gave the league leaders a real scare before falling 3-2. Dave Smith started hero honors with Boss as he hunted his way on, stole second and third, and then scored the winning run on an error. Wilson's got a quick run in the first on Bill Chase's home run and Ron Schuk's seventh inning single had the tying run on base, but Boss struck out two, to end the game.

Merfeld, hoping for Medusa to upset Mold and give them a share of the crown, beat County State Bank 7-4. Six runs in the seventh, beat the Bank boys threatened in the final frames scoring all their runs. Mike Lord had a home run for the winners. Jerry Stewart picked up half of the losers' hits with a single and double.

The Air Force, despite being out of the title picture, played outstanding ball during the week, and gave notice that they may be in the title picture the second round. They routed the Lake Construction gang 13-0, scoring all their runs in the first two frames. Freddy Vaughn led the attack with two singles and a double while Jack Wyal chipped in with three singles. Against Medusa Sony Wright, who had allowed Lake Construction only one hit, proved tough again, as he allowed only Gail Sheldon and Nick DeYoung's one-runners. The final was a 6-1 score.

Wilson's looked sharp in edging hard luck Medusa 2-0, knocking them out of contention. Two runs in the seventh did the trick. After being held useless for six innings by Rich Lewis and Ron Falkstrom, Ron Schuk singled and came home on a couple of errors.

PEANUT LEAGUE
Novak's posted a perfect 8-0 record to grab the first round title in the junior league. A double forfeit win over Electra closed out the perfect round for the Champions. In other games DeYoungs moved into second place with wins over Freedman and Electra. Against Electra three seventh inning runs paved the way for a 10-7 win. Bill Carey had two hits for the winners while Stan Warner homered in a losing cause. Against Freedman's four runs in the fourth provided the margin in a 7-4 win. Larry Parker and Billy Carey each batted out three safeties to lead DeYoungs while Plum had two hits for the losers. Earlier in the week, one of the finest Junior league games of the season saw Electra score in the ninth inning for a 1-0 win over DeYoungs. Bob Roger Turner and Larry Potter hurled one hit in the well-played contest.

Summer class for drivers

Charlevoix will have 108 "graduate" drivers when the summer driver's education program ends soon at the high school.

The driving course, for students who are entering their junior year of high school, includes two weeks of bookwork and written tests and six hours of actual driving for each student.

From the textbooks, students learn about various types of parking and turns, the different kinds of insurance, what various road signs mean and the mechanical features of a car.

After passing the two week course, students go on to actual driving experience in the driver's training car, which is equipped with a dual brake system so the driving instructor also has control of the car.

While driving the students learn the various ways of parking, how to make turns, and other general driving techniques.

Teaching the course are Robert Cook, Vane Smith and Max Novak.

VANE SMITH CAUGHT this nearly seven pound lake trout off Nine Mile Pt. He was trolling slow, on the bottom in 40 to 60 feet of water with a cleo. Frequent lake trout catches are reported off Nine Mile Pt. and between South Pt. and North Pt. Conservation Dept. fish surveys show there are as many lake trout in the two areas as anywhere in Lake Michigan.

Mrs. Skeel recovering
Mrs. Skeel is reported doing "fairly well" at Charlevoix Hospital following an accident Wednesday night, July 17.
Mrs. Skeel is being cited for failure to have her vehicle under control.
According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, she was traveling north on M-66 in her 1965 Ford, which apparently went out of control and left the road about 1.8 mile south of the city limits. The car went through a ditch, field, across the yard and garden of the Willard Bros home and hit a car in front of Mrs. Ruth Taylor's home.
The Sheriff's Department reported that the impact drove the car into the Taylor home, knocked out a wall and damaged the house.

Modern fish stories fizzle compared to 1918

EDITOR'S NOTE: Anyone who thinks fish stories get bigger with the telling will have to admit they haven't heard a bigger one than this tale from the July 24, 1918 Charlevoix Courier. We thought readers might enjoy it. And, after reading it, we've almost decided to quit writing fish stories.

Two years ago Wm. Loutselle moved from the Bradley Hill neighborhood to a farm near Phelps, said farm being on the shores of Lake No. 26, and, of course, as Mr. Loutselle is a fisherman, he puts in all his spare time on the lake.

Boat reports began to come in of wonderful catches made by him. Following on the heels of such reports, all fishermen for miles around would flock to "twenty-six." But for some reason the fish would refuse to bite.

William was in his back yard when found by the committee, it had been on the lake that morning and was just classifying and tagging the contents of the stomach of a twenty-seven-pounder which had fallen under the influence of his hypnotic powers during his thirty minutes of recreation.

The committee waited long enough to see a collection of artificial baits which would stock a first class fishing tackle store. Among other things were even Osewagla, nine Wilson Wobblers, four Crab Wigglers, two Tanagos, two Stump Doggers and about two dozen red flies. Mr. Loutselle, who is an authority on such things, says they had been in the fish's stomach about ten days and probably had belonged formerly to a party of Chicago fishermen who were stopping at the Liberty home at Ellsworth and had reported looking these things during the preceding week while fishing at Twenty Six.

After "Bill" had his fish dressed and the hams and shoulders safely hanging in his smoke house, he rolled a cigarette and in a few words gave his formula for making big catches. He claims hooks and lines are old stuff—not used by our best people at this time.

The tackle he uses is simply a few large sponges, a cedar pole about eight feet long, a short steel cable and a pair of abiding lungs. On reaching the lake with his outfit he rows to one of the runways of the big fellows, and using the pole he pushes a hole into the lake. After this is done in a workmanlike manner, he sprays the sponges (which must be thoroughly dry) on the surface of the lake near the hole and then pulls away a short distance and sits in the shade.

Mr. Fish soon sees the hole in the water and comes up to the surface. Mr. Loutselle claims sponges are natural feed and of course the first thing the fish does when coming up is to eat all these delicacies in sight.

The salt makes them thirsty and after about two drinks the poor fellow is so badly swelled at the belt line that he cannot get back down the hole. The rest is easy. A few minutes in the hot sun and the victim is sound asleep and all our hero has to do is sneak up and fasten the tongue onto him and low him ashore. Sometimes then the fish is too large to use the tongue on, Mr. Loutselle waits until his victim dies from asphyxiation.

Ellsworth hires four teachers

ELLSWORTH -- Four new teachers will be teaching at the Ellsworth Community School this fall according to Superintendent John Jurgensen.

They are Norman J. Cook from Charlevoix who will head the Industrial Arts department and also teach other classes; Henry Kloth Wagner II of Charlevoix who will teach social studies on the junior and senior high school level; Evelyn Norden from Portage, Michigan who will be teaching on the elementary level; and Maurice E. Seaman from Orono who will teach math and science.

Jurgensen says yet, doesn't see any need for any more new teachers but says it depends on the schedule, which hasn't been completed yet.

Sobeck new EHS principal

John Sobeck, after two years of two years of teaching in the commercial department and coaching at Ellsworth Community High School, will become high school principal this fall.

Paul Stiles, who taught math and shop for two years and was high school principal for two years is leaving Ellsworth to go to Orono to teach in the Thumbar area, according to John Jurgensen, school superintendent.

Sobeck, who is a graduate of Central Michigan, will continue to teach as many classes as possible.

Should retain free textbooks

WITH NO hesitation or qualifications, the Courier opposes recommendations that Charlevoix students be charged for use of hardcover textbooks. We hope and trust the school board will decide against the proposal.

of locker space. Having to cram books into lockers must be hard on them. Our experience with Charlevoix's young people tells us they are above average, making us suspect the locker situation may be responsible for more of the book damage than school administrators suspect.

Basically, however, we find ourselves in accord with board Treasurer Dale Boss, who argues that Charlevoix taxpayers in supporting the school board's request for operating millage are paying for textbooks, as well as other equipment and expenses.

In principal, we find no difference between charging a student a fee for using a desk or a textbook. At the same time, we feel a student who damages a desk, a wall, etc. should be charged for their irresponsibility.

A survey of comparable area schools shows that Boyne City and Charlevoix are the only ones who do not charge a fee for hardcover textbooks. East Jordan "rents" books to students. Petoskey sells them outright.

Like Boss and we, we suspect other board members, the Courier is proud of the fact that our school system demands no "entry fee" of students. We hope it will remain that way.

Bell's monopoly

MICHIGAN BELL Telephone Co. appears to almost deliberately provoke Charlevoix citizens. Last week's clumsy and inconsiderate changeover to a new dialing system was only the latest example of what seems to be the company's dictatorial use of its monopoly powers.

Had telephone company area executives been aware and concerned about Charlevoix citizens, they certainly could have given us advance notice. There might have been some grumbling about the new system had this consideration been given. But there would not have been the virtual collapse of telephone service which we experienced for several hours.

Certainly most Charlevoix citizens understand that someday they will have to dial the three-digit prefix for local calls. We may not especially like the "nuisance" this causes, but obviously it was inevitable if we are going to be included in the nationwide direct dialing system.

However, to wake up on a Monday morning in what may be the community's busiest week of the year and, with no warning, find that for practical purposes our telephone system is out of order is impossible to excuse. Hundreds, and probably thousands, of calls were not completed because local people did not know the problem was that suddenly, overnight, they must dial the additional digits.

Obviously Michigan Bell has a monopoly we cannot do without. But it doesn't have to be so obvious in keeping us aware of its absolute power to run roughshod over a small exchange like Charlevoix.

Heroes on our beaches

CHARLEVOIX'S three city beach lifeguards have already this summer proven their ability and alertness. Each has made what their boss Deano Davenport calls a "save".

hospital after examination.

At the Ferry Ave. beach Judy Somerville is reported to have saved an eight or nine year old swimmer who began floundering in water over his head. At the Depot Beach Al Lusk plucked an infant from trouble in shallow water.

There may have been other "saves" the lifeguards considered "routine" a part of their job they failed to report to Davenport.

Our thanks go not only to the lifeguards, but also to Davenport for his judgement in hiring qualified people and to the City Council for its support of the beach program.

Old-timers reunion fizzles, but sparks class reunions is still hoping to muster enough members to hold a reunion on Venetian Night at Montie's Cafe.

Unfortunately there are many in the class of 1917 who cannot attend, either from sickness or other commitments. Alford Carter writes from New York that his daughter is getting married and that ceremony and subsequent reception will be held in New York City. He will take both his time and his energy.

The class of 1917 chose Montie's cafe because that was "the place" where the crowd hung out in their "good old days." The room on the alley was always filled to overflowing at Saturday night dances and many a staid "grandma-grandpa" marriage of today had its first romantic rendezvous at Montie's.

Of course, many of the old gang cannot be present today in person but those who can and probably will, can have a sentimental "ding" remembering the golden voice of the late, Charlie Hamilton singing "When the Red, Red Robin Comes Bobbin Along," "Willow Weep for Me" and other tunes of the era.

And perhaps remembering Montie's hamburgers too. Of course Montie's still has hamburgers but no more of the good old Charlevoix burgers are today they could never taste as savory as in the days of teenage vigor, vigor and appetite.

It might also be mentioned that yesterday's teenager had good times without the artificial stimulation of either LSD or alcohol. Most of us had the health of a frisky puppy and music, dancing, tennis and swimming in summer and skating and bobsledding in winter was sufficient stimulation to keep us happy as larks.

But enough nostalgic remembering. To get to the matter of reunions, the Chamber of Commerce is furnishing an outdoor register at the entrance to their new chamber quarters for the convenience of all old timers who visit the home town during Venetian week-end. It is to be hoped that all local old timers will be the first to register names, addresses and telephone numbers for the convenience of "visiting friends" who may want to get in touch, and are not members of any of the "reunion" classes.

Perhaps a reminder is in order to the effect that Lathrop Higman, Gill is opening her own home on Petoskey avenue to her high school class of 1928 for a get together and the class of 1917.

by JIM FITZGERALD

It was freezing out the other day, but my wife cooked steaks on the outdoor grill and then asked me to take it to eat. "I don't want to get the oven dirty," she explained.

I ate the steak with my fingers, so as to not dirty silverware, and that night I suggested we sleep on the floor, so as to not mess up the bed. And I was thinking how neat the hospital would be if the patients would just go somewhere else to be sick.

A week later I noticed something new spinning slowly on the outdoor barbecue spit and I said, "quit a lovely word for a cooking utensil." It was a sort of wire cage, cylinder shaped.

"I bought that at Yankee's," my wife explained proudly. "You just put it with chicken thighs and legs and attach it to the spit and it revolves slowly over the fire. It's better than spitting a whole chicken."

To Wit

1906, was a successful lawyer in Detroit before his retirement to Des Moines, Iowa.

Edw. Shanahan, Bill (Wm.) Paddock, Robert Miles, Joyce Mayne Totten, Eva Chabrum Lewis and Irene Haverly-O'Connor comprise a steering committee of six localities who are working hard to make their July 28th dinner at the Waukegan Inn a shining success.

Edw. Shanahan, retired United States Navy commander, says his class produced some mighty important exponents of education, science and governmental service, of which Charlevoix should be justifiably proud.

Dr. Richard Saltonstall is one of the country's top men in the field of science. "Doc" Ogden, a state biologist for the State of New York.

Hill Paddock was a forest supervisor in the United States Forest Service. "Furthest Brown," a dairy manager in the Detroit area.

In business, Robert Miles established the well known local Bob Miles' photographic studio. Irene O'Connor, wife of Lt. Commander, Fred O'Connor of the U.S. Coast Guard operated her own "kiss shop" and Thelma Crandall Smith worked with her husband, Wesley, to develop the Smith Boring Company in Detroit.

All this Mrs. Young's Michigan pictorial maps, which have gained for her fame across the country, give Charlevoix much of which to boast proudly.

A letter from Annie Driggett Bennett of Flint states their class--1914--will hold their reunion at the Gray Gables Inn on July 31 with a 12:30 o'clock luncheon. They will have the high school building in the afternoon. "Dess Dicks" Clowson and Myra Stiles live in the West and are flying in for the occasion.

Former language teacher, Lena Horst Craig is unable to attend due to a recent accident but Miss Lene Calton, former English teacher here, who makes her home at Claremont, California is signing in for all four reunions.

Perhaps a reminder is in order to the effect that Lathrop Higman, Gill is opening her own home on Petoskey avenue to her high school class of 1928 for a get together and the class of 1917.

"As a chicken cooker," I told my distraught wife, "you do not remind me of that white haired Kentucky colored boy who always smiles as he produces delicious chicken on TV. This is probably because you shaved this morning."

"I will wash this chicken and then put it back in the cage," she said. "No one will taste the difference."

"Certainly," I said. "And scrub it good. There is nothing I like better than the cross-eyed chicken with a charcoal flavor. It's like taking a bath in the fireplace."

"You are a riot," my wife said. "It doesn't even occur to you that this is your fault. In other families, the husbands do the outdoor cooking. If you had been out here watching, the chicken wouldn't have fallen in the fire."

"That's right, Daddy," said little brats. "Other dads do the outdoor cooking. How come you don't?"

"It's because I'm afraid of the wild outdoors," I explained. "I might get Michigan's three percent sales tax on retail goods went into effect on July 1, but merchants throughout the state are generally in ignorance as to the workings of the law, and unanimously dislike it for having multiplied their bookkeeping troubles.

A program of improvements designed to make Charlevoix's airport one of the best in northern Michigan is under way this week. A new approach is being constructed opposite the Roger farm on the Marion Center Road, fences and other obstructions are being removed and the field leveled. Charlevoix County has something for everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula. It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan -- Mt. Pisgah -- lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan, and are thriving.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs -- the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club -- are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county -- Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

Fishing great for trout, bass

The chance of hooking a trophy-size steelhead trout or even a coho salmon or lake trout continues to electrify Charlevoix area fishermen. But, as always, the old dependables are smallmouth bass, perch and pike.

Though steelhead fishing success in Lake Charlevoix fell off this spring and summer from last year's fast pace, more of the big rainbows are known to be in the lake now than before. Why they are not being caught is a fisherman's question which only a fisherman's guess can answer.

Lake trout, however, have come on strong in portions of Lake Charlevoix and nearby Lake Michigan areas. The lake trout, like the 'bows, are gutting themselves on alewives, so fish accordingly. Trolling slow, in front 30 to 80 feet of water, with lures that imitate a silver-colored bait fish seems to be the best procedure.

Last fall a few 'stray' mature coho were caught in Lake Charlevoix and feeder streams. This fall more are expected, along with some immature males from plantings made here this spring. There are also fleeing reports of schools of coho in Lake Michigan a few miles off Charlevoix. None of these reports have been pinned down, but some fishermen wouldn't be surprised to bit the jackpot before the summer is over.

The Lake Charlevoix shoreline is splattered with smallmouth hotspots. Among the most consistent producers are areas of the South Arm near Ironston.

The most proven method for taking the plucky smallmouths (and an occasional steelhead) is to troll just off the dropoff. Troll slow with Mepps spinner, Jig A Do, Rapala, small Flatfish, Dare-Devil, etc.

If it's the kids you want to please, try dunking worms off docks or near weeds for rock bass and perch. (One of 'em is apt to nail a four-pound bass, though. So be prepared to blush.)

IF YOU hanker to try some of Walloon Lake's renowned angling you can rent a boat in the village, or launch your own at several public sites.

Walloon continues to produce some of the biggest bass in northern Lower Michigan.

STREAM fishermen will find the trout fishing slow on the lower end of the Jordan river, guide Ted Kotowich reports. But, he says, some nice catches of browns are coming from the headwaters.

The short section of the Boyne River that is still open to the public is also reported to be producing fine trout fishing.

IF YOUR fancy runs more to worm dunking, there are plenty of small creeks around that harbor trout. You can try Stover, Deer, Monroe, the Bear out of Walloon Lake, and several that feed into the Jordan.

Worm dunkers also have a good time off the Pine River breakwaters and the railroad bridge, where they can sit and soak up the charm of the Charlevoix harbor and luxury yachts.

If you feel more confident fishing small lakes there's no shortage of them in the Charlevoix-Ellsworth area.

THERE IS still a handful of virtually unexploited small lakes known by only a few fishermen. Pike weighing in the 20 pound class and bass that top five pounds come from them.

But to reveal their whereabouts to print would be a violation of an angler's most sacred oath. So dig out a map or buy a native fisherman a drink and find them yourself. Here's a list, though, of a few of the smaller lakes that are better known and guaranteed to have fish in them:

--Nowland Lake, for pike, bass, panfish.

--Six Mile Lake, for pike, bass and muskie.

--Ellsworth Lake, for pike, bass and panfish.

--Adams Lake for pike and panfish.

--Deer Lake for bass and pike.

IF YOU'RE looking for real fishing adventure journey to Beaver Island. Once in St. James, you can rent a small boat to take you into the bays of Garden and Hog Islands.

These bays are among the nation's top-ranked smallmouth hotspots. However, there's no guarantee you'll find the bass in the shallows and hungry. When the fishing's good, it's fantastic. But when it's bad, it's as bad as anywhere else.

There is also reported to be some good fishing on some of the smaller inland lakes on Beaver Island. When you get to St. James ask around and see where they are biting.

One-day scenic, historic tour

Charlevoix resorters seeking a momentary change of pace will find an abundance of Michigan's beauty and history within a comfortable one-day round-trip drive of their cottage.

One of the most interesting "Charlevoix-and-back" auto tours recommended by the Automobile Club of Michigan is the shoreline route to Mackinaw City, across the Big Mac bridge and on to Sault Ste. Marie.

The way the Auto Club charted it out for Playtime, this is a 260 mile round trip. The Club's tour department reports this is generally about the mileage that can be covered comfortably in one day.

You'll want to take your time so you won't miss the many unmarked scenic overlooks that suddenly pop into view as you round a curve on the road between Harbor Springs and Cross Village. Good restaurants and picnic grounds abound along the route.

The first lap of your trip will take you up the shore 27 miles to Harbor Springs, where you will want to make a special point of visiting Chief Blackbird's home, which is now a museum. Harbor's yacht basin will also interest you, as will the Holy Childhood Indian Mission School.

Heading out of Harbor Springs up the shore, the next 19 miles to Cross Village are among the most beautiful in Michigan. Attractions include the Indian church under the hill at Good Hart, the Great Lake's Indian Museum and huge cross marking Father Marquette's landing in Cross Village.

From Cross Village it is 23 more scenic miles to Mackinaw City and a breathtaking view of the Mackinac Bridge and historic tour of Fort Michilimackinac.

The five-mile drive across the bridge to St. Ignace will give you a panoramic view of the Straits of Mackinac and you will marvel at the construction and engineering genius that went into Mighty Mac.

Historic St. Ignace boasts numerous attractions, including Castle Rock, Fort Algonquin Museum, Marquette Park and an Indian burial ground.

If your day isn't complete enough at this point, it is 55 miles to Sault Ste. Marie, the third oldest continuous white settlement in North America. There's a viewing stand where you can enjoy shipwatching at the Soo Locks, the busiest in the world. Or you can take a two-hour sightseeing boat cruise of the locks, take the Soo Tour Train, visit historic Diorama of the Soo and Brady Park.

For the return trip you may want to take US-31 out of Mackinaw City, instead of retracing your route up the shoreline through Cross Village. If you return by US-31 you will want to turn off the highway for a few blocks to see "old Levering," which is now a ghost town, and enjoy Pellston, Alanson, Oden and Conway, before, perhaps, stopping for dinner at one of Petoskey's many marvelous restaurants and then home to the cool splendor of a Charlevoix sunset.

"Years ago, a man who saved his money was a miser. Today he's a miracle worker."

CHARLEVOIX is easily accessible by air. The city's new municipal airport welcomes flyers from all over the mid-west.

Petoskey stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone—the state stone of Michigan.

Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "cotony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful—if you have a sharp eye—many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Belis Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

'Spider' dune rides offer thrills aplenty

ATWOOD -- Sand dune rides--long a popular form of recreation in western Michigan--are available at this Antrim County community 12 miles south of Charlevoix.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider Sand Dune Rides," offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian campground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

ESSENBERG says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour.

"Kids simply refuse to get out, and teenagers start begging for money so they can ride again."

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Charlevoix is located 604 feet above sea level and has an average temperature of 45 degrees. The average summer temperature is 68.2 degrees, based on records of the past 22 years.

How about boat ride?

IRONTON -- How about a short boat ride?

For 35 cents, you, your car and your family can take a five-minute boat ride across the mouth of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Ferry docks are located at Ironton, about seven miles south east of Charlevoix on M-66, and at the tip of the high, rolling peninsula which separates Lake Charlevoix from the South Arm.

THE FERRY runs from early spring until late December, or whenever ice conditions make the passage impossible.

The ferry ride makes a scenic expedition of the trip to or from East Jordan and Boyne City to Charlevoix.

Shuffleboard Courts Open

Shuffleboard fans will be able to practice their sport during their Charlevoix County vacation.

Courts are located in East Park and at the Lake Michigan Beach in Charlevoix, at East Jordan's Tourist Park

Station probes fish world

A new era has come to the Great Lakes. The era of the sports fishermen. And Charlevoix is the key to making that era an enduring one.

The Conservation Dept. recognized this by establishing the Great Lakes Fishery Station in the old Charlevoix National Fish Hatchery and assigning its new 63-foot Great Lakes survey boat, the Steelhead, to the station.

The station and boat are under the supervision of Myrl Keller, a graduate biologist and member of a pioneer Great Lakes commercial fishing family. Bill Palmer, an Oneida Indian, is skipper of the Steelhead.

The station and boat, the only ones of their kind on the Great Lakes, represent the first comprehensive effort made to gather information on fish in the lakes so that their long-ignored sport fishing potential can be developed. The station was dedicated May 2, 1968.

It's Keller and Palmer's job to find out where the coho and chinook salmon are, what they are eating, how fast they are growing, etc. From this, and other information, gathered by its elite Charlevoix crew, the Conservation Dept. will plan and develop programs to provide maximum sports fishing for salmon, trout and other Great Lakes species.

The Steelhead is equipped with the most modern fish survey gear, including sophisticated electronic equipment and conventional rigs for netting fish. It has just one mission: Prowl the Inland Seas in search of better sports fishing.

NO BURNINGS—George Washington University, located in the nation's capital, is offering a course in witchcraft and sorcery which is supposed to give students an insight into forms of modern political behavior.

A Breath of Fresh Air for American Industry

American industry is looking for a breath of fresh air. And, increasingly, it's finding it in the countryside.

That's partly because in the countryside there's electric power, provided by Consumer-owned rural electric systems, to turn the wheels of industry. And the people who built and own the rural electric systems are there, too, helping provide local leadership and manpower.

It's a big job. It means coordinating state and Federal programs with rural needs. It means setting up job training programs and improved community facilities. It means consulting services for existing and newly-formed small businesses. It means imaginative planning for new industries and new communities.

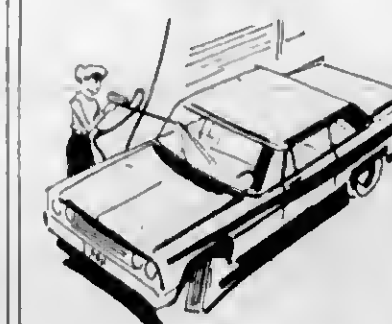

The fresh air that industry is finding in rural America means progress and growth for all of us.

THE STEELHEAD, the Conservation Dept.'s new Great Lakes fish survey vessel at work on Lake Michigan just outside the pierheads at Charlevoix. The 63-foot, $105,000 boat is equipped with sophisticated and traditional fish finding and sampling gear.

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our fascinating bridge

CHARLEVOIX--No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over the Pine River channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained and built by the State Highway Dept., the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders--Ted Bergmann, Elmer Gibson, Chick Gallagher--and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries US31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

The bridge is raised for vessels too high to pass under it between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. The bridge is required to open only every half hour--three minutes before and three minutes after the hour and half hour--for commercial and pleasure boats. A long blast and a short blast of a boat's horn are the signal to get the bridge raised. The bridge tender answers the boat's whistle and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals.

The first step in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches to warn traffic. Gates are lowered across the highway and sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However, the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

Increasing boat and highway traffic in recent years has led to longer and longer pileups on US31, particularly during the height of the summer season.

According to the highway department 103,071 cars had to wait for the bridge during the most recent 12 months survey period, costing motorists an estimated accumulated total of 286.2 days delay. Last year the bridge opened 3,685 times. Of these, 1,047 openings were in July and 691 in August. In an effort to eliminate unnecessary openings last year the bridge tenders were instructed by the State not to open the bridge if boats would have enough clearance by lowering their radio antennas.

More restrictive action was taken this year with the new regulation limiting "required" bridge openings to every half hour. Traffic conditions on US31 allowing, the bridge tenders are attempting to be as liberal as possible in implementing these regulations for the convenience of boaters. Any boater in trouble coming in from Lake Michigan can have the bridge raised immediately by blowing a distress signal. However, persons who needlessly lake advantage of this can be prosecuted.

Let's save the Jordan

The Jordan River has been called the least spoiled of Northern Lower Michigan's major trout streams, by Dr. Howard Tanner, father of Michigan's Coho and Chinook programs. Dr. Tanner was raised near the Jordan and spent what he considers some of the best days of his boyhood on the Jordan learning to use a fly rod.

His plea to "Save the Jordan!" from the rapidly encroaching threat of "progress" has been taken up. Laws have been enacted and are now being enforced to halt development along the banks of the Jordan. The Conservation

Dept. is attempting to buy all of the stream frontage it can to preserve the Jordan in its wilderness state. But the pressures are great.

Money and "profit" are the great destroyers. You can help. You must help if the Jordan is to be saved!

Respect this lone survivor of Michigan's once numerous unspoiled trout streams. Don't litter its banks. Don't cut trees or burn indiscriminately. Tell your friends you are an advocate of "Saving the Jordan." If you have a buck or two to spare send it to "Save the Jordan", Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. We'll see that it gets to the people who will use it to build a stronger campaign to "Save the Jordan."

If you haven't visited the Jordan yet there is plenty of reason to do so. Brown trout weighing up to 15 pounds have been caught in on flies. Some experts contend even bigger brownies are lurking in this beautiful stream. Guides are available in East Jordan.

It's up to you

Preservation of Fisherman's Island and the nearby Lake Michigan shoreline as a "natural area" has been proposed by area conservationists.

The small island, about five miles south of Charlevoix at the end of the Bell's Bay road, is only about a 100 yards off some of the least spoiled Lake Michigan shoreline remaining in the Lower Peninsula.

The area can be reached by driving past the Bell's Bay State Forest Campground to the end of the road and then walking a city block to the beach.

Persons interested in supporting the effort to save this magnificent natural area should write to Jack Lockwood, state forester, Conservation Dept., Boyne City, Mich.

BOYNE CITY'S Chamber of Commerce is located in this rustic log cabin. Beside the cabin is a billboard advertising Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival which draws thousands of persons in early May.

Boyne City offers much for summer, winter fun

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Roble Industrial Courier Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills.

In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has several area parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on its 536 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Indian past lives again at Greensky Hill church

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearly stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with things when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ojibwa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area.

Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation retreat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorbikes may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage.

Island has a mystery. Archeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

IN THE LATE 1840's, a band of Mormons led by James Josiah Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However, King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were aghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

THE 54-SQUARE mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the hunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes. Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James. Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

A-plant tours popular

CHARLEVOIX--One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumers Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles north-east of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone. Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

Summer concerts

Musicians will find plenty to please their ear in Charlevoix County.

The Charlevoix City Band has scheduled concerts in the park every Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. in East Park. Composed of local musicians, summer visitors and college students home for the holidays, the band is directed by C. A. Odmark. Boyne City band concerts also are scheduled Wednesday evenings at 8 in Memorial Park. Dancing follows each concert.

BAY VIEW Assembly just north of Petoskey has concerts scheduled every Sunday evening. With other musical events planned on weekday evenings throughout the summer.

Of course, the National Music Camp is located only a short distance south of Traverse City, with many fine concerts planned for the summer.

Golf courses lure players

Golfing is a favorite pastime among visitors and year-round residents alike. Here are some of the golf courses you might like to try.

Beaver Lodge Golf and Country Club, 9 holes, Beaver Island.

Miniature Golf Course, Harbor Hills, Beaver Island. Ye Nye Olde Holes, Iron-ton Ferry Rd., Boyne City.

Boyne Mountain Golf Course, 9 holes, Boyne Falls. Golf Driving Range, Walloon Lake.

Belvedere Golf Course, 18 holes, Charlevoix.

ing the summer. ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-motion picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Del-laire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

BIG ROCK POINT NUCLEAR POWER PLANT

CROWDS? At a Nuclear Plant?

Yes, we're busy but not congested. Thousands of visitors every year stop and see the Public Information Center at Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant just north of Charlevoix. Displays, exhibits, films and lectures tell the exciting story of the atom at work. You'll find it an unexcelled educational experience for your children. Come to the fair

CHARLEVOIX -- Artists from throughout Michigan and nearby states will converge on Charlevoix August 10 for the 10th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen.

The fair is held in East Park, against a backdrop of Round Lake and the yacht basin.

In fact, many artists come to Charlevoix by boat to show their wares.

Exhibitors are allowed space throughout the park to display their wares.

In addition to paintings of all kinds, wood carving, ceramics and sculpture are on the bill of fare.

On the park stage, Mr. and Mrs. Nate Cummings of Chicago usually show some of the paintings from their personal collections, which include work by Picasso, Renoir and Degas.

The fair has become famous among Michigan painters because many visitors have a pendant for buying. One summer a sculpture student sold his entire work. His profits allowed him to continue his studies at the University of Michigan.

The exhibit appears to professionals too, which many well established artists numbered among the regular exhibitors.

The fair also fills a genuine need in northern Michigan, where museums and art galleries are few and far between. Youngsters and adults are given an opportunity to see original works of art and to chat with their creators.

This year's fair is under the direction of Mrs. Edward McNemara of Dixon Ave.

BOYNE CITY'S Gall Meyer receives her bouquet of roses from Charlevoix All-American Bob Carey to become the first non-Charlevoix beauty to wear the Venetian Queen's crown at Sunday's ceremony in East Park.

MORE THAN 10,000 people are estimated to have gathered in downtown Charlevoix to enjoy the 1968 Venetian Festival.

Downtown fire alarm fizzles, leaving Venetian night unmarred

Charlevoix lucked out Venetian night. What could have turned into one of the town's historic disasters went up in a puff of smoke.

With an estimated 5,000 people jamming the downtown business district and west shore of Round Lake to watch the Sunday evening boat parade and fireworks, the city's volunteer firemen were called to a fire on the roof of Meridian's hardware shop.

Had the fire had a head start or really got to blazing untold havoc could have resulted in trying to clear the area for firemen. Cars were so jammed into the area it was difficult to walk around them. People were standing elbow-to-elbow.

Many of Charlevoix's volunteer firemen were already tired from putting in a full day at other volunteer community projects.

But the fire turned out to be a piece of burning trash. It was easily extinguished by stomping on it.

So except for a slight rain squall minutes before Boyne City's lovely Gall Meyer was crowned Venetian Queen by Bob Carey of Cincinnati, the festival was marked only by fun and excitement.

Miss Meyer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mel Meyer, is the first non-Charlevoix girl to ever wear the Venetian crown.

The judges selected her over six other north country beauties. The other contestants were Miss Charlevoix, Mary Beth Goodenough; Miss East Jordan, Cynthia Redamer; Miss Petoskey, Kathy Lawrence; Miss Alpenfest, Gaylord; Lynne Bergquist; Miss Traverse City, Cynthia Ann Clark; and Miss Cheboygan, Linda Lucier.

Many young people participated in the Doll, Pet and Dress-up parade Sunday afternoon. Chairman of the parade was Mrs. Ralph Doan and master of ceremonies was Bill Supernaw.

Winners of the pet parade included first prize, Cheryl Cain; Detroit, who entered her dog decorated as a hot dog; second prize, Elizabeth Postma, Finn

Zeroes in on discipline

Kenney seeks school changes

Charlevoix Board of Education President Glenn Kenney Monday evening cited discipline, English and counseling as needing improvement.

Kenney let the school board and school administrators know he wants to see some changes.

In his first meeting since being re-elected board president for a second term, Kenney said he feels discipline has deteriorated. He said he does not feel the school is doing as good a job as it can or should in preparing graduates for college English and in counseling.

Kenney also appointed school board committee chairmen: Burr Blanchard, building and grounds; Dale Boss, transportation; Mrs. Fran Dooper, public library; Jerry Redeker, finance; and Jim Lewis, union negotiations.

He will also ask CHS graduates for their opinion on the school's counseling program.

To deal with the discipline problem, Kenney said he will call a special meeting of the board with Mrs. Lillian Bergmann, county juvenile officer; Sheriff Philo Sumner and Police Chief Joe Smith.

Mrs. Bergmann, whose records indicate Charlevoix's juvenile delinquency problem has doubled in recent years, asked for such a meeting, Kenney said.

Kenney said he has spoken to school administrators and experts recommendations from them on improving discipline.

The board president cited the widespread lack of respect among young people for authority, but asked, "I don't think we have to accept it."

Kenney said he has wanted to probe there three areas—discipline, English and counseling—since being elected to the board, but due to the press of other school business has always put them off.

The board authorized its architects to advertise for construction bids on the north - side elementary school and improvements to the old elementary. Bids will be opened 7:30 p.m. September 5.

On Boss's suggestion, the board unanimously decided to include a fish pond in the new elementary school, to preserve a 40 - year - old tradition, which started when the fish pond was built in the old elementary in 1928. The new fish pond may be in the school lobby.

The architect warned the board that due to recent labor strikes in the building industry, construction costs may be up.

The board approved hiring two new teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Ford, who are now teaching in Colorado. Mrs. Ford will replace Joan McPherson in high school English. Mr. Ford will replace Mrs. Rex Milligan in the fifth grade.

Air pollution branded as disrespect for law

Medusa's failure to comply with the Charlevoix Township air pollution ordinance was compared this week to the lawlessness of big city rioters.

The Boulder Park Association, in a letter written by its president, Monte M. Korn, made the comparison. Korn also said a lawsuit will be started in a week or ten days if Medusa does not begin to comply with the law.

Korn's letter to Medusa board chairman Ellery Sedgewick Jr., cited rioting in Cleveland, Medusa's home city. Korn wrote that the rioting was caused by "utter disrespect for the law."

"Just as you and your company would want the laws in Cleveland enforced, residents of Charlevoix insist that Medusa comply with its laws," Korn wrote.

The Boulder Park Association president referred specifically to Medusa's failure to "register with the township the nature, estimated quantity and sources of the air contaminants you produce," as required in the township air pollution code.

Primary election confusing

The most complex and confusing election in memory faces Charlevoix area voters when they go to the polls for the August 6 primary Tuesday.

All polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Candidates for three newly-created offices will be on the ballot, along with county, state and national candidates, delegates to county political conventions and three proposed amendments to the state constitution.

The new offices, which have never before been on the ballot are:

1. A second Circuit Court judge for this circuit, which includes Charlevoix, Antrim, Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties. The second Circuit Judge will work (CONTINUED ON PAGE 7)

Meggison bids for seat on county board

Election of new members to the Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors appears to present the most confusing aspect of the raggedly confusing August 6 primary election.

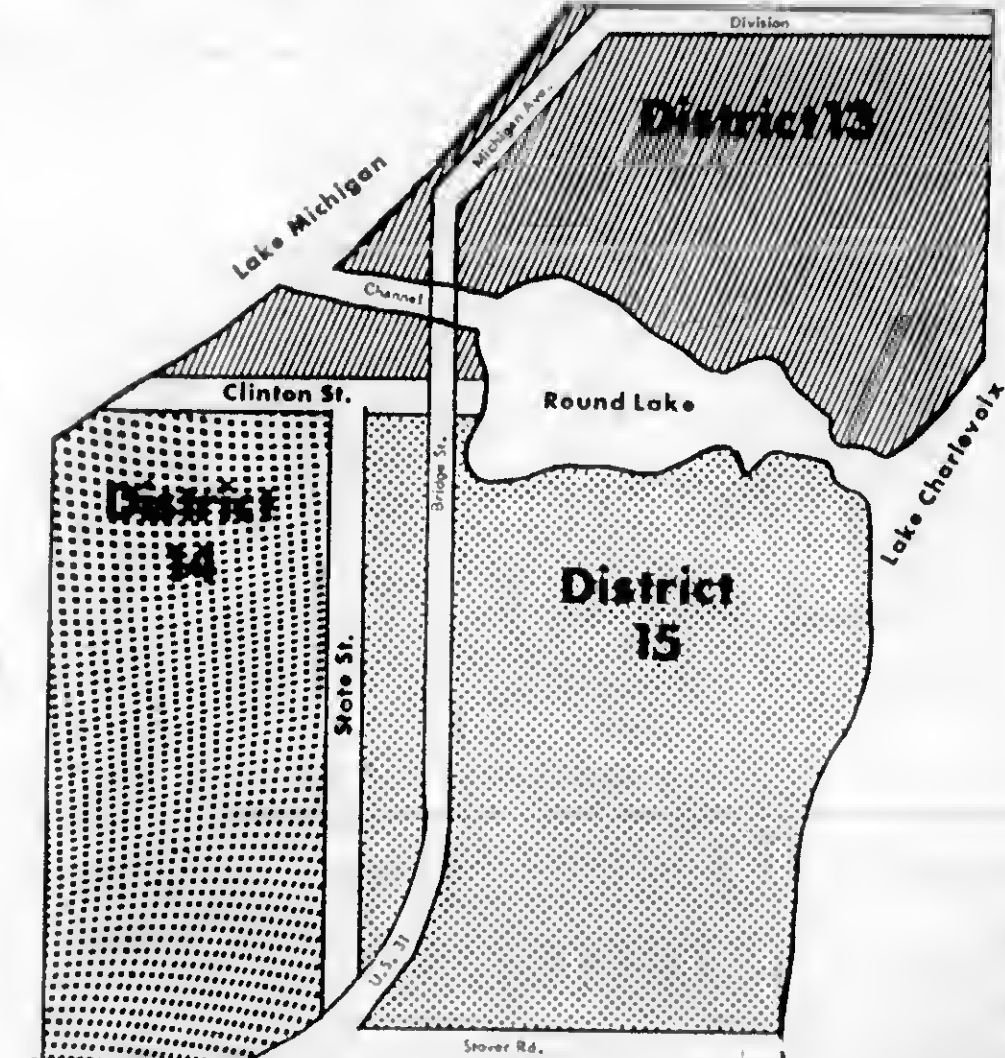

Charlevoix County will elect 15 members to the board of supervisors. The new County Supervisors will replace the present city and township supervisors on the county board. However, the city and township supervisors will continue to serve their cities and townships, but will not sit on the County Board.

Only three of the county's 15 township supervisors have decided to give up their township posts for a chance to serve on the county board.

All city supervisors from Charlevoix and East Jordan and two from Boyne City are running for the county board. If elected they will relinquish their responsibilities as city supervisors.

The 15-member county board was created by a state law requiring that all County Supervisors represent an equal number of

CHARLEVOIX'S NEW County Supervisor districts do not follow city ward lines, as seen in this map. Some Second Ward voters will now vote in Supervisor District 13. The remaining area of the old Second Ward is in Supervisor District 14. Third Ward voters will cast ballots for Supervisor District 15 candidate Leo Moerland.

The Supervisor District boundary lines within the city are District 13—Everything north of the center of Clinton St. from Lake Michigan to Round Lake and everything on the north side of Round Lake; District 14—Everything south of the center of Clinton St. and west of the center of State St.; District 15—Everything east of State St. and south of the center of Clinton from State St. east and south of Round Lake.

GOP has two races on county primary ballot

Only two primary elections for the county of Charlevoix will be on the ballot Tuesday, August 6.

Incumbent Republican being challenged are Sheriff Philo Sumner and Prosecutor Harvey Varum.

Charlevoix attorney Don Berlage, 39, is opposing Varum. He is also opposing Sheriff Philo Sumner, who is running for re-election.

Former Boyne City Police Chief Everett Hadz is opposing Sumner. Sumner was appointed sheriff in 1965. He is running for re-election.

Republicans on the ballot, but without primary competition, are Clarence Rabach who is running for clerk, and the Antrim board felt the north end of the Circuit would get better service from judge who lived and made his office in Charlevoix or Antrim counties.

The legislature, however, did not require that the circuit judge live in the county.

The new Circuit judge will serve with Judge Charles Brown, who will continue on the bench. The legislature approved making Brown's 13th Judicial Circuit a two-judge job at the request of boards of supervisors in the four counties Brown serves.

The 13th Circuit includes Charlevoix, Antrim, Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties. Judge Brown's workload, reportedly, was one of the highest of any judge in the state, causing long delays in obtaining court action.

Antrim County's board of supervisors asked the legislature to add a second judge to the circuit only if he came from Charlevoix or Antrim counties. This stipulation was prompted by the fact Judge Brown lives in Traverse City.

The following patients were discharged from Charlevoix Hospital:

Charlevoix - Carl Mitchell, Ira Brown, Susan Left, Myrna Jellie, Trellis Norman, Antoinette DeVerse, Carrie Sneed, Elizabeth Par-

Others were: Leslie Collins and Mary Blisbee, Jackson; Janet Neal, Indianapolis; Iodana, Charles Group and Linda Kiesel, Central Lake; Robert Womack, Beloit; Stella Kasevich and Jeffrey Lambdin, Ironton; Kenneth Finicle and Sylvester Shook, Ellsworth; Thur, Hawkins, Birmingham; Carl Bradley, Boyne City; Everett Steel, Mr. Morris and Suzanne Bradbury, Washington, D.C.

Three attorneys seek District judge's seat

Three candidates for the newly created District Court judgeship will be on the primary ballot August 6. The three candidates who get the largest vote will be on the November general election ballot, when one will be elected.

Candidates are John Michael of Charlevoix, Wayne Richard Smith of Petoskey and John Murphy of Petoskey. All are attorneys.

The District Judge will replace Justice of the peace. He will serve both Emmet and Charlevoix counties. The two counties make up the new 90th District. The District Judge's salary will be a minimum of $15,000.

In addition to taking over all duties of the present JP courts in the two counties, the District judge will have jurisdiction over some of the minor civil and criminal cases now handled by the Circuit Court.

The District judge will be authorized to appoint "magistrates" to process routine traffic violations which are not handled by the Circuit Court.

The only candidate in Tuesday's primary election who does live and practice law in the north is Robert Klevorn of Boyne City. All other candidates are from the Traverse City area.

The other candidates are Ormond S. Danford, 53, of Traverse City; James M. Fitzpatrick of Traverse City and Glenn Aylsworth, 43, of Traverse City.

Thieves nab barn siding

Thieves had better keep their hands off barn siding, as they recently returned from a seven month deployment in the Far East and is undergoing overhaul at the Naval Shipyard in Long Beach.

Heise aboard anti-sub ship

German Apprentice-Clasme P. Heise, 19N, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence P. Heise Sr., of Charlevoix, is serving aboard the anti-submarine warfare support aircraft carrier USS Yorktown at Long Beach, California. His ship recently returned from a seven month deployment in the Far East and is undergoing overhaul at the Naval Shipyard in Long Beach.

Mold tumbles 3-2 to County Bank in second round

American Mold clinched the first round title with a clutch 10-5 win over Medium despite the fact that ace pitcher Steve Bos was out of town and unable to pitch. Brother Herb took over the pitching chores and did a strong job. Ken Wozniak took care of the hitting department, closing two home runs and a single to place the winners in their important victory. A loss would have forced them into a playoff with Morwell, who finished just one game off the pace.

Mold's venture into the first game of the second round wasn't such a pleasant experience however, as a much-improved County Bank team edged them 3-2 on Tom Drumth's two-out double in the bottom of the seventh, scoring the tying and winning run. Herb Bos allowed the winners seven hits, while Mike Crain sprinkled five hits through the seven frames.

Morwell clinched second place with a 10-5 win over Wilson's. Six runs in the fourth inning were all the boys from Ellsworth needed to post their fifth win of the season. Bob Klooster continued his near-home run-per-game clip, with a three-run clout in that big fourth inning.

Continue island search

Coast Guardsmen from northwestern lower Michigan are continuing the search, but with little hope, for an Oakland County politician who risked the water of Lake Michigan near Beaver Island in a small open boat Saturday.

Murphy reportedly rented a 14-foot aluminum skiff Saturday from Wojan's Boat Livery at St. Ignace. The overturned boat was found on the beach near the southwest tip of Garden Island, just outside Garden Island harbor.

L. Luedke said three patrol boats, a helicopter and airplane joined the search. A ground search party was also organized to scour Garden Island.

West and northwest winds that reportedly reach an unofficial speed of 35 knots whipped through the treacherous Garden Island passage during the weekend.

Murphy, a Democrat, was elected Oakland County Clerk in 1964. He was reportedly unopposed for re-election in next Tuesday's primary election. He has six children.

Miles wins ocean cruise

Mr. and Mrs. L.V. Miles from Detroit Motorcade 29 to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. It was the beginning of a five-day South Sea Island cruise awarded the Miles for outstanding achievement in Ford car sales at Erber Auto Company.

The Miles' boarded a luxury ocean liner at St. Thomas for a cruise of the islands that will end in New York City on Friday.

Medina scored in nearly every inning to win a slugfest from Lake Construction by a 12-7 score. Don Smith and Sheldon had the hitting attack with three apiece while Steve Facalak and Terry Illaseth took over the pitching chores and did a strong job. Ken Wozniak took care of the hitting department, closing two home runs and a single to place the winners in their important victory. A loss would have forced them into a playoff with Morwell, who finished just one game off the pace.

Circlin' the Bases

The Ats Force proved to be much tougher however, as they looked up for a 10-inning affair that was full of outstanding fielding plays and clutch pitching. Norwell finally won it 2-1 but it took a bit of luck to do it. The servicemen jumped out to a 1-0 lead that lasted until Bob Klooster's solo home run in the fourth tied it. That's how it stood until the tenth when a lead-off Norwell single and a fielder's choice put the winning marker on second. Klooster was given an intentional pass and when the catcher threw the ball into center field trying for a pick-off play, the winning run scored.

The Astros won from the Dodgers 12-0 behind the one-hit pitching of Lee Simpson. Four runs in the first, third, and fourth innings turned the trick for the winners.

The Lions, who won the first round, added their opening putting the tying and winning run on base, but a long fly ball ended the contest.

Novaks squeaked by the Freedmans with a narrow 10-9 victory, scoring the winning run in the last inning when Duane Taylor tripled in the winning marker. Howard's Oilers of Boyne City scored five runs in the first and third innings to take the USCG 10-5.

County approves Sunday drinking

The Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors drew its largest audience in more than a year Friday when it approved sale of liquor for the glass on Sunday.

Nearly 20 persons turned out at the board debated the issue for about 45 minutes and then passed it 18 to 6.

The new law will authorize businesses which sell liquor and food or other services to serve liquor on Sundays after 2 p.m. Among those which may be eligible are restaurants, such as the Grey Gables, Argonne and Weatherly.

The big push for Sunday liquor in Charlevoix County came from Boyne Mountain Lodge, which also owns Thunder Mountain and Walloon Hills. All three reportedly will qualify.

Chuck Moll, Boyne Mountain manager, told the supervisors Sunday liquor is necessary to their convention business. Boyne Mt., he said, hosts about 200 conventions a year. The fact that Sunday liquor is legal in other states, and now in neighboring counties (Antrim and Emmet) would put Boyne at competitive disadvantage if they were barred from providing the same service, Moll explained.

Rev. Donald Schersch of Charlevoix said he has never heard anyone say Charlevoix County is second rate because it does not offer liquor on Sunday.

The Sunday liquor was authorized by the state legislature under pressure from Detroit convention goers. However, the bill left the final decision in each county up to the board of supervisors.

East Jordan Supervisor Bill Taylor said that because it is "an election year the legislature didn't want to make the 'drys' mad, so they threw it to us."

Charlevoix Second Ward Supervisor Ken Staley branded the liquor bill as "unreasonable" and "cowardly." He pointed out that the stage for discriminatory competitive advantages for businesses in last year in Charlevoix Township, Medusa commenced operation of its cement plant in clear violation of its township law. This violation, of course, is contrary to the repeated assurances made by Medusa to the citizens of Charlevoix prior to construction of the plant. It was claimed over and over again that Medusa would be a good citizen and comply in all respects with the Township Air Quality Control Code.

Part of the Code required that prior to operation of the plant you register with the Township the nature, estimated quantity, and sources of the air contaminants you produce.

This registration you failed to make, and still have not made, apparently disregarding the fact that the penalty provides for a fine and imprisonment for each day that a violation continues.

Just as you and your company would want the laws in Cleveland enforced, residents of Charlevoix insist that Medusa comply with its laws.

As Chief Officer of Medusa, you should insist that the company obey the law and make the registration of air contaminants. You should also insist that Medusa follow the letter and spirit of law with respect to amount of air contaminants emitted by the plant so that the previous nuisance condition of dust, dirt and noise be eliminated and the people in this area are once more secure in the enjoyment of their property and are not being subjected to an industrial health hazard.

The new County Supervisor District boundaries in Charlevoix are shown on the map on page 1 of this week's Courier.

The two primary election contests for County Supervisor which have generated the most interest are in the Charlevoix area.

In District 13 (Charlevoix's first ward and part of the Second Ward), Don Neugeboren has challenged incumbent Kim Carson for the Republican nomination. The winner will have no Democratic competition in the November general election.

In District 3 (Hayes and Charlevoix Townships) three Republicans are seeking the nomination. They are Jack Erber and Clayton Smith of Charlevoix Township and Robert Bergman of Hayes Township. The winner of the GOP primary contest will face incumbent Hayes Township Supervisor Lee Swenson Jr., a Democrat, in the November general election.

In District 2 (Marion, Norwood, Pease and St. James Townships) a Republican and a Democrat are seeking the nomination. Clyde Cunningham is unopposed. Cunningham will give up his post as Marion Township Supervisor to retain his seat on the County Board, of which he is chairman.

The only other primary contest for supervisor is in District 6 (Walloon Lake, Metoskey and Chander). Republican incumbent Barney Adelson and Harry Griffin are seeking the nomination.

Candidates from other districts who are unopposed in the primary are Charles Lelak, a Democrat, and Ira L. Davis, a Republican in District 4 (Hay and Evansline Townships); William Carson, a Republican, in District 7 (Boyne Falls, Boyne Township and Hudson); Republicans Forbes Tompkins, Harry Tompkins and John Kuusela in Boyne City Districts 10, 11 and 12.

In East Jordan's County Supervisor District 8 two Republican incumbents, Mrs. Thera Kotowich and Bill Taylor are opposing each other for the nomination.

Doll parade winners were first Christina Shavover of Charlevoix with a foreign doll; second, Deann Haggard of Charlevoix, with three generations of dolls; and third, Kristy Heitholt of Charlevoix who wore an Indian costume and carried an Indian doll.

All Stars split with Kalamazoo

In the Venetian All Star game the local stars split a doubleheader with Ham's of Kalamazoo, winning the second game 10-0 after dropping the first 7-4.

Nate Boss hurled a neat three-hitter shutting out the Kalamazoo sluggers in the second contest. His teammates scored in every inning but two. Gary Stutzman and Perry Bennett combined base hits to score three in the first inning. Stutzman's double and Ken Bach's two-bagger, along with Glen Mayhew's single, accounted for three more in the second and the winner's were never headed.

In the opening game three Kalamazoo homers were too much for the All stars even though they countered with Gary Stutzman's and John Ferguson's two run round-trippers themselves. Sonny Wright took the loss, allowing eight hits.

It was an ideal morning for the Mile Swim which is always a highlight of the season. All our boats and staff were lined up in the lake along the route of the swim, and it was great sight to see wave after wave of boys take to the water. 'Slow farming' suits him

Elijah O'Brien gets his farming "slow" way

"A fella's gotta farm fast now days," according to Elijah O'Brien.

Elijah, 79, roamed this country before the big timber was gone and before tractors and other mechanized equipment turned farming into a race with computers.

He isn't ready, or willing to "farm fast." And, of course, he doesn't have to.

All he needs to do is raise enough feed for his two Belgian work horses, Queen and Bonnie. So the two purebreds earn their own way.

Elijah works about 18 acres on his Barnard Rd. homestead (the first farm on the right after turning off US-31). Three acres are oats, eight are hay and five are general produce.

At 24 and 25 years old, Queen and Bonnie don't feel any more like sprinting than does their nearly four-score old master. Elijah and his team, however, will fool a casual passerby who takes their antiquated appearance at face value. There's plenty of spirit left in the trio.

Intermediate board oks $370,996 budget

Budgets totaling $370,996 for the 1968-69 fiscal year were approved last week for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

The intermediate school board approved a $89,250 general fund budget and a tentative $301,746 budget for special education. The special education budget may not be completely spent if all jobs cannot be filled. Supt. Charles Robinson said.

All but about $13,000 of the general fund budget is allocated to salaries. General fund revenue includes $23,050 from state aid, $23,300 from a local .2 mill tax levy, $3,500 from local districts and $400 from Teachers' Institute.

Special education expenses will run $29,948 above anticipated revenue if all the special education posts are filled. The district expects $199,300 in state aid and $72,500 from a local half-mill local tax levy, for a total of $271,800.

Major item in the special education budget is also for salaries. A total of $134,825 has been earmarked for four school social workers, five speech correctioists, one half-time teacher-counselor, one type "C" consultant, two diagnosticians and one director.

The board also asked Central Lake School District to try to sell a 60-acre parcel. It purchased in 1965 as the site of a school for the mentally retarded and to refund $7,000 which the intermediate district had kicked in toward the purchase.

As a result of this drastic increase in taxation, plus sharp increases in other operating expenses, the company reported its net income for the year ended June 30, 1968, declined 3.7 percent to $85,204,553, compared to $87,691,024 reported in the previous 12 months.

Earnings per share on the average number of shares outstanding, after dividends for preferred stock, were $2.72, compared to $2.83 for the 12 months ended June 30, 1967.

Last week they were haying. It almost looked like fun (unless you remembered trying to handle a team of horses when you were the youngest hand on the farm). It certainly wasn't what you'd call "farming fast."

In fact it was slow enough that Elijah found time to sit and chat for an hour or so. Bonnie and Queen stood by, seeming to almost be in on the conversation.

There was no baling machine. The team stood quietly by while Elijah forked hay onto the high-sided wagon. Most people have forgotten that hay was once taken loose from the fields to mows. Even today's farm kids don't know about the fun--and danger--of tunneling and sliding through loose-stacks mountains of hay.

Queen and Bonnie, Elijah points out, are not cut out for competition pulling. He's had a couple of teams that were "You can just tell the difference," he explains.

Strong teams were a necessity years ago when the roads were a quagmire. The Barnard road was then part of the main artery between Charlevoix and Traverse City. Farmers and others bringing freight into Charlevoix from the south frequently needed another team to help them up the big hill just beyond the O'Brien farm. Elijah supplied the team.

When the sugar beet factory was running full tilt getting wagon loads of beets up the hill became such a problem that farmers pioneered a trail around the hill behind Elijah's barn. (Ital Forberg demolished most of the remaining walls of the historic factory near the Co-op three years ago.)

Elijah did own a tractor once. For about two hours. He bought it at an auction. After the auction he decided it was too cold to drive it home that afternoon. Before the day was out someone showed up and offered him more than he had paid for it. So Queen and Bonnie never shared the farm with a rival.

If you're gonna farm serious, you just gotta farm big and fast. But Elijah O'Brien doesn't have to get that serious. And he isn't about to.

Modern farming, he points out, has even done away with most of the bothersome chores farm kids used to be pestered with. This concerns Elijah more than the other changes in farming.

He recalls that he didn't particularly like being kept busy on the farm when he was a kid. But he sympathizes with the restlessness of today's youth, feeling he was lucky to have something responsible to divert his energies 65 years ago.

Elijah's father came to Charlevoix in 1867. He landed at Newwood and made his way north and inland to where Island View estate is now located on US-31. Elijah was born there.

During World War II Elijah took a factory job in Detroit. When he returned to his Barnard Rd. farm after the war he went to work for South Bend Tool and Die Co.--and kept working the farm with horses.

When South Bend went out of business here 13 years ago he retired. He and Mrs. O'Brien find plenty to keep them busy around the farm.

Before the day was out someone showed up and offered him more than he had paid for it. So Queen and Bonnie never shared the farm with a rival.

"FAST FARMING" doesn't appeal to Elijah and his faithful Queen and Bonnie. Last week they were cutting hay the slow, old fashioned way. It worked just dandy. As it has for generations.

Library Notes

Books on current problems are apt to be out of date in some details, even before they reach the book stores or library shelves. However, as long as the problems exist, the ideas and philosophies expressed in these books should still be of interest. There are some recent books on a variety of topics, which are available at the public library:

The Wrong Man in Uniform, by Bruce K. Chapman. "Our unfair and obsolete draft-and how we can replace it."

Test Ban and Disarmament, by Arthur H. Dean. "The path of negotiation in the prevention of further proliferation of nuclear weapons."

The Bitter Heritage, by Alan F. Westin, Julian H. Franklin, Howard R. Swearer and Paul E. Sigmond. A collection of foreign commentaries on American life, covering views held in various other countries, concerning our ideology, politics, society, economy and foreign policy. Also 22 articles by U.S. authors, on current American reaction to foreign commentary and an analysis of the meaning of foreign opinion.

Joy In Fellowship

"The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore, the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest." Luke 10:2.

This admonition clearly indicates that there is something more required for spiritual growth than mere moral uprightness—that there is a job to be done. It implies that each of us should help with the work of pointing the way and the importance of mutual helpfulness.

The Church is an organization of mutual helpfulness where each has an assignment to carry on in the harvest, to sell the fellowship to others. In this way is spiritual growth and the desire to spread it to others accomplished. For life to pay the greatest dividends it seems logical that each of us should affiliate with a church of our careful choosing, then work toward getting the most from its fellowship.

Woodlot owners offered help by state foresters

Landowners can continue to receive extra forest management assistance through the Conservation Department's forestry division in an expanded program to improve the quantity and quality of hardwood forests in Michigan's western lower peninsula, according to area forester Jack Lockwood.

Additional funds for this cooperative forestry assistance recently were made available by the U.S. Forest Service under its hardwood improvement program. Title management assistance is furnished free of charge to owners.

The program is intended to encourage woodland owners to market hardwood timber from stands that should be harvested or thinned under good forest management practices. Many mills can use additional timber to upgrade capacity and meet demands for forest products.

Technical assistance includes harvesting and thinning recommendations, marking of timber to be cut, information on markets and stumpage prices, lists of prospective buyers, timber sale methods and contracts.

Requests for assistance should be made to the Area Forester at Department of Conservation in Boyne City.

Judging by the number of possible arrangements for the letters of the alphabet, people should never run out of new things to say. The 26 letters can be transposed 920,448,401,733,369,000 ways.

ROSE WIKLANSKI has plenty of work cut out for her as new secretary at the Chamber of Commerce judging from the stacks on Chamber Secretary-Manager Wally Loder's desk.

Here's how tax increase will hit your pocketbook

A combination 10% income tax surcharge and $6 billion budget cut has been passed by Congress. It is the first Federal income tax increase in 17 years. The tax boost and budget cut are supposed to hold down price rises and at least keep interest rates level, if not lower them. Another goal is to restore confidence in the dollar to countries abroad.

This is how the increase works. The surcharge is retroactive to April 1 of this year for individuals and to January 1 for corporations. This means that the 1968 surtax for individuals will only be for 9 months, or 7.5%. Corporations will pay the full 10%.

This surtax is supposed to expire on June 30, 1969, making the payment only 5% that year for both individuals and business. But don't plan on it. Congress has the right to extend the increase and many important officials have hinted it may be necessary to do just that.

The effects of the measure start 15 days after it became law. Tax withholding on paychecks will go up 10%. For example, take a married person with 2 children who makes $200 a week. His tax withholding will go up from about $23.80 to about $25.90 - leaving him $2.10 less to spend. Single persons with the same income will lose more in spending money.

When setting with the Internal Revenue next April, you will figure your tax as usual, then add 7.5% of that amount. In figuring your 1969 tax the following April, you will add 5%. Although the surcharge this year will be only 7.5% on the full year's income tax, some people may find next April that they owe the government more than was withheld. This is because the increase is retroactive.

Self-employed persons and others who pay taxes by quarterly installments, add 15% to each of their quarterly payments Sept. 15 and next Jan. 15.

City revenue above estimates

The city of Charlevoix handled $743,324 during the fiscal year from Feb. 28, 1967 to Feb. 28, 1968, according to the audit report presented to the City Council last week.

The total revenues included $310,069 through the general fund, $412,727 through the electric utility ($85,000 of which was transferred to the general fund), $25,153 through the water department and $22,363 through the sewer department.

The general fund ended the year with a $21,088 cash balance, compared to a $15,203 deficit last year. Increased revenues from most sources, including the $85,000 from the electric fund, made the balance possible.

City Council had budgeted general fund revenues of $250,243, which was nearly $60,000 less than actually received. General fund expenditures totaled $228,278, about $21,000 more than the $207,243 budgeted to be spent.

The city had $255,000 in cash reserve funds invested in certificates of deposit in banks.

15. If you fail to do this, you risk a penalty of your estimated returns fall too far short of your actual tax liability at the end of the year.

Taxpayers exempt from the increase are those individuals owing a tax of $145 or less and couples who owe no more than $250. A family of four with an income of less than $5000 will not pay any surtax either. Individuals whose tax payments are slightly above the exempt level won't have to pay as much of a surcharge as others. This is because of a special rule which allows them to be taxed at a lower surcharge rate, with a sliding scale, phasing into the full amount for most people.

In addition to the increase, the present 10% tax on telephone service and 7% tax on new cars will continue. These were supposed to have expired in stages until they are eliminated, again unless Congress acts to continue them at the same level.

For business, this new increase means that for every $100,000 of profits over $25,000, a year, the tax bill will go from $48,000 to $52,000. In addition, they will have to pay their taxes on a stepped-up schedule, meaning additional cash, over and above the added taxes.

Emmet Probate judge seeks new judgeship

Emmet County Probate Judge John T. Murphy is a candidate for the office of Judge of the 10th District Court which will serve Charlevoix and Emmet Counties.

Judge Murphy, age 45, has been on the Probate Bench since January 1, 1953. Only 16 of the nearly 100 probate judges now serving in Michigan have been on the court longer.

Murphy has been active with the Michigan Probate and Juvenile Court Judges Association. He has served on every committee of the group, and in 1960 he was elected secretary-treasurer. In 1963 he was elected president of this state group. For many years he has lectured on the court's function and administration to judges, lawyers, and various educational or governmental organizations.

Although the Emmet County Probate Court annually processes more than a million dollars worth of assets and there have been hundreds of adoptions, mental commitments, and cases of delinquency or neglected children, Judge Murphy reports none of his decisions have been reversed.

In immediately following graduation from Peabody High School in 1943, Murphy entered the Army. Serving with an armor infantry company in Europe, he was awarded the Combat Infantry Badge and the Purple Heart. After being discharged from Peabody Army Hospital in September, 1946, he attended Western Michigan University and in 1950 he received his law degree from the University of Detroit.

Speaking of the new District Court, Judge Murphy said that while the creation of the new court is a step in the right direction, there is still a great deal to be done before the court will be able to deal with the expected increase in caseload efficiently and economically.

In addition to traffic violations and misdemeanors over which it will have jurisdiction, many civil matters formerly heard only by the Circuit Court will be in the district court.

He is hoping that the new court will also develop programs which the authority such courts will have for the day.

Judge Murphy is active in St. Francis Church in Petoskey, among other things being Oil men describe the rumored new way discovery as a "closed well," which means--no one is taking.

In Charlevoix County the principle activity in recent years has been conducted by the Union Oil Corporation of Texas, with around 60 leases being recorded at the Charlevoix County Register's office.

There have been some "oil and gas" agents, but they are not operating under any name as agents for any major concern. A Mr. C. G. of Dallas, Texas, has been taking leases in South Arm township.

Small independent like the Master's Oil Company, of M. P. P. and a firm that has been operating in the area for some time in the Charlevoix County area.

In the early 1950's when a small oil field was being developed in the area, the major lease buyers, some of its leases are still in effect.

Principle of the government type survey is to attempt to decipher the "gravity pattern" to find the location of rock fractures and hidden rock reefs, far below the surface of the earth, which trap the oil as it drifts along with the underground rivers of salt water that carry the oil.

"In spite of the development of devices like the gravimeter and the seismograph and the magnetometer, there is still no scientifically proven way to find oil. All we can do is improve the potential possibilities."

Oil exploration uses new tools in north country

Bits of orange ribbons along rural roads are a tip-off that oil scouts are again in this area.

Here in Michigan, Poly's gravimeter surveys were instrumental in probing the fields near Port Huron so that one in every 4 wells drilled were producers.

In western Kansas where he has run many surveys, the average was about one in five wells.

The over-all average of wildcatting in this industry is about one out of 14 wells--becoming successful drilling attempts.

Poly points out that this is ample justification for digging in work such as his firm does. Here in Michigan, the cost of driving a well is approximately $100,000 per well. In the Texas "deeper" wells, the cost may be as high as $1 million per well. Thus the mathematics of the advantage of making surveys of one type or another is apparent, since it costs about $2,500 to survey a section of land.

What happens if a big firm finds oil on your property, and it may not be a high yield well? Is the lease owner going to be highly profitable in making surveys of one type or another is apparent, since it costs about $2,500 to survey a section of land.

Election time, so who cares?

WE HAD TO sympathize with the candidate last week who was telling us there's more interest in the bridge going up and down than there is in the August 6 primary election.

Several key decisions face voters in the primary. Among them the selection of Republican candidates for Prosecuting Attorney and county supervisor in the Hayes-Charlevoix District 3 and city supervisor in District 13. The field of three candidates for the new District judgeship will be trimmed to two and the four-way race for the new Circuit Judgeship will also be cut to two.

Hardly noticed in the Charlevoix area, but on the ballot is a contest between incumbent Republican Sheriff Phil Sumner and Everett S. Hadix, a former Boyne City police chief.

Battling for the GOP candidacy for prosecutor are incumbent Harvey C. Varnum and challenger Donald J. Berlage. Waiting to take on the winner in November is Democrat Robert L. Hoffman.

Perhaps the most critical local contest and the one that has generated the most interest is Don Meggison's bid to unseat Kit Carson for the District 13 (approximately the city First Ward) supervisor's seat. Much is at stake because Carson has been the chief engineer of plans to build an estimated $500,000 County Jail.

While Meggison has indicated he feels improvements and expansion of the jail are needed, he is convinced the county's lawbreakers can be housed for much less than a half-million dollars. The Courier agrees as we suspect most citizens do.

The reapportioned county board of supervisors will be pioneering a new city government. Its membership will be trimmed from 25 to 15 and will, for the first time in history, represent people instead of antiquated township boundary lines.

If the new board takes the initiative it has the opportunity to restore a measure of the strength and independence local government has been losing to the state and federal governments. Meggison, in our estimation, will prove to be a valuable leader in guiding the people to think and do for the people.

Smith is considered by area lawmen and others familiar with his performance as Emmet prosecutor as one of the area's best and hardest working. He had also shown considerable understanding of public affairs in his assistance to the Emmet County Board of Supervisors.

Like the man who flipped over Marilyn Monroe because he liked her voice, too many people are still getting excited about the right things for the wrong reasons.

For example, take Lt. Col. Richard McMahon, an army intelligence officer who made all the newspapers recently when he blasted the body count. That's the incredible statistic whereby the U.S. somehow counts the enemy dead and then uses the bloody statistics to gauge the progress of the Vietnam war.

The result is a daily report to the public, telling how many Viet Cong have been killed in the past 24 hours. There's nothing about reporting lost ground and liberated occupied cities, as in World War II. The obvious conclusion is that the U.S. is in Vietnam simply to kill and to keep close count of the bodies--every fifth platoon must have its own scorekeeper. Of course, the more bodies the better, the more the U.S. is doing to win the war.

And we are reduced to weeping blood to prove that the good guys are ahead.

Any other activity in the area is benefits as many people as do Deano's wide variety of programs and the public golf course.

While Deano and golf course manager Keith Carey rate the programs work so well, the city fathers who years ago gave them such unflinching support and the citizens who every year since have renewed their support should also be thanked.

Each year we are again fascinated with the scope of Charlevoix's summer recreation program and pleasure local people and visitors get on the municipal golf course. The fun and variety of activities seem to grow each year.

This year, for instance, Deano Davenport lists program ranging from senior citizens to an Adventure Club for youngsters. With the exception of our schools, it is doubtful

Michael rates fair shake Conflict charge lacks proof

Comment

Michael calls this the rule of "discovery" making the decision in this case city council knows about the interest of one of its members or officials in the matter being acted on.

Richie, Michael explains, was going to need a lot of legal work to get the franchise and proceed with his other plans. He suggested he repay Michael for his legal work and general assistance by making him an officer in the new firm.

John agreed. He wishes he hadn't. Due to the conflict charge Michael had filed with the city, Michael had lost a pile of money.

Hampton Associates then is nothing more than an assumed name on file with the City Clerk. Any citizen could do the same thing to protect the name of their home, business, etc.

Due probably to underfunded stubbornness, Michael has refused to give credit the satisfaction of having the assumed name withdrawn from the clerk's files.

Michael makes no bones about doing legal work for Richie. He shouldn't have to. If it were illegal for Charlevoix's city attorney to do legal work for local citizens no attorney could afford to work for the city.

Furthermore, Michael points out the conflict charge in the Hampton suit is based on the 72 - year - old Fourth Circuit case. A 1966 state law nullifies that by declaring there is no

Agassi at his apparent seriousness, I attempted to prod him into some realization of what he was suggesting. "You mean you kill, maybe, a million children and women?"

Seeing that I was pleading with him to retract his statement, he instead repeated it with more vehemence and the explanation that this would teach those who do not wish to die with him, which would be the only way to win.

In case anyone is confused, war is the business of killing. Get it? Straight-KILLING. Not just killing thousands of the innocent, but also young men in American history, but also thousands of children, men and women to whom Communism and democracy are meaningless words spoken by men who KILL.

A committee was appointed by the president of the Chamber of Commerce to prepare tentative plans for the best way to conduct the annual fair, to be held in the city of Charlevoix, Michigan, on the site of the lake shore where the fair was held in 1918.

Charlevoixians were told that the trouble farmers were having with their potato crops was due to black rot, which is a good deal like light. They were told that because the number of potatoes was so small, the trouble could only be blamed on infected seed.

Fifty-seven men were given a special day off to go to the lake shore to see the tracks into the park at the railroad station to see them off to Camp Carson.

Like the man who flipped over Marilyn Monroe because he liked her voice, too many people are still getting excited about the right things for the wrong reasons.

For example, take Lt. Col. Richard McMahon, an army intelligence officer who made all the newspapers recently when he blasted the body count. That's the incredible statistic whereby the U.S. somehow counts the enemy dead and then uses the bloody statistics to gauge the progress of the Vietnam war.

No kidding. McMahon said the body count was started as "an attempt to make sure that our boys were being killed more than they were killing." He said he observed would be reported.

This was to prevent heavy evidence. You can't say your body is splattered on the other side of the hill. You have to go to see those Cong yourself, or they'll report them. I guess each corpse is chalked X to make sure it's not counted twice. At any rate, all of this was OK with McMahon. He didn't get lugged until it became apparent that some of the boys were being more than they were killing.

"Some American and some South Vietnamese units began submitting estimates which reflected favorably on their progress," McMahon explained.

Please note how he said just "some" Americans but not "many" South Vietnamese were claiming more blood than

Before the hawks start attacking me with pencils, let me hasten to say I know it works both ways. I would like to see the U.S. put a few more bodies in the water. I don't for a minute say the Viet Cong are right and the U.S. is wrong. I only say they are both wrong; civilization is horribly wrong. When a people can count on their fingers the same way they'd count flies on a wall, something is grievously wrong.

While stuffed shirts hold endless peace talks in Paris, boys are being killed and only the immediate survivors weep. And we have people getting excited about the correct way to count their bodies.

For God's sake, let's get excited about the killing.

Opposition to rules on commercial fishing aired

Dear Editor:

It seems that in the last few days there has been a great deal of reworking over a group of people's misfortune. I am speaking emphatically about the Michigan commercial fisherman, and the commercial fishing bill that was signed into law recently by the Honorable Governor George Romney.

The bill provided for yet another increased State control over commercial fishing, endowing the State Conservation Department with more powers, such as:

1. The power to extend its normal licensing policy,
2. The power to limit the number of commercial fishing licenses,
3. The power to specify the amount of fish to be taken from the Great Lakes,
4. The power to indicate to the commercial fisherman where he may fish,
5. The power to regulate the commercial fishing seasons and also, the new law authorized a new tax, five percent, to be levied against the total amount of fish the commercial fisherman catches daily.

Most commercial fishermen feel that "the power to extend the licensing... the power to limit the number of commercial fishing licenses... will invariably lead to favoritism by the Conservation Department to the big-time fisherman, and leave the small-time fisherman with no license... no income to supplement the ever-increasing high cost of living.

The commercial fishermen also feel that "the power to specify the amount of fish to be taken... the power to indicate where the commercial fisherman is to fish... will hamstring the fisherman so much that he will not be able to catch any fish at all. Fish DO NOT stay in one spot-- weather, food, depth of water, and time of year determines greatly the places of habitat. A law can be too rigid to satisfy the many variables.

The commercial fishermen already finds "the power to regulate the commercial fishing seasons... very exasperating. First of all, throughout the year he spends a great deal of his time and money preparing his fishing outfit for an approaching season that may or may not open... or for a season that may end halfway through a regular fishing season because of the whims of the State Conservation Department. Also, the commercial fisherman feels why pay a "five percent tax" when it is quite evident that the State Conservation Department is determined to put him out of business.

The commercial fisherman finds it hard to cope with such a statement made by a particular Conservation official from Newberry, Michigan, stating that "in principle, the commercial fishing industry as a whole is in favor of the bill signed into law July 17, 1968." how he could dare express the commercial fisherman's viewpoints. What man, with already one hand tied behind his back, would be happy to hear that his other hand would be tied, too? It has been long understood that the State Conservation Department makes all fish and game laws. The commercial fisherman disapproves of the implications made by the State Conservation Department to the public that they, the commercial fishermen, goes along wholeheartedly with the unfair, unjust laws that they, the Conservation Department, ramroll through the State Legislature. Also, the commercial fisherman finds it hard to cope with the fact that his interests are secondary, or less with the State Conservation Department.

Of course, the commercial fishermen realize and understand that the "majority rules (the Michigan sports fishermen)." The commercial fisherman definitely represents the "minority." He also realizes that the "sportsfisherman" is a "man of the world," money in his pocket (money that did not come from his fishing pole), a man pursuing those unalienable rights-- life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness, endowed to him by his Creator. The commercial fisherman also understands what the State Conservation Department has to gain if there are just more sportsmen. Money!

But what about the commercial fisherman? Because he represents a minority group need he be deprived of those unalienable rights--life, the right to earn a livelihood; liberty, the right to fish where he chooses and knows best (of course, he goes along that spawning grounds, rivers, mouth of rivers, etc. . . are off limits); pursuit of happiness, to do what he was born to do--not prohibiting his right in fish as the State Conservation Department has dictated in the past.

Many commercial fishermen have known through experience that the Conservation Department, with all that power invested upon their shoulders, in many cases, has gone invariably to their heads. The commercial fisherman detests the sporadic whims of their overseer, and most of all, the gaseous tactics used upon them at sea, and at the docks by the State Conservation Department.

Summarily, the commercial fisherman represents a minority group, ruled over by an incompetent overlord, who has no conception what a commercial fisherman goes through daily--being so busy from sunup to sundown, earning a living... too busy, too poor... and too unorganized to fight the unjust laws enacted upon him. I suggest that the State Conservation Department re-evaluate their policies and laws, and consider people before the "almighty dollar".

(Expressed above are the sentiments of a commercial fisherman's son who has fished Michigan waters for the last 50 years, and is still fishing... who shares the view of his father, and of most fishermen).

Fisherman fined for lake trout

A Charlevoix commercial fisherman has been fined for illegal handling of lake trout.

Due to the violation the Conservation Dept. has indefinitely suspended the permit to use large mesh (whitefish and lake trout) nets from the Jackie C, a fish tug owned by John Cross.

James Driggett was fined $100 and $7.30 costs when he plead guilty to the violation.

As Conservation Dept. law enforcement supervisor Frank Dufon arrested Driggett for having filleted lake trout in the Jackie C when the boat came into Cross's dock and for not having the required tags on the cut-up fish.

Cross was not aboard the boat, of which Driggett was captain and reportedly knew nothing about the violation, Dufon said.

The violation occurred July 23, Dufon said.

School finally out for 87 students

School was finally over last week for 87 young Charlevoix scholars.

Nearly two months after other students started their summer vacation, these 87 grade school youngsters finished summer school.

The kids studied reading, math, arts and crafts and nature study. They seemed to have a good time learning.

Teachers were Carol Hein, Mabel Bingham, Kathryn Smith, Louise Hilligan, Mary Ann Chew and Elizabeth Hoffmann.

Charlevoix County has something for everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula. It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 65 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary, Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan -- Mt. Pisgah -- lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs -- the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club -- are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county -- Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

Station probes fish world

A new era has come to the Great Lakes. The era of the sports fishermen. And Charlevoix is the key to making that era an enduring one.

The Conservation Dept. recognized this by establishing the Great Lakes Fishery Station in the old Charlevoix National Fish Hatchery and assigning its new 63-foot Great Lakes survey boat, the Steelhead, to the station.

The station and boat are under the supervision of Myrl Keller, a graduate biologist and member of a pioneer Great Lakes commercial fishing family. Bill Palmer, an Oneida Indian, is skipper of the Steelhead.

The station and boat, the only ones of their kind on the Great Lakes, represent the first comprehensive effort made to gather information on fish in the lakes so that their long-ignored sport fishing potential can be developed. The station was dedicated May 2, 1968.

It's Keller and Palmer's job to find out where the coho and chinook salmon are, what they are eating, how fast they are growing, etc. From this, and other information, gathered by its elite Charlevoix crew, the Conservation Dept. will plan and develop programs to provide maximum sports fishing for salmon, trout and other Great Lakes species.

The Steelhead is equipped with the most modern fish survey gear, including sophisticated electronic equipment and conventional rigs for netting fish. It has just one mission: Prowl the Inland Seas in search of better sports fishing.

The station, next to the city's Lake Michigan beach, is open to visitors. The old hatchery facilities are now used for rearing young salmon.

Historically, Charlevoix has been the center of commercial fishing activity on the Great Lakes. During the last two decades, when fish tugs disappeared from nearly all other Great Lakes ports, Charlevoix remained home port for commercial fishermen.

Now it has become the nerve center of this new era to make the Great Lakes the greatest sports fishing water in the world.

THE STEELHEAD, the Conservation Dept.'s new Great Lakes fish survey vessel at work on Lake Michigan just outside the pierheads at Charlevoix. The 63-foot, $105,000 boat is equipped with sophisticated and traditional fish finding and sampling gear.

A-plant tours popular

CHARLEVOIX -- One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumers' Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles northeast of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone. Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m., seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-motion picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use. The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Belaire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

Come to the fair

CHARLEVOIX -- Artists from throughout Michigan and nearby states will converge on Charlevoix August 10 for the 10th annual Waterfront Fair for Artists and Craftsmen.

The fair is held in East Park, against a backdrop of Round Lake and the yacht basin.

In fact, many artists come to Charlevoix by boat to show their wares.

Exhibitors are allowed space throughout the park to display their wares.

In addition to paintings of all kinds, woodcarving, ceramics and sculpture are on the bill of fare.

On the park stage, Mr. and Mrs. Nate Cummings of Chicago usually show some of the paintings from their personal collections, which include work by Picasso, Renoir and Degas.

The fair has become famous among Michigan painters because many visitors have a penchant for buying. One summer a sculpture student sold his entire work. His profits allowed him to continue his studies at the University of Michigan.

Let's save the Jordan

The Jordan River has been called the least spoiled of Northern Lower Michigan's major trout streams, by Dr. Howard Tanner, father of Michigan's Coho and Chinook programs. Dr. Tanner was raised near the Jordan and spent what he considers some of the best days of his boyhood on the Jordan learning to use a fly rod.

His plea to "Save the Jordan!" from the rapidly encroaching threat of "progress" has been taken up. Laws have been enacted and are now being enforced to halt development along the banks of the Jordan. The Conservation Dept. is attempting to buy all of the stream frontage it can to preserve the Jordan in its wilderness state. But the pressures are great.

Money and "profit" are the great destroyers. You can help. You must help if the Jordan is to be saved!

Respect this lone survivor of Michigan's once numerous unspoiled trout streams. Don't litter its banks. Don't cut trees or burn indiscriminately.

Petoskey stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan.

Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

stones may be used as paper-weights or door stops.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bells Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider Sand Dune Rides," offers an exciting thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation retreat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and care from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorcycles may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage. LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island is a must during your visit to Northern Michigan.

M-66 5 miles South of Charlevoix Past Ironton
on the South Arm of Beautiful Lake Charlevoix

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our fascinating bridge

CHARLEVOIX—No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over the Pine River channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained and built by the State Highway Dept., the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders—Ted Bergmann, Elmer Gibson, Chick Gallagher—and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries US31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

The bridge is raised for vessels too high to pass under it between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. The bridge is required to open only every half hour—three minutes before and three minutes after the hour and half hour—for commercial and pleasure boats. A long blast and a short blast of a boat's horn are the signal to get the bridge raised. The bridge tender answers the boat's whistle and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals.

The first step in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches to warn traffic. Gates are lowered across the highway and sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However, the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

Increasing boat and highway traffic in recent years has led to longer and longer pileups on US31, particularly during the height of the summer season.

According to the highway department 103,071 cars had to wait for the bridge during the most recent 12 months survey period, costing motorists an estimated accumulated total of 286.2 days delay. Last year the bridge opened 3,885 times. Of these, 1,047 openings were in July and 891 in August. In an effort to eliminate unnecessary openings last year the bridge tenders were instructed by the State not to open the bridge if boaters would have enough clearance by lowering their radio antennas.

More restrictive action was taken this year with the new regulation limiting "required bridge openings to every half hour. Traffic conditions on US31 allowing, the bridge tenders are attempting to be as liberal as possible in implementing these regulations for the convenience of boaters. Any boater in trouble coming in from Lake Michigan can have the bridge raised immediately by blowing a distress signal. However, persons who needlessly take advantage of this can be prosecuted.

Island has a mystery. Archeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

IN THE LATE 1840's, a band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were agitated at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing

BOYNE CITY'S Chamber of Commerce is located in this rustic log cabin. Beside the cabin is a billboard advertising Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival which draws thousands of persons in early May.

Boyne City offers much for summer, winter fun

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Noble Industrial Counter Products, Howe's Leather Company and

Mills Cabin Mills.

In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has several area parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on its 536 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concert.

Indian past lives again at Greensky Hill church

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Butt of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearby stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with things when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ottawa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area. Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty - seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

THE FIRST structure was a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 26 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud. THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, in spite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Greensky's wife. The older graves, all facing East, are marked off with wooden fences and or rude wooden crosses.

Artists expected to cram park for Waterfront Fair

Charlevoix's tenth annual Waterfront Art Fair will feature more than 200 artists and craftsmen in East Park Saturday, August 10.

Mrs. Edward McNamara is 1968 fair chairman. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Paul Olson, Mrs. Jack Rader, Mrs. Kim Carson, Mrs. Julius Gilbert, Mrs. Arthur Skelton, Hugh Riker, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Fran Martin and Mr. McNamara.

The fair begins at 10 a.m. and, weather allowing, will continue to 7:30 p.m. There is no charge. The fair is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

The Waterfront Fair has become one of the "in" shows in the state, attracting prominent artists and craftsmen from Michigan as well as surrounding states.

In addition to paintings in every technique, sculpture, metal work, pottery, weaving and other arts and crafts, the fair will feature an art object by a noted artist loaned by international art collectors, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cummings of Chicago, New York and Charlevoix.

Another feature of the Fair this year will be the "History of Michigan in Painting" series by Robert A. Thom of Birmingham, loaned by the Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

This year Mr. and Mrs. Cummings have offered a bronze by the Swiss sculptor, Alberto Giacometti for exhibit at the Waterfront Fair. Giacometti, who now lives in Paris, worked in various types of sculpting before beginning a series of elongated heads and figures with which he is now identified. One of these will be exhibited at the Fair Saturday.

"The History of Michigan in Painting" is a series of oil paintings commissioned by Michigan Bell to preserve significant events in the history of Michigan. Through the efforts of artist Robert A. Thom and Michigan historian, Dr. F. Clever Bald of the University of Michigan, these illustrations capture the Michigan story from the era of the mastodons to the wonders of the twentieth century.

The paintings will be on display at the Charlevoix public library, on Clinton St. from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturday.

Through efforts of the Waterfront Fair committee and the Friends of the Library, the exhibit will be held over during the following week and will be shown from noon to 4 p.m. Sunday; 1 to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 1 to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Aug. 10 and 17.

Among the more than 200 entries will be approximately 45 from the northwest section of the state including 12 from Charlevoix, five from Cadillac, 14 from the Traverse City area, five from Harbor Springs and Petoskey and six from East Jordan.

Many old favorites plus a host of new exhibitors are entered in the 1968 fair, Mrs. McNamara said. She went on to say she felt that the Waterfront Fair has attracted artists and craftsmen representative of all the arts thus assuring visitors an opportunity to view work seldom seen outside museums or private collections. These combined with the art objects loaned by Mr. and Mrs. Cummings and the Michigan Bell collection make the Waterfront Fair the most popular out-state show in Michigan, she said.

In the event of inclement weather, the Fair will be held at the Charlevoix high school.

Admit violations

Medusa promises to act

Medusa Portland Cement Co. Tuesday morning conceded it is violating the Charlevoix Township air pollution code and promised to take immediate steps to comply with the law.

Medusa Vice President Worth Loomis also told the Courier the company is willing to pay a "reasonable" amount for an engineering firm to determine if the South Point plant is polluting the air.

Loomis said he has invited Charlevoix

Township Supervisor Clarence Babachand city officials to appoint a citizens committee to study the air pollution question.

Medusa will provide technicians to explain the air pollution problem and laws to the committee, if it requests this help, Loomis said.

"If the mayor and township supervisor wish to appoint a citizens committee to review the evidence we will be willing to pay a reasonable charge for an engineering firm to gather additional data to answer the question of whether or not we are in violation of the code," he said.

Naming such a committee, Loomis said, was suggested by Boulder Park Association president Monte Korn.

Korn last week said a law suit will be started against Medusa to force it to register the nature, estimated quantity and sources of air contamination. Such registration is required by the Charlevoix Township code.

Loomis admitted the company has been in violation of this requirement and is in the process of correcting it. He said the required information has been on file with the state health department.

According to Loomis the air pollution problem resulting from the South Point plant is caused by dumping cement kiln dust in the quarry. This is dust that is collected by air pollution control devices in the smoke stack to avoid its getting into the air through the stack.

Originally, Loomis explained, the company planned to return this waste product into the kiln for reuse. This, however, did not work as expected because it created a chemical component which reduced the quality of the finished product and overloaded the air pollution control system.

Until now, he admitted, the company has not thought of this as an air pollution problem.

"We now recognize that it is and are seeking a way to dispose of it without polluting," he added.

Company engineers, Loomis said, are studying a plan to mix the extremely fine dust with water to produce a hard, stone-like waste product. He promised an answer will be found by the end of August.

Mediator joins talks on teacher contracts

A state labor mediator was called in this week to seek a settlement between the school board and Charlevoix teachers.

The teachers and board are reported deadlocked in their 1968-69 contract negotiations over three major items--salaries, class size and teacher qualifications and certification.

However, both Supt. Rev. Mulligan and teacher spokesman Leonard Staley said, they hope the contract talks will be settled before school starts Tuesday, Sept. 3.

Teachers and the board's negotiator, Petoskey attorney Dick Smith, have not met since early June, Staley said. Negotiating sessions are to start again this week with the state mediator.

Sundew back in Charlevoix following shipyard delays

The Sundew returned home July 31 after a nearly two-month absence.

The Coast Guard buoy tender's skipper Lt. Cmdr. Leonard Garrett was glad to be back.

"You can't imagine how good it is to be back here where you can breathe clean air and everything is so fresh," Garrett remarked after spending more than seven weeks in a Chicago shipyard between two steel mills.

The Sundew left Charlevoix June 8 for an expected four-week lay-up in the American Shipbuilding Co.'s Chicago drydock. Installing an eight-foot by six-foot sewage holding tank and routine repairs and maintenance took almost eight weeks, instead of the expected month.

And then the job wasn't finished. The 180-foot boat was scheduled to get a complete exterior repainting while in the shipyard. Garrett decided the Chi-negotiating for the teachers' union are Staley, Condit Drury, Mary Ann Chew, Jerry Harris and Max Novak.

Smith does all of the negotiating for the school board. Board members have not been attending negotiating sessions, Milligan attends the contracts talks as a resource person.

Charlevoix teachers are now the highest paid in the area. Their pay scale for 1967-68 ranged from $5,800 to $9,214. This compares to a pay scale ranging from $5,300 to $8,500 during 1966-67.

The teachers and board did not reach a 1967-68 contract agreement until early 1969, after teachers had been on the job for several months without a completed contract.

The instruments were prompted by complaints from areacitizens that state and local air pollution control laws are not being enforced.

Citizens have asked that air quality be continuously monitored, as they were told it would be, to determine if Medusa Portland Cement Co.'s South Point plant is violating the Charlevoix Township air pollution code.

The instruments installed last week by the state will not provide continuous monitoring, Smith explained, he said around the clock monitoring would be meaningless.

Instead, he said, the six vacuum cleaner-type devices will be operated 24 hours-a-day for the next week or two weeks. They will then be placed on schedule with the federal government's nation-wide air quality monitoring system. This, Smith said, means that at a given time, in the country, all such devices in the country will be turned on for 24 hours.

Dust samples collected in the six suction-type devices will be analyzed by the state and local air pollution control laws are not being enforced.

The holding tank will go in operation this week. Sewage will be pumped from it through a pipe into the city sewage treatment plant. The pump is on the Sundew.

Garrett estimated the tank will hold about three days sewage from the ship's toilets, sewage from showers, the kitchen and other sources does not go into the holding tank.

City electric use up

The Charlevoix electric utility earned the city $112,340 during the fiscal year ended February 29, 1968 according to the annual audit released last week.

Net earnings for the 1967-68 fiscal year were nearly $12,000 higher than the $100,527 the previous year.

Revenue collected by the electric department during the year totaled $412,737, compared to $385,540 the year before. An increase of $27,197.

Expenses for the year were $304,118, up $17,007 over $287,111 the year before.

The largest single expense was $187,029 to buy electricity from Consumers' Power Co. Operation of the city-owned Bellaire power plant cost $6,940 and transmission and distribution of electricity cost $19,606. Administration of the department cost $45,850.

The Bellaire plant reportedly produced

1,702,407 kilowatt hours of electricity. The city purchased 17,371,093 KWH from Consumers.

The city sold 17,365,112 KWH to customers, compared to 16,171,371 the year before. Line loss of electricity was reported to be nine percent.

School starts

Summer vacation ends abruptly for Charlevoix students this year.

Students report for their first day of school Tuesday, Sept. 3, the day after Labor Day. Supt. Rex Mulligan said students will be in class a half-day Tuesday and full days on Wednesday.

Teachers report for conferences Friday, August 30.

MILO SMITH, state air pollution policeman, with one of six vacuum cleaner type air quality monitoring instruments he installed in the Charlevoix area last week. The device sucks dust too light to fall to the ground through filters. The content of the filters can then be analyzed.

Air pollution device goes into operation

The State Health Dept. last week installed six vacuum cleaner type air quality monitoring instruments in the Charlevoix area.

After an initial one to two week monitoring period, the instruments will be in operation about one day a week, according to Milo Smith of the Health Dept.

Smith, with help from District Health Dept. sanitarian Dean Mikulski, installed the monitoring devices in what he considers strategic locations to sample all sources of air pollution in the Charlevoix area. The locations were not revealed in an attempt to avoid vandalism.

Installation of the instruments was prompted by complaints from areacitizens that state and local air pollution control laws are not being enforced.

Citizens have asked that air quality be continuously monitored, as they were told it would be, to determine if Medusa Portland Cement Co.'s South Point plant is violating the Charlevoix Township air pollution code.

The instruments installed last week by the state will not provide continuous monitoring, Smith explained, he said around the clock monitoring would be meaningless.

Instead, he said, the six vacuum cleaner-type devices will be operated 24 hours-a-day for the next week or two weeks. They will then be placed on schedule with the federal government's nation-wide air quality monitoring system. This, Smith said, means that at a given time, in the country, all such devices in the country will be turned on for 24 hours.

Dust samples collected in the six suctioning type instruments will be supplemented by eight other devices that collect dust which falls into them. Six of these bucket-type devices have been in operation here, Smith added two more last week.

The air sampling system, Smith said, will give an overall comparison of Charlevoix's air quality now and before Medusa went into operation. It will be affected by other factors, such as the possibility of increased road dust.

The samples collected in the instruments, he explained, will not determine the amount of contaminants coming from various sources at the Medusa plant.

The sucking instruments draw dust too light to fall from the air through filters, which are then sent to Lansing. The buckets collect dust heavy enough to fall into them.

Detailed chemical analysis of the air contaminants in the filters and buckets are not expected to be made, Smith said.

Bernard Bloomfield, head of the state's air pollution control program, had the instruments installed after receiving complaints from area residents about dust on windows, cars, etc.

At a Charlevoix Township board meeting and at a meeting with Bloomfield, local citizens asked that instruments be installed to continuously measure air quality and identify the source of pollution.

Bloomfield admitted his department's monitoring program will not do this and agreed to supply the names of independent testing firms which can.

FRIDAY'S SIDEWALK sale was all-around success. Adults liked the bargains. Merchants liked the hundreds of people who turned out to seek bargains. And kids, like these two, loved the Charlevoix State Savings Bank's free cotton candy.

Brothers take plunge to build new industry

Wait and Don Hufford are what you might call big time gamblers.

They have just taken the plunge to equip a tool shop in the former Lietz Industries building on US-31 north, next to Electra Machine Co. And as of last week, with most of their specialized equipment installed and bills coming, they didn't have a single job.

Wait, 34, president and general manager of Bob Dyksterhouse's Electra Machine Co. until a few weeks ago, is confident the jobs will come in.

Hufford Industries Inc., as he and Don, who is 30, call the new outfit, will do custom tool and die work and light manufacturing. They hope to get order for some kind of punch press stamping work.

Both men were born in Petoskey and are journeymen die makers. Wait studied engineering for two years at Grand Rapids Junior College, then spent eight years with Fisher Body before moving to Cl-cuit Controls for four years as a master mechanic. Three years ago he joined Dyksterhouse at Electra Machine.

Don has worked for the last 12 years at Fisher Body in Kalamazoo, where for the past seven years he has been a general supervisor. He and his family are looking for a home in Charlevoix.

Wait is the new firm's president and treasurer. Don is vice president and secretary. Other members of the board of directors are Paul F. Hufford, their brother and a Petoskey contractor, attorney Harvey Varnum, and E.D. (Pat) Hawley, president of the Charlevoix County State Bank.

Lietz Industries has moved into a new metal building on US-31 past Lexallie. Lietz was renting the concrete building which Hufford Industries bought from Hal Forbrige.

The building has 3,200 square feet of shop space and 900 square feet of office and engineering space. The Huffords are remodeling the building and hope they will have to expand it.

Wait Hufford agrees he and his brother are "sticking our necks out," but he is confident there is a demand in the area for high quality custom tool and die work. Don spent a week recently calling on downtown firms.

A few years ago, Wait points out, such a venture would have been impossible because qualified workmen would not move north. Today, he says, he anticipates no problem luring journeymen out of the big cities, he expects in time to have as many as 12 to 15 tool and die men on the job.

He also hopes to put together an engineering staff and get into product development.

Air Force sergeant seeks girls

Sergeant Don Thompson, Air Force recruiter, reports an urgent need for girls in high school graduates to enlist in the Air Force.

He added, "Today many WAFs are serving their country in Southeast Asia, as well as in the United States and other overseas areas."

He continued, "Women in the Air Force have the same opportunity as men to attend technical training schools of 22 weeks duration. Upon completion they are assigned duty side by side with their male counterparts."

Sergeant Thompson listed some examples of jobs WAFs are performing:

WAFs trained as medical specialists, are helping care for wounded men returning from Vietnam to Andrews AFB, Maryland.

A WAF sergeant is a recruitment officer for the Defense at the Pentagon, Washington, D. C.

A WAF who started earning college credits while in an enlisted status now has her college degree and is back on active duty as a lieutenant at Randolph AFB, Texas, as a personnel computer programmer.

Sergeant Thompson asked girl high school graduates, interested in more information, to contact him at Selective Service office or call him at Charlevoix City 340-6976.

Action and Reaction

Norman Brumm has distinguished himself as an artist of many talents. Originally he won respect for his oil painting and his graphics while he was a student at Michigan State University. Brumm earned his M.A. Degree at Michigan State and has exhibited in all major Michigan shows and several national exhibits where he has won awards.

More recently he has turned his talents to metal sculpture and to enamel plaques, but through all of his work has run the same dominant theme, his love of nature. Birds, flowers, plants and natural forms are the subject of Brumm's work whether it be in graphics or in metal sculpture. No wonder then that the north is his choice for a permanent home.

His wife Judith Wedemeyer Brumm works with her husband and is also a practicing artist in her own right. For ten years she worked as a partner with her mother in Wedemeyer's studio making jewelry, suncatchers and plaques in enamel. She has won several awards in the Michigan Ceramics Exhibition at the South Bend, Indiana Art Center. Some of her work is in the U.S. Steel Exhibit in Chicago.

All of those who love art and who are in Charlevoix should be wise to avail themselves of the rare opportunity to see Eskimo art. There are only 20 cities in the United States which exhibit and sell Eskimo Art and Traverse City is one of these.

Traverse City has as Estimo art collection on display this month at the Mark Center Library at Northwestern Michigan College. The exhibit will include approximately 30 stonecut prints and 75 stonecut carvings which are the unique work of Cape Dorset Eskimo artists. The public is invited to view this showing for which no admission fee will be charged. The show is open until August 30, on Monday through Friday from 8:30 to 4:30.

THE CHURCH IS A WISDOM CENTER

Owls have long been linked with wisdom. It is doubtful, however, if the "wise old owl" possesses any more or less wisdom than many other species of birds. They, like all birds, do have a highly developed instinct which serves for sustenance and self preservation, but no proof has ever been shown that the owl has improved his lot down through the centuries.

Man, on the other hand, may acquire and improve in wisdom. As he gains in wisdom the improvement of his lot follows. There is a great fountain of wisdom available to him in his quest—the Church. In the first place the Church was a primary factor in providing institutions of learning. But the greatest service the Church offers is providing wisdom for spiritual development, the greatest wisdom of all—the science of right living in tune with the laws of God and man.

Braves bump Lions 1-0 to move into league lead

Marshall Steel won its fourth straight game in the football league to take the lead for the second round title. During the week, Marshall Steel edged out the unbeaten Marquette from the unbeaten ranks 10-3 behind the three hit pitching of Bob Klosser. Marquette jumped off to a 3-0 lead in the first but a twelve hit attack by the winners got those three runs back in a hurry. Tom Payton and Bob Klosser each collected three hits and both clouted long home runs.

Lake Construction became the league leader's next victim as it fell 5-1. Terry Blissett's single in the fourth and Davenport's one bagger in the first were the only hits for the construction crew.

Klosser was helped as Ken Richardson added his homer to big Bo's to lead the winner's attack.

County State Bank stayed in the title picture with one of their patterned come-back wins against Wilson's. They scored twice in the bottom of the sixth and posted two more in the last of the seventh to grab a 5-4 win. The victory gave them a 2-0 record, with both their victories coming in their final time at bat. Pitcher Larry Drenth of Wilson's deserved better fate. He had allowed but two hits going into the sixth when Gary Stuss made two run homer got the winners on the scoreboard. Then in the seventh a hit, walk, a costly error and a fielder's choice got the Bank their two important runs.

The big puzzle around the ball park is, What has happened to American Mold? They were handed twin defeats during the week and were eliminated from the second round race. Marquette edged them 1-0 in nine innings when John Ferguson tripled home Denny Warner, who had opened the inning with a single. Rich Heeres and Nate Bess hooked up in a really hot pitcher's battle with Heeres allowing two hits and Bess five.

Against the Air Force the poked Mold bats were still quiet as Sonny Wright twirled a neat one-hitter in handing them a 5-0 shutout. Three runs in the sixth put the game out of reach for the service-men. Hutchingson, Samplly, and Wright combined basehits in that big inning.

New opportunity for local youths

THE LAUNCHING OF Hufford Industries on the north edge of town calls for some commentary on the changing north.

Walt and Don Hufford interest us not because they bring an industry and additional employment to town. Instead, our support and admiration goes to them because they are evidence that the north can have its own home-grown industry.

In the past few years Charlevoix's phenomenal industrial growth has been almost entirely due to outside interests settling here. We, of course, favor and appreciate most of this.

However, it did little to encourage our young people to believe there is real opportunity for industrial ownership and development on home grounds by local people. The Huffords, both Petoskey boys, are showing us it can be done.

Of course, it takes men like

Clergy welcome

MOST PEOPLE viewed approval by the County Board of Supervisors of sale of liquor by the glass as little more than routine. It isn't going to change anyone's personal life and if restaurants and resorts in other counties are doing it why shouldn't those in Charlevoix?

Yet the one-hour session of the county board to settle the matter drew more speakers, pro and con, than any other recent issue we can recall. Some 20 persons showed up for the county board special meeting on Sunday liquor.

About a half-dozen of those present were county preachers who opposed the plan. They were outnumbered by restaurant and liquor interests who favored the plan.

The Courier for years has been chagrined by the lack of interest in county board meetings. So, of course, we were encouraged to see the turnout on the liquor issue.

A big job well done

By Jim Fitzgerald

When I heard it was going to be the liquor issue, I couldn't help wondering how many marriages have been busted by liquor.

"It is a smallish wicker chair. I came home from work unexpectedly to discover my wife pulling it out of a Sears crate."

"It should be inserted here that my wife Pat has gone wicker wacky. It started with one of those huge, incredible wicker chairs that were popular in California in 1928 - the kind Mordecai had in the TV show 'The Adams Family.' Someone gave it to me as a camp joke and my good wife remodeled our porch around it. Everything is wicker, including the flower boxes. People think I whip my wife and kids with a belt but those are really wicker marks."

So I was not surprised to see another wicker chair arrive and I reacted with great calm.

"Good lord, woman," I screamed, "There is not room on the porch for another one of those back-breaking chairs. What are you going to do with this one -- unravel it and knit yourself a new sweater?"

"It is not going on the porch," Pat said, "It is going in our bathroom."

"Huh?" I said, "that's funnier than knitting a wig out of it. Keep it up and I'll let you write the column some week. A wicker chair in the bathroom? That's a good one. What are you really going to do with it?"

"It is going into the bathroom," she said. "I am not kidding."

I could tell she meant it. I could tell by the way she trembled and turned red when I fell on the floor laughing.

LARGER AND BETTER placed signs are needed in the Pine River channel to tell incoming boatmen about the new bridge-opening restrictions. Not only is the sign in the outer channel partially obscured by this pile of iron, but the letters are far too small for a person handling the wheel of a ship to read. The iron will be used for the new channel revetment wall.

Our computerless poll shows little liking for Nixon, HHH

An unscientific, computerless, random survey of public opinion suggests Charlevoix voters are not too far right or left of other Americans.

The Courier Poll (a slipshod method of calling just anyone on the phone and asking their opinion) indicates Charlevoix voters aren't much more excited about Nixon and Humphrey than the scientific, computerized polls show the rest of America is.

The unpretentious Courier Poll reveals that Charlevoix voters are not too far right or left of other Americans. Mrs. Thomas Adair (Evergreen Pt.) that Nixon is "terribly old fashioned, too conservative, too progressive and too dishonest," and that Humphrey "unfortunately, is Mr. Johnson's little boy... and not to be trusted, anymore."

The majority of those polled said they think Nixon and Humphrey will be the presidential candidates—but they don't like it.

Asked who they would prefer the candidates be, these people were far from agreement. Nothing like a majority of opinion favoring Rockefeller or McCarthy was voiced. Though McCarthy was mentioned more often than any other single person.

Only one Charlevoixian said they would like to see dropout George Romney get the nomination.

Mrs. Keith Anderson said she would like to see Rockefeller and McCarthy on the ballot. She added she doesn't think much of Nixon and Humphrey is "not much different from Johnson" (which seemed about as bad a thing as you could say for LBJ).

Mrs. Lloyd Arnold thinks the Republicans might nominate Rockefeller, but she isn't sold on any of the potential candidates. Though Mrs. Arnold likes Nixon she isn't sure he is the firm enough. As for Humphrey, she says there's "a lot of bluster there," but she doesn't think he will back up what he's saying.

Mrs. Ronald G. Balch figures the November ballot will have Nixon and Humphrey's names on it. She'd like it to be Nixon and McCarthy. As far as she's concerned Nixon is as good as any other Republican. Like many others who responded to the Courier Poll, she balks at Humphrey because he was mentioned more often than any other single person.

Wicker chair blends with bathroom's decor

By Jim Fitzgerald

I asked her what she was going to do with a wicker chair in the bathroom.

"I am going to sit in it," she explained.

"Why can't you sit where the rest of us sit?" I asked sensibly.

"It will be handy for when you come out of the shower," she explained further.

A guy could get marked for life," I said.

"I will put a cushion on it," she said.

And she did. A purple cushion to match the toilet paper.

If it Fitz

THAT IS JUST ONE example of my furniture trouble. Let's move into the family room. Pat no longer likes the furniture there. She bought it but she hates it. She doesn't come right out and say she wants new furniture in the family room. But I get the message.

The other night Edie was bouncing his 10-year-old frame up and down on the living room couch. A couple of times he grazed the ceiling on the rebound. This is usually a mortal sin, cruel punishment to be prescribed by a wrathful mother who puts slip-covers on her slippers.

"It is going into the bathroom," she said. "I am not kidding."

I could tell she meant it. I could tell by the way she trembled and turned red when I fell on the floor laughing.

But:

"Isn't he athletic?" she asked me.

And she did. A purple cushion to match the toilet paper.

"You are a sneak," she said.

I am a sneak. She has milked me for $800 in hidden deposits and phony withdrawals. She probably juggled those figures to the dark of night, in the basement behind the furnace, while wearing a black cape and a stealthy look. But I am a sneak.

So that's how I found out we're getting new furniture in the family room. I can only pray it won't be wicker. There's also going to be a new bedroom suite some day soon. I discovered this the other day when my Mr. Healthy sister came calling. Pat showed her around the house and little sister remarked that she liked our bedroom furniture.

"Would you like to buy it?" Pat asked her.

Onward and upward.

Tidbits

by JOHN GRAY, editor

Michigan Conservation

Use of the outdoors for your own and your fellow's enjoyment is outdoorsmanship. This is a broad interpretation, but a precise one is difficult to come by.

Outdoorsmanship is a personal thing. It is more acquired than inherited, and one understands and practices it, a pleasant way of living is yours.

Outdoorsmanship can be the thrill of catching a steelhead in the Little Manistee. It can be the inspiration of a sunset from Brockway Mountain, or a dawn from the beach at Oscoda. It can be the pleasure of a hike in the woods, or the smell of bacon at a state park. Perhaps it has to do with the loud and liquid call of a Kirtland's warbler; the flush of a grouse, it is the indefinable pleasantness that comes with these things.

Outdoorsmanship is a demanding. There is an ethic about it that tells of an aesthetic value, the very basis of outdoorsmanship. Destroy this, and there is nothing. Understand and appreciate it, and there is everything.

Take more than your limit of steelhead and the ethic is lost. Leave your campfire smoldering and you miss the idea. . . Picture yourself on a forest trail. You look down at a small patch of wildflowers; purple, maybe pink or yellow. Here is the pleasantness of defecation. Now, drop a beer can among the petals and look again. Gone—outdoorsmanship.

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LODER
CHAMBER MANAGER

Though only a little more than a week ago was the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored Venetian Festival, we are yet being told day to day how much better it seemed to be and was more entertaining and attractive. We appreciate the comments and of course, any constructive criticism. There was a lot of hard work involved by not enough persons. However, I am pleased with the end results. I wish to take this opportunity to express sincere thanks to all of the individuals who participated in their efforts and ideas.

As of Thursday, August 1, a new agent for Hertz Car Rental took on this service and that is none other than Al Smith, owner and operator of Villa Moderne Motel and Smith's Texaco Service Station out on South Bridge Street. It appears to me the gentleman having this north country franchise is in a position to keep Al with sufficient cars. Now then, Al can sleep 'em, gas 'em, and provide transportation.

In an effort to get an idea, I try to observe the other community projects. It was interesting to hear over the air last Thursday evening that down in Cadillac the recently new, radio station people having in mind some special community project chose to have a "Fly-In" at the Cadillac Airport, the proceeds of which amounted to slightly over $5,000. I understand, and was turned over to a facility for handicapped children. They estimated about 12,000 interested persons were on hand the day of the event and the "Fly-In" breakfast attracted about 200 planes. This is most interesting, which reminds me the Charlevoix Flying Club has a "Fly-In" breakfast etc., scheduled in September at the Charlevoix Airport.

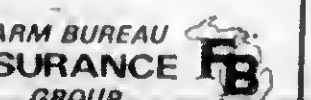

Our office girl Rose, I understand, is going back to school in the next few weeks and for her sake, I am glad of that, but again I am behind the eight-ball, or will be, as I will be needing another office girl. Pass the word around and thank you.

It has been a pleasing experience to have representation of Charlevoix in several parades, and our City of Charlevoix float with the pretty girls aboard received a big hand here, as they were everywhere else. There is at least one yet to go, and that is the big affair up at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Big fish country

CHARLEVOIX is "Big Fish Country!" This stringer of bragging size smallmouth bass held by Bernie Ward was taken within walking distance of downtown Charlevoix. Fishermen are also continuing to report catches of lake trout, steelhead, pike and perch.

Charlevoix County has something for everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Marquette City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula. It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary, Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan--Mt. Pisgah--lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs--the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club--are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county--Boyer Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyer Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25-million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

Station probes fish world

A new era has come to the Great Lakes. The era of the sports fishermen. And Charlevoix is the key to making that era an enduring one.

The Conservation Dept. recognized this by establishing the Great Lakes Fishery Station in the old Charlevoix National Fish Hatchery and assigning its new 63-foot Great Lakes survey boat, the Steelhead, to the station.

The station and boat are under the supervision of Myrl Keller, a graduate biologist and member of a pioneer Great Lakes commercial fishing family. Bill Palmer, an Onondaga Indian, is skipper of the Steelhead.

The station and boat, the only ones of their kind on the Great Lakes, represent the first comprehensive effort made to gather information on fish in the lakes so that their long-ignored sport fishing potential can be developed. The station was dedicated May 2, 1968.

It's Keller and Palmer's job to find out where the coho and chinook salmon are, what they are eating, how fast they are growing, etc. From this, and other information, gathered by its elite Charlevoix crew, the Conservation Dept. will plan and develop programs to provide maximum sports fishing for salmon, trout and other Great Lakes species.

The Steelhead is equipped with the most modern fish survey gear, including sophisticated electronic equipment and conventional rigs for netting fish. It has just one mission: Prowl the Inland Seas in search of better sports fishing.

The station, next to the city's Lake Michigan beach, is open to visitors. The old hatchery facilities are now used for rearing young salmon.

Historically, Charlevoix has been the center of commercial fishing activity on the Great Lakes. During the last two decades, when fish tugs disappeared from nearly all other Great Lakes ports, Charlevoix remained home port for commercial fishermen.

Now it has become the nerve center of this new era to make the Great Lakes the greatest sports fishing water in the world.

THE STEELHEAD, the Conservation Dept.'s new Great Lakes fish survey vessel at work on Lake Michigan just outside the pierheads at Charlevoix. The 63-foot, $105,000 boat is equipped with sophisticated and traditional fish finding and sampling gear.

A-plant tours popular

CHARLEVOIX--One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumers Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant.

Situated five miles northeast of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1968 alone.

Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-motion picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Belaire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

Let's save the Jordan

The Jordan River has been called the least spoiled of Northern Lower Michigan's major trout streams, by Dr. Howard Tanner, father of Michigan's Coho and Chinook programs. Dr. Tanner was raised near the Jordan and spent what he considers some of the best days of his boyhood on the Jordan learning to use a fly rod.

His plea to "Save the Jordan" from the rapidly encroaching threat of "progress" has been taken up. Laws have been enacted and are now being enforced to halt development along the banks of the Jordan. The Conservation

Dept. is attempting to buy all of the stream frontage it can to preserve the Jordan in its wilderness state. But the pressures are great.

Money and "profit" are the great destroyers. You can help. You must help if the Jordan is to be saved!

Respect this lone survivor of Michigan's once numerous unspoiled trout streams. Don't litter its banks. Don't cut trees or burn indiscriminately. Tell your friends you are an advocate of "Saving the Jordan." If you have a buck or two to spare send it to "Save the Jordan", Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. We'll see that it gets to the people who will use it to build a stronger campaign to "Save the Jordan."

If you haven't visited the Jordan yet there is plenty of reason to do so. Brown trout weighing up to 15 pounds have been caught in it on flies. Some experts contend even larger brownies are lurking in this beautiful stream. Guides are available in East Jordan.

The Ambassador Bridge, a suspension-type span like Big Mac, crosses the Detroit River between Detroit and Windsor. It was completed in 1929 at a cost of $20 million, is privately owned. Auto toll is 60 cents.

Preservation of Fisherman's Island and the nearby Lake Michigan shoreline as a "natural area" has been proposed by area conservationists.

The small island, about five miles south of Charlevoix at the end of the Bell's Bay road, is only about a 100 yards off some of the least spoiled Lake Michigan shoreline remaining in the Lower Peninsula.

The area can be reached by driving past the Bell's Bay State Forest Campground to the end of the road and then walking a city block to the beach.

Persons interested in supporting the effort to save this magnificent natural area should write to Jack Lockwood, state forester, Conservation Dept., Boyne City, Mich.

Dancers Welcome

Square dancing is a popular pastime in Charlevoix County for year 'round residents and visitors alike.

In Charlevoix, the Pairs and Squares have a dance the second and fourth Saturday of each month at St. Mary's School.

In Boyne City, square dances are held the second and fourth Wednesday at the American Legion Hall.

The Blue Water Bridge is a three-mile arch over the St. Clair River between Port Huron and Sarnia. It was completed in 1938 at a cost of $4 million, financed by the two federal governments and Michigan and Ontario. Auto toll is 25 cents.

CHARLEVOIX is easily accessible by air. The city's new municipal airport welcomes flyers from all over the mid-west.

Petoskey stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan.

Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

stones may be used as paper-weights or door stops.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bell's Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger

'Spider' dune rides offer thrills aplenty

ATWOOD -- Sand dune rides--long a popular form of recreation in western Michigan--are available at this Antrim County community 12 miles south of Charlevoix.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider Sand Dune Rides," offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian campground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

ESSENBERG says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour.

"Kids simply refuse to get out, and teenagers start begging for money so they can ride again."

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Charlevoix is located 604 feet above sea level and has an average temperature of 45 degrees. The average summer temperature is 68.2 degrees, based on records of the past 22 years.

How about boat ride?

IRONTON -- How about a short boat ride?

For 35 cents, you, your car and your family can take a five-minute boat ride across the mouth of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Ferry docks are located at Ironton, about seven miles south east of Charlevoix on M-66, and at the tip of the high, rolling peninsula which separates Lake Charlevoix from the South Arm.

THE FERRY runs from early spring until late December, or whenever ice conditions make the passage impossible.

The ferry ride makes a scenic expedition of the trip to or from East Jordan and Boyne City to Charlevoix.

Shuffleboard Courts Open

Shuffleboard fans will be able to practice their sport during their Charlevoix County vacation. Courts are located in East Park and at the Lake Michigan Beach in Charlevoix, at East Jordan's Tourist Park and at Veteran's Memorial Park in Boyne City.

This summer, Charlevoix Senior Citizens are taking up the sport, with matches every Wednesday afternoon at East Park.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation retreat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorbikes may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars,

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our fascinating bridge

CHARLEVOIX--No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over the Pine River channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained and built by the State Highway Dept., the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders--Ted Bergmann, Elmer Gibson, Chick Gallagher--and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries US31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

The bridge is raised for vessels too high to pass under it between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. The bridge is required to open only every half hour--three minutes before and three minutes after the hour and half hour--for commercial and pleasure boats. A long blast and a short blast of a boat's horn are the signal to get the bridge raised. The bridge tender answers the boat's whistle and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals.

The first step in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches to warn traffic. Gates are lowered across the highway and sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However, the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

Increasing boat and highway traffic in recent years has led to longer and longer pileups on US31, particularly during the height of the summer season.

According to the highway department 103,071 cars had to wait for the bridge during the most recent 12 months survey period, costing motorists an estimated accumulated total of 288.2 days delay. Last year the bridge opened 3,685 times. Of these, 1,047 openings were in July and 691 in August.

In an effort to eliminate unnecessary openings last year the bridge tenders were instructed by the State not to open the bridge if boats would have enough clearance by lowering their radio antennas.

More restrictive action was taken this year with the new regulation limiting "required bridge openings to every half hour. Traffic conditions on US31 allowing, the bridge tenders are attempting to be as liberal as possible in implementing these regulations for the convenience of boaters. Any boater in trouble coming in from Lake Michigan can have the bridge raised immediately by blowing a distress signal. However, persons who needlessly take advantage of this can be prosecuted.

Island has a mystery. Archeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

IN THE LATE 1840's, a band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were agast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 18, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing

BOYNE CITY'S Chamber of Commerce is located in this rustic log cabin. Beside the cabin is a billboard advertising Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival which draws thousands of persons in early May.

Boyne City offers much for summer, winter fun

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Roble Industrial Courier Products, Howe's Leather Company and MILL'S Cabin Mills. In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has several area parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on 11 1/2 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival, held the second Saturday in May, draws crowds from around Michigan and other states.

E-J industry

Among East Jordan's industry is Mt. Clemens Metal Products which manufactures metal stampings, Circuit Controls, which produces electric switches and wiring harnesses, East Jordan Iron Works, which makes castings, and heavy and light machine shop finish products, and East Jordan Canning Company, which puts up vegetables and fruits.

Indian past lives again at Greensky Hill church

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road. Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground. Nearby stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with things when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

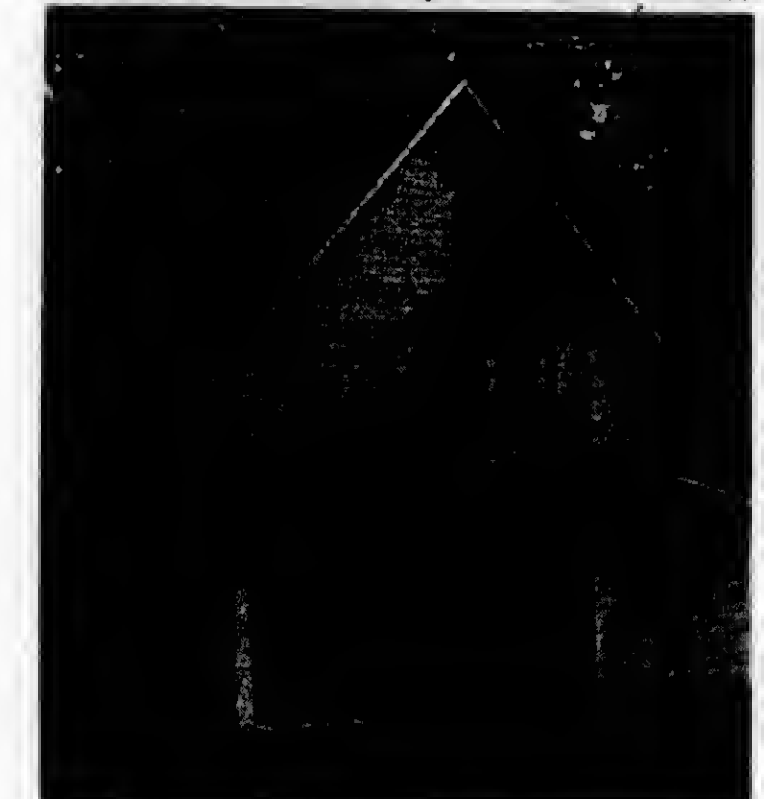

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ojibwa language. The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area. Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

THE FIRST structure was a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 28 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud.

THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, in spite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Green-

Charlevoix County's wild rabbits don't really grow as big as trucks. This Garden Island hare was more curious than timid when he found this toy truck on the beach. Watching wildlife is one of the favorite pastimes of summer visitors.

Anglers warned about Lake Michigan's fury

"Out too far in boats too small." This sums the problem facing the Charlevoix Coast Guard and sheriff's marine officers as they try to prevent accidents among fishermen on Lake Michigan.

With coho fishing expected to improve in the next few weeks, thousands of boaters will be on the big waters. Sheriff's of counties bordering on the Great Lakes, along with Coast Guard officers, representatives of the U.S. Weather Bureau, and the Michigan Department of Conservation have developed plans for emergencies. As good as they are, however, the plans are admittedly inadequate to cope with boaters who do not use good judgment.

Some idea of the problem is indicated in this comment by Lt. Bill Miller, Coast Guard Group Commander at Ludington: "Our off-shore patrols have found small, inland type aluminum fishing boats as far out in Lake Michigan as 15 miles. Even if they listen to their transistor radios and receive a weather warning, they're too far out to get into port before the storm strikes."

James A. Hadley, head of the Conservation Department's boat and water safety section, remarked: "On Saturday, June 29, 1968, one of the worst storms ever to hit the western Michigan coastline occurred with winds in excess of 100 miles per hour. Few boats of any size could weather a storm of this ferocity, but the sixty or more boats which were out shortly before the storm struck were operated by persons of good judgment who, upon hearing the radio weather warning, immediately headed for safety. Only about six boats capsized in this storm and no lives were lost. But had these boats been of the small inland fishing variety with small outboard motors, they would never have made it to safety and lives would have been lost.

"Fishermen must consider their own seamanship ability, have a respect for the weather and be sure their boats are adequately equipped for the severe weather that can be anticipated at any hour of any day on lakes Michigan and Superior."

Since weather has such an important bearing on Great Lakes sport fishing, anglers would be well advised, says Hadley, to heed the warning of Jim Zollar, meteorologist in charge of the Grand Rapids Weather Bureau station: "Carry a transistor radio in your boat, listen for weather warnings and head for safety whenever a warning is broadcast. It could save your life."

One-day scenic, historic tour

Charlevoix resorters seeking a momentary change of pace will find an abundance of Michigan's beauty and history within a comfortable one-day round-trip drive of their cottage.

One of the most interesting "Charlevoix-and-back" auto tours recommended by the Automobile Club of Michigan is the shoreline route to Mackinaw City, across the Big Mac bridge and on to Sault Ste. Marie.

The way the Auto Club charted it out for Playtime, this is a 260 mile round trip. The Club's tour department reports this is generally about the mileage that can be covered comfortably in one day.

You'll want to take your time so you won't miss the many unmarked scenic overlooks that suddenly pop into view as you round a curve on the road between Harbor Springs and Cross Village. Good restaurants and picnic grounds abound along the route.

The first lap of your trip will take you up the shore 27 miles to Harbor Springs, where you will want to make a special point of visiting Chief Blackbird's home, which is now a museum. Harbor's yacht basin will also interest you, as will the Holy Childhood Indian Mission School.

Heading out of Harbor Springs up the shore, the next 19 miles to Cross Village are among the most beautiful in Michigan. Attractions include the Indian church under the hill at Good Hart, the Great Lake's Indian Museum and huge cross marking Father Marquette's landing in Cross Village.

From Cross Village it is 23 more scenic miles to Mackinaw City and a breathtaking view of the Mackinac Bridge and historic tour of Fort Michilimackinac.

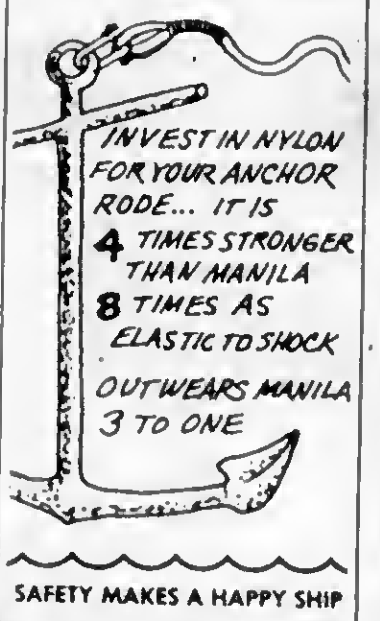

The five-mile drive across the bridge to St. Ignace will give you a panoramic view of the Straits of Mackinac and you will marvel at the construction and engineering genius that went into Mighty Mac.

Historic St. Ignace boats numerous attractions, including Castle Rock, Fort Algonquin Museum, Marquette Park and an Indian burial ground.

If your day isn't complete enough at this point, it is 55 miles to Sault Ste. Marie, the third oldest continuous white settlement in North America. There's a viewing stand where you can enjoy shipwatching at the Soo Locks, the busiest in the world. Or you can take a two-hour sightseeing boat by Capt. Fred Lawton, Director Marine Society, Raytheon Company & America's Cup championship sailing master.

For the return trip you may want to take US-31 out of Mackinaw City, instead of retracing your route up the shoreline through Cross Village. If you return by US-31 you will want to turn off the highway for a few blocks to see "Old Levering," which is now a ghost town, and enjoy Pellston, Alanson, Oden and Conway, before, perhaps, stopping for dinner at one of Petoskey's many marvelous restaurants and then home to the cool splendor of a Charlevoix sunset.

Fishing great for trout, bass

The chance of hooking a trophy-size steelhead trout or even a coho salmon or lake trout continues to electrify Charlevoix area fishermen. But, as always, the old dependables are smallmouth bass, perch and pike.

Though steelhead fishing success in Lake Charlevoix fell off this spring and summer from last year's fast pace, more of the big rainbows are known to be in the lake now than before. Why they are not being caught is a fisherman's question which only a fisherman's guess can answer.

Lake trout, however, have come on strong in portions of Lake Charlevoix and near-by Lake Michigan areas. The lake trout, like the 'bows, are glutting themselves on alewives, so fish accordingly. Trolling slow, in front 30 to 80 feet of water, with lures that imitate a silver-colored bait fish seems to be the best producer.

Last fall a few 'stray' mature coho were caught in Lake Charlevoix and feeder streams. This fall more are expected, along with some immature males from plantings made here this spring. There are also fleeting reports of schools of coho in Lake Michigan a few miles off Charlevoix. None of these reports have been pinned down, but some fishermen wouldn't be surprised to hit the jackpot before the summer is over.

The Lake Charlevoix shoreline is splattered with smallmouth hotspots. Among the most consistent producers are areas of the South Arm near Ironton.

The most proven method for taking the plucky smallmouths (and an occasional steelhead) is to troll just off the dropoff. Troll slow with Mepps spinner, Jig A Do, Rapala, small Flatfish, Dare-Devil, etc.

If it's the kids you want to please, try dunking worms off docks or near weeds for rock bass and perch. (One of 'em is apt to nail a four-pound bass, though. So be prepared to blush.)

IF YOU hanker to try some of Walloon Lake's renowned angling you can rent a boat in the village, or launch your own at several public sites. Walloon continues to produce some of the biggest bass in northern Lower Michigan.

STREAF fishermen will find the trout fishing slow on the lower end of the Jordan river, guide Ted Kotowich reports. But, he says, some nice catches of browns are coming from the headwaters.

The short section of the Boyne River that is still open to the public is also reported to be producing fine trout fishing.

IF YOUR fancy runs more to worm dunking, there are plenty of small creeks around that harbor trout. You can try Stover, Deer, Monroe, the Bear out of Walloon Lake, and several that feed into the Jordan.

Worm dunkers also have a good time off the Pine River breakwaters and the railroad bridge, where they can sit and soak up the charm of the Charlevoix harbor and luxury yachts.

If you feel more confident fishing small lakes there's no shortage of them in the Charlevoix-Ellsworth area.

THERE IS still a handful of virtually unexploited small lakes known by only a few fishermen. Pike weighing in the 20 pound class and bass that top five pounds come from them.

But to reveal their whereabouts in print would be a violation of an angler's most sacred oath. So dig out a map or buy a native fisherman a drink and find them yourself.

Here's a list, though, of a few of the smaller lakes that are better known and guaranteed to have fish in them:

--Nowland Lake, for pike, bass, panfish.

--Six Mile Lake, for pike, bass and muskie.

--Ellsworth Lake, for pike, bass and panfish.

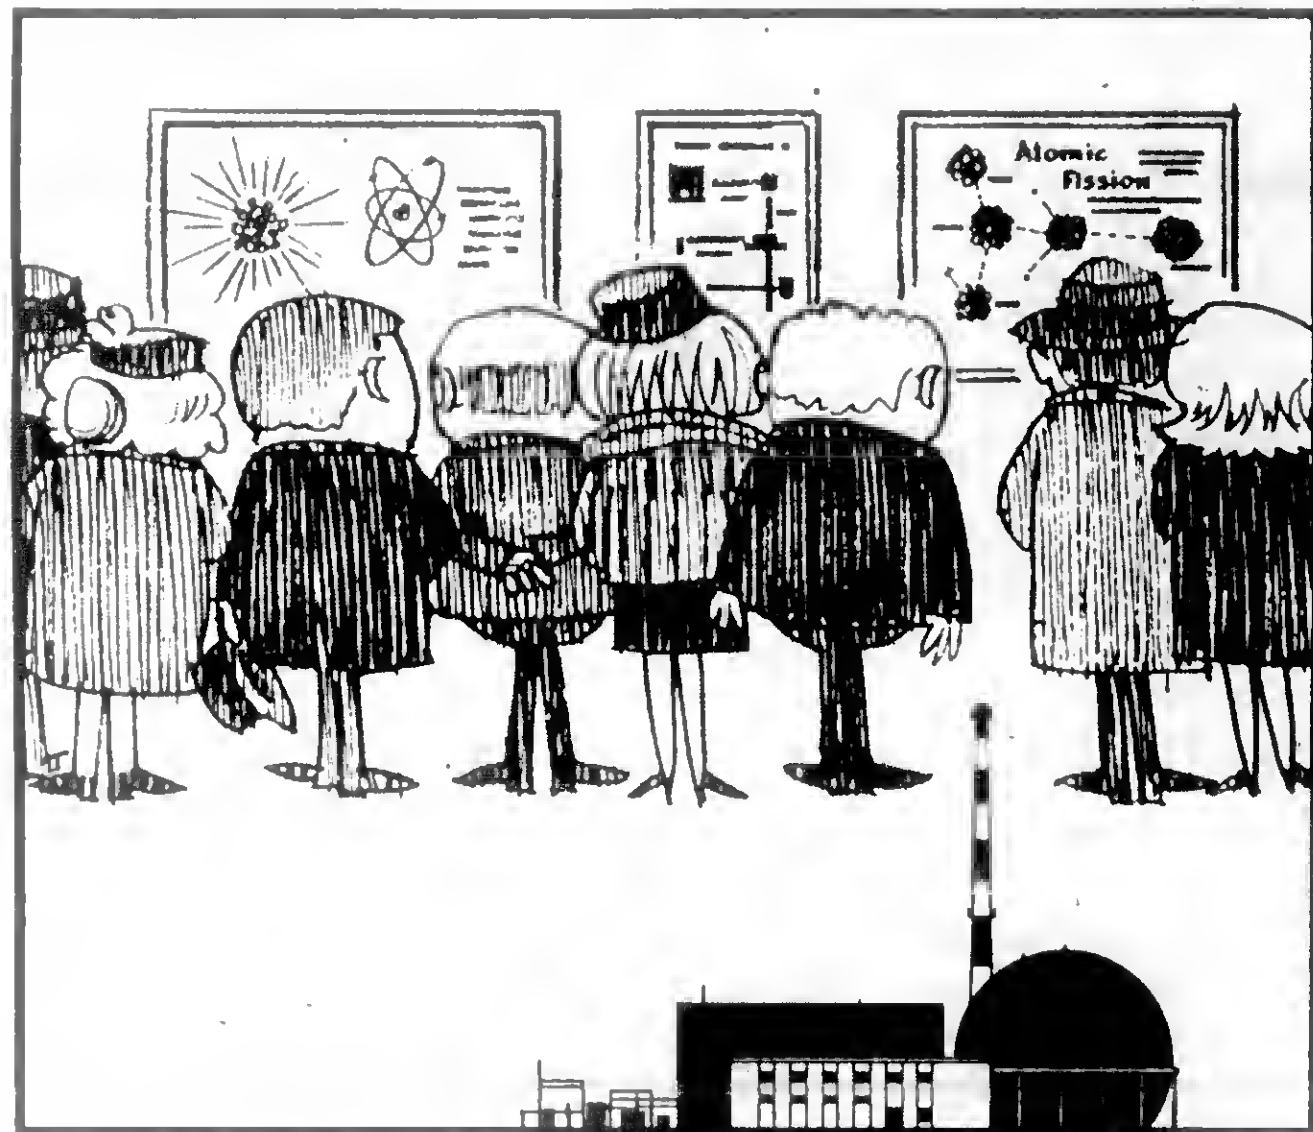

--Adams Lake for pike and panfish.

--Deer Lake for bass and pike.

IF YOU'RE looking for real fishing adventure journey to Beaver Island. Once in St. James you can rent a small boat to take you into the bays of Garden and Hog Islands.

These bays are among the nation's top-ranked smallmouth hotspots. However, there's no guarantee you'll find the bass in the shallows and hungry. When the fishing's good, it's fantastic. But when it's bad, it's as bad as anywhere else.

There is also reported to be some good fishing on some of the smaller inland lakes on Beaver Island. When you get to St. James ask around and see where they are hitting.

Summer concerts

Musical lovers will find plenty to please their ear in Charlevoix County.

The Charlevoix City Band has scheduled concerts in the park every Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. in East Park. Composed of local musicians, summer visitors and college students home for the holidays, the band is directed by C. A. Odmark.

Boyer City band concerts also are scheduled Wednesday evenings at 8 in Memorial Park. Dancing follows each concert.

BAY VIEW Assembly just north of Petoskey has concerts scheduled every Sunday evening, with other musical events planned on weekday evenings throughout the summer.

Of course, the National Music Camp is located only a short distance south of Traverse City, with many fine concerts planned for the summer.

Golf courses lure players

Golfing is a favorite pastime among visitors and year-round residents alike. Here are some of the golf courses you might like to try:

Beaver Lodge Golf and Country Club, 9 holes, Beaver Island.

Miniature Golf Course, Harbor Hills, Beaver Island.

Ye Nynne Olde Holles, Iron-ton, Ferry Rd., Boyne City.

Boyer Mountain Golf Course, 9 holes, Boyne Falls.

Golf Driving Range, Walloon Lake.

Belvedere Golf Course, 18 holes, Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Golf Club, 9 holes, Petoskey Avenue.

JAY FERGUSON was mighty surprised when this 16 pound pike latched onto his steelhead lure just off the public beach in Lake Charlevoix. He was trolling a small flatfish . . . hoping to pick up a five or six pound steelhead.

MEMBERS OF the military honor guard which participated in Monday's funeral for Larry Elzinga, Charlevoix's first Vietnam war victim, lift the flag from the casket and prepare to fold it for presentation to his mother, Mrs. Martin Elzinga. The full military funeral, with firing squad, bugler playing taps and full honors for the flag was the first of its kind in Charlevoix since the Korean War 15 years ago.

Larry Elzinga Community mourns first Vietnam victim

The Vietnam war came home to Charlevoix for the first time last week. It came in a flag-draped coffin bearing the body of nineteen-year-old Corporal Larry L. Elzinga.

Full military rites were held Monday for Charlevoix's first Vietnam combat fatality.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Elzinga, Cpl. Elzinga was killed August 3 in the Saigon area, where he was an Army tank driver with the 4123 Infantry of the 22nd Division. He had previously been wounded twice and each time returned to combat. He was sent to the war zone last April.

A former student at Charlevoix High School, where his father is supervisor of bus transportation, he volunteered for military service in October of 1967. Following training at Fort Knox, Ky. and Fort Polk, La. he was sent to Vietnam.

A 16 - member military honor guard and firing squad from Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. took part in the rites at Winchester Funeral Home and Brookside Cemetery Monday afternoon.

Rev. Jack Harris of the First Baptist Church officiated.

Cpl. Elzinga was born here Nov. 18, 1949. Surviving, besides his parents, are two sisters; Mrs. Ray (Nora) Anderson and Mrs. Timothy (Lorraine) Shores Jr., both of Charlevoix; three brothers, James and Richard of Charlevoix and Thomas of Boyne City; his paternal grandfather, Harry Elzinga of Charlevoix and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. John Griffin of Grayling.

Cpl. Elzinga's body was flown to Charlevoix Saturday.

He is the first Charlevoix man killed in the nation's longest war and the 14th from Charlevoix County.

The other war casualties from the county are Cpl. Gerrie G. Jeffries of Charlevoix; Sgt. William J. Taylor Jr. of East Jordan; Pvt. Donald G. Kelch of East Jordan; Sgt. Norman Kerr of Boyne City and L/Cpl. Humphrey J. Price of Boyne City.

Rabach seeks volunteers for air pollution group

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Clarence Rabach has called a meeting for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, August 15, to form an official voluntary citizens air pollution control committee.

All persons interested in air pollution and other specific community relations problems concerning Medusa's South Point cement plant are asked by Rabach to attend the meeting in City Hall.

Persons attending the meeting, Rabach said, will become members of the committee. Rabach explained he will chair the Thursday meeting only until those present can elect their own chairman.

Medusa recommended that Rabach appoint such a committee. Rather than appoint members to the committee, Rabach said, he is calling for Thursday's meeting so that persons genuinely interested and concerned with the problems will be on the committee.

Medusa has offered to work closely with the committee and assist it in any way possible, including "reasonable finances," to procure scientific samples of air pollution from the plant.

In other developments last week, the company filed its registration of the type and amount of air contaminants coming from the plant.

The company has been in violation of the township air quality control code by not filing the registration. It was filed with the District Health Dept., which is responsible for policing the code.

The company early this week announced it will landscape the east side of South Point with trees to improve the physical appearance of the property.

In announcing the landscape program, plant manager Henry Krebs admitted the need for beautification of the plant side has been neglected.

In asking persons to volunteer for the citizens committee by attending Thursday's meeting, Rabach said he is hoping to see a group formed which will exert an active and unprejudiced continuing effort to work out problems with Medusa.

The committee, Rabach said should explain to company officials community thinking and learn from the company what can be and is being done to work out problems. He said he hopes this will result in mutual understanding and cooperation between the company and community.

He anticipates committee members will be asked to visit the plant to get an on-the-site understanding of how it operates.

The overdue registration notice failed to identify any causes of air pollution except from the smoke stack. The company earlier admitted it is causing air pollution by disposal of dust collected in the stack and from its grinding of cement clinker.

District Health Dept. sanitarian Dean Mikulski said the company and his office are attempting to determine the amount of contamination from these other sources. When this is accurately determined, Mikulski said, it will be included in the registration notice.

Under the township code, the company—and all other sources of air pollution—are required to register specifically how much pollution they are causing and what is causing it.

Medusa's registration stated approximately 5,600 pounds of cement dust is coming from the plant's stack during every 24 hours of capacity operation. This is reported to be within the tolerances allowed by the ordinance.

Bank drops check charge

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank has announced another unprecedented move. This time it is free checking account service.

Bank Vice President Jerry Redeker said patrons will no longer pay any service charge for checking accounts.

Redeker estimated this will save most persons about $20 a year. The average person he said, writes about 30 checks a month.

The Savings Bank until now charged four cents for every check a person wrote plus a basic 50 cent charge no matter how many checks were written. This comes to an average service charge of $1.70 a month.

Redeker said the Savings Bank is the only one in the north which does not charge for checking account service. He said only a few downstate banks have eliminated the service charge.

Earlier this year the Savings Bank became the only one in Michigan to reduce its interest charge on consumer loans to a minimum of 3.5%.

Story hour

Story hour for children six and older continue to be held Saturday mornings, 9:30 a.m., by Mrs. James J. Hülligan of Columbine, Ohio.

Mrs. Hülligan, who expects to continue the weekly story hours until her family returns to Ohio, reports only a half-dozen or so children have been attending. She would welcome many more.

In addition to stories, activities related to them are planned for the children.

Hospital meet

The Charlevoix Hospital Board of Directors holds its annual public meeting 8 p.m. tonight (Wednesday) in City Hall.

In addition to financial and other reports, four new members will be elected to the board for three year terms.

LARRY ELZINGA

Charlevoix's first Viet war casualty

AARON BROCK lost 12 calves, three tractors, feed and other equipment when this outbuilding was completely destroyed by fire Tuesday afternoon at his Brock Rd. farm near Ironton. Charlevoix firemen pour water on the blazing timbers and hay to keep it from spreading to other outbuildings. The destroyed building was the former Ironton school, which Brock moved to his farm after the new brick school was built.

Football workouts underway

Coach Don Carey is looking for football players. Only a few 1968 Bayder grid hopefuls are turning out evenings for pre-practice physical conditioning, Carey said.

All prospective football players in grades nine through twelve are supposed to be reporting to the high school every weekday evening at 6 p.m. for physical workouts in the shoe, Carey pointed out.

They must also pickup their physical cards so they can get a doctor's examination, Carey said that due to the busy schedule Charlevoix doctors are working under it is important that players get their physicals as soon as possible.

Regular practice sessions start August 26. The first game is scheduled September 13 against Boyne City at Charlevoix.

Carey pointed out that because Charlevoix will be one of the smallest schools in the new Michigan Huron Shores League it is more important than ever that boys turn out early for pre-practice physical conditioning.

Students register

Parents of grade school children who did not go to school here last spring should register their children tomorrow, August 15.

Elementary school principal Glenn Snider reports registration of all children from kindergarten through sixth grade who were not previously enrolled will take place from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday.

Kindergartners who registered last spring need not register again, Snider said.

Classes start Tuesday, September 3, the day after Labor Day.

County Clerk Pete Bulow reports additional crimes.

Baskets and Basketry, by Dorothy Wright. Baskets are currently popular as decorative accessories to carry to use in the home. Here are instructions, photographs, drawings and diagrams for making a variety of shapes for a variety of uses.

One case is five years old and involves a Boyne City father and his daughter-John Bush and Debra Lynn Bush - who are suing Arthur Poineau of Boyne City and Dr. Roger C. Palmer, Burns Clinic and Little Traverse Hospital.

The other case involves former Boyne City physician Dr. Wolfgang Boese who is being sued by an attorney who claims Dr. Boese owes him money.

Bush claims his daughter was injured November 4, 1963 when a horse on which she was allowed to ride by Poineau fell on her. He further charges that Dr. Palmer, formerly of Burns Clinic, failed to properly diagnose the extent of the girl's back injury, causing permanent complications.

Poineau contends Bush asked him to allow his daughter to ride the horse, Dr. Palmer, the clinic and hospital deny the negligence charge. A jury has been summoned.

Unsettled County attorney Paul E. Fregolle is asking the court to order Dr. Boese to pay him $4,750 for legal services.

If a jury is called, which Bulow reports unlikely, the following persons are on the jury list.

Beverly A. Espick, Leland H. Warner and Don Ann Robinson, all of Charlevoix; Kathleen A. Smith, Charlevoix Township; Thelma McCallan, Hayes Township; Lee Danforth Sr., Eveline; Guy L.

Smith, Marina; Donald Fairrell, Norwood; Robert Southern, Petoskey; Lillian O'Grady, St. James; Gordon Capella, Bay; Leo Frawley, Boyne Valley; Lyn Seaton, Chandler; Luella M. Star, Evandale; Cyrol Chokel, Hudson; Frank Sumner, South Arm; William D. Dunson, Wilson; Leonard Brooks, Rosa Lamb; Frances Erickson and John Buckmaster, all of Boyne City; Everett L. Combs, Doris Buckle and Howard Porter, all of East Jordan.

Fregolle further contends Dr. Boese owes him another $1,250 for his services before the state medical licensing board.

Dr. Boese has been authorized to represent himself in the suit rather than hire another attorney.

According to Fregolle's suit, Dr. Boese agreed to pay him $2,500 to represent him in a criminal case in Oakland County. At the time Dr. Boese was charged with performing an illegal abortion.

Varnum easily defeats Berlage in primary

Last week's primary election eliminated all serious challengers to county political incumbents and left Charlevoix County with no chance of electing a local District or Circuit Judge.

In the only contest that generated public interest, incumbent Republican Prosecuting Attorney Harvey Varnum defeated Don Berlage 1,062 to 665. Varnum now faces Democrat Robert Hoffman in November. Hoffman garnered 340 votes in the primary.

Fewer than 400 Democrats, compared to more than 1,700 Republicans, voted in the primary.

Fran Martin, who is running for reelection to the post of County Drain Commissioner, an office which by law must be on the ballot but which does not really exist, was the top Democrat vote getter with 387 votes.

Jerry Uhrick, Miss Martin's Republican opponent, pulled 1,378 votes. He is thought to be the first Republican to seek the Drain Commissioner post.

In other contested county races incumbent Republican Sheriff Phil Sumner easily disposed of former Boyne City Police Chief Everett Hadix 1,377 to 417.

COURT CONTESTS

In the primary runoff for Circuit Court and District Court, Charlevoix County's two candidates were defeated by voters in other counties.

Boyer City Attorney Robert Klevern, seeking nomination for Circuit Judge, easily outmaneuvered his three opponents in Charlevoix County, but was dethroned in the other counties in the 13th Judicial District.

Klevern got 1,429 votes in Charlevoix County. In comparison, James Fitzpatrick had 401 votes; Glenn Aylsworth, 232 and Ormond S. Danford, 144. They are all from the Traverse City area.

In the other counties (Grand Traverse, Leelanau and Antrim) voters gave Danford and Fitzpatrick the nomination. One of them will be elected in November.

For District Judge, Charlevoix attorney John Michael was beaten in Emmet County to give Potosky attorneys John Murphy and Dick Smith the nomination. Voters will choose between Murphy and Smith in November.

Michael polled 718 votes in Charlevoix County. Murphy got 671 county votes and Smith got 568.

COUNTY OFFICES

Republican Clarence Rabach received 1,438 votes in his uncontested bid to be the GOP candidate for County Clerk. Pete Johnson, the Democratic candidate for Clerk, got 321 votes.

County Treasurer Anah Potter was renominated without opposition, getting 1,481 votes. Democrat Mrs. Geneva J. Vronckam, who drew 281 votes, will oppose Mrs. Potter in November.

Sheriff Sumner and Register of Deeds Grover Genelt, both Republicans, will be unopposed in November. Genelt got 1,527 votes in the primary, where he had no rivals.

NON-LOCAL OFFICES

Former Democratic Congressman Ray Clevenger of the Soo easily eliminated Jack English of Ironwood. In Charlevoix County Clevenger drew 331 votes to English's 67.

Clevenger now faces incumbent Republican Phil Ruppe, who got 1,601 votes in the County.

Charlevoix Democrat George LaBlance was nominated without opposition to face St. Ignace Republican incumbent Bob Davis for the State House of Representatives. LaBlance got 333 votes. Davis, who also had no opposition, got 1,555 votes in the county.

COUNTY SUPERVISORS

In Charlevoix, incumbent Republican Kit Carson beat challenger Don Meggison 172 to 119 in County Supervisor District 13 (all of the First Ward and part of the Second Ward). Renominated without opposition were Ken Staley in District 14 and Lee Moerland in District 15.

Clayton Smith of Charlevoix Township defeated Republicans Robert Bergmann and Jack Erber for the party's nomination in County Supervisor District 3 (Hayes and Charlevoix Townships).

Smith drew 60 votes to Bergmann's 56 and Erber's 35. In Charlevoix Township Smith got 31 votes. He picked up 29 more in Hayes Township. Bergmann, who lives in Hayes, had 30 votes in Hayes to 26 in Charlevoix.

Smith now faces Democrat incumbent Lee Sneathen Jr., who got 32 votes in his unopposed primary bid. Of these, 27 votes came from Hayes and five from Charlevoix Township.

In East Jordan's County Supervisor District 8 Bill Taylor defeated Thora Kotowich, both Republicans, 61 to 31.

In Wallon Lake Harry Griffin beat Gerald Pineout 66 to 27 for the Republican nomination in County Supervisor District 6 (Melrose and Chandler Townships). Griffin will be opposed by Chandler Township Democrat incumbent John Howard in November.

All other county supervisor candidates were unopposed in the primary.

Find Brownwood tucked in woods by Torch Lake

By PAT HEGROW
Just a 30 minute drive from Charlevoix on the east side of Torch Lake is a small group of buildings with a large reputation. Brownwood Acres.

"Follow the honeybee," chant the highway signs, and you'd be wise to take their advice for Brownwood is a delight to the senses.

Aesthetically it is the understatement realized for the tiny old buildings can barely be seen from the road, certainly not by anyone traveling in a vehicle faster than a horse and buggy.

On the Torch Lake side of the road is the old log house with its tiny entrance porch overlooking with pots of red geraniums and crowded with blue glass bottles and golden jars of honey.

Inside are a series of tiny rooms filled with choice gift items. There is jewelry from Africa and India. There are hand dipped candles and hand woven ties. A shopper can find stationery or cards different from any that he has seen before simply because these are made expressly for Brownwood.

For those who like unusual footwear Brownwood has a special room equipped as a tiny little shoe shop featuring soft leather moccasins for warm weather and thick furry boots for winter.

In another room of the Honey House are collected Copenhagen china, ceramic plaques and interesting clocks. Each item is placed so tastefully that it is irresistible to all but the most confirmed window shopper.

As you walk out the back door of the Honey House you come upon a quaint village square. Directly opposite is the Country Store, an old building which was brought across Torch Lake on the ice and renovated just for Brownwood.

When you enter the Country Store your nostrils twitch trying to distinguish the variety of smells. In the front of the store are honeysuckle candies, spicy clove sticks and herbicide switches. These sweet scents complete with those of strong cheese and fresh loofahs.

In the back room of the store the smells of old fashioned linum, rose and sandalwood soap fill the air. This back room is filled with American quilts and artifacts. Hand embroidered American quilts, hand carved frames set the tone of this room.

On the east side of the village square is a tiny old schoolhouse, The Grass Lake School. This building was once the school of the Lake Bellaire area which at that time was called Grass Lake. From it the laughing voices of children can still be heard, for it is now the toy store where children can find a toy for ten cents or ten dollars.

If you visit Brownwood during the afternoon or evening hours be sure to cross the street to the Farm House. This is the old home of the Brown Family and has been skillfully converted into a series of dining rooms and features a Victorian bar.

If the day is hot it's fun to have a cool drink and lunch under the trees on the patio. Luncheon and dinner are

Mold, County Bank undefeated

Morwell Steel took a giant step toward winning the second round in the city football league when it beat first round winner, American Mold 4-2. Two runs in the sixth proved to be the big ones as Mold rallied for two themselves in the bottom of that frame. Bob Klooster, the winning hurler, limited Mold to two hits and Dave Smith's base hits, Hart Bass's losing pitcher, allowed but four hits to the winners.

County State Bank kept their title hopes alive with one of their patented come-from-behind wins over hard luck Lake Construction. Lake erupted for seven runs in the sixth inning to take a 7-2 lead. With two out Gary Stutzman doubled and continued around to score when he forced a throwing error on his try for third base. In the bottom of the seventh, Larry Edwards' one-out single brought Wood to the plate where he promptly homered over the center field fence to give the Bank boys the narrow victory.

PEANUT LEAGUE

The big game of the week in the tight Peanut League was the Tiger upset win over the previously undefeated Braves. It took a great game by the Tigers who scored three in the bottom of the seventh to tie the game and then Randy Gustafson's double drove home the winning marker in the eighth for the narrow 7-6 victory. Key baseruns by Dan Green and Ron Hiltmarch in the seventh forced the tie for the Tigers. The loss gave the Astros a temporary hold of first place.

The Cards remained a first for the second round title by winning twice. They handed first round winners, the Lions, their second loss with a 6-1 triumph. Jim Potter had a homer and single for the winners. While Steve McClellan's opening inning triple was the only hit for the Lions off Potter.

The Tigers scored in nearly every inning to beat the winless Dodgers 11-1. Carl Plum Res. Milligan and Pat Whittier combined hits around two errors for the crucial runs. Kevin Martin led all hitters with three hits for the Lions.

The Cards edged the Cuban an exciting contest. Chris Hillman's two run homer proved to be the winning margin for the Cards. Bryan Van-Loo had three hits in a losing cause.

Take your problems to Church this week — millions leave them there!

A Call To Worship

The bell is an instrument of many moods. It tolls dirges, peels out joyous tidings, sounds alarms and gives forth music. Though the telephone and siren have replaced the bell in many of its previous uses, down through the centuries it served to broadcast messages to whole communities. It alerted the neighborhood to fire and disaster. It called the farmer from his labors. Probably its most noble, fitting and proper function was that of calling man to worship. It is appropriate that it should be used even now for that purpose.

As with the bell, some things never become out of style. Are never replaced. These include love, faith and above all God. The Church is the instrument for interpreting these and guiding man in rightful living, a calling which will never become outmoded or unneeded by humankind.

Is the weed addictive?

Knitting mittens may be cure for cigarette habit

Most of the nation's estimated 55 million and Charlevoix's 1,000 or more smokers know their habit is foul and unhealthy. And most of them have thought about quitting or tried to quit.

But they still smoke. Why?

Courier general manager Tom McDaniels has made several stabs at quitting the weed. Each time he gets surly, starts clicking on candy and prancing to and out of the office. After a week, or so, he's back on the weed.

When things slow down, he always rationalizes, he'll quit for good. Things aren't likely to slow down because they always seem to speed up when his nerves get to itching for a cloud of nicotine.

Mrs. McDaniels is a different story. Grace Ann quit five months ago. She no longer has any doubts about her continued abstinence. She can breathe better and she sleeps better. She's also losing the ten pounds she gained during her withdrawal from the habit.

Making the break wasn't easy. She fogged recalling knitting four pairs of mittens in one afternoon... or maybe it was two days.

Social scientists and physicians have produced many theories to explain the persistence of the habit. Smoking is socially accepted. It satisfies deep psychological needs. It is clearly pleasurable to many. But now some research physicians and other scientists are beginning to talk about cigarette smoking in a new context -- as a genuine "addiction" like that induced by such drugs as morphine and heroin.

"There's no question that smoking involves physical dependence on nicotine, withdrawal symptoms and a pre-occupation with its (nicotine's) use and compulsion to take it that constitute addictive behavior," says Dr. Jerome Jaffe, a University of Chicago psychiatrist and pharmacologist whose definition of drug addiction is widely accepted at medical schools.

Dr. Peter Knapp, a Boston University psychiatrist, says: "Heavy cigarette smokers appear to be true addicts, showing not only social habituation but mild physiologic effects."

There is a semantic problem. A deeply entrenched "habit," as devotees of chewing gum or salted peanuts might testify, can seem much like addiction. And medical men acknowledge that addiction is difficult to identify, since it involves psychological factors as well as physiological ones.

Dr. Maurice Seavers, chairman of the department of pharmacology at the University of Michigan, doesn't think cigarettes are physically addictive, but he says smokers' psychological dependence on cigarettes is comparable to the "kick" found in such drugs as marijuana or amphetamines.

Nobody expects cigarettes to be classified as narcotics or their sale to be banned, but sources in Congress and the Federal Trade Commission say that if evidence of addiction became irrefutable, attempts would be made to require an appropriate warning on cigarette labels.

Doctors investigating the effects of cigarette smoking single out nicotine as the suspect substance in possible addiction. This alkaloid chemical, comprising about 6% of cigarette smoke, acts as a stimulant on the central nervous system.

In tests at the University of Michigan medical school, smokers were given 2 kinds of injections over several days. One day the injection would contain as much nicotine as the smokers normally got from cigarettes; the next day, injection contained a neutral saline solution. The smokers didn't know the experiment was related to smoking.

The Michigan researchers found that cigarette consumption went down by one third on the days of the nicotine injections but didn't change on the days of the neutral injections. Their conclusion, nicotine "plays a small but significant role in the smoking habit."

In view of such evidence, says Dr. Jarvik of Albert Einstein College, "It is obvious that the best way to fight the smoking habit is to prevent its commencement." Studies of teenage smokers have unearthed various reasons for taking up smoking, "conforming to the peer group," emulating parents, curiosity, seeking to impress others and rebellion against authority were among them.

"Most kids start smoking not because they like it -- they're nauseated by the smoke at first -- but because of tremendous pressure to conform," says Dr. Donald Fredrickson, director of New York City's smoking clinics. "It's a powerful symbol of moving into adult life."

Some studies have found smokers to be psychologically different from nonsmokers as a group -- more aggressive and rebellious, less motivated toward achievement, more impulsive, tending to be unstable and preoccupied with oral activity.

Various psychiatrists have speculated that smokers like to "flirt with death" by continuing their habit or to feel "the interior of the self" by filling the chest with smoke. Some even would relate the smoking habit to the breast feeding of infancy.

One psychiatrist offers more mundane notions -- that smokers are motivated by individual needs for realization, stimulation and security. "Some smokers," he says,

Obituary

Floyd Black

Services for Floyd Black, 69, who died Thursday, August 8, at Little Traverse Hospital where he had been a patient since July 27, were held at the Winchester Funeral Home Saturday. Rev. Albert F. Manson will officiate and burial will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Mr. Black, a retired rural mail carrier, has been infirming health for more than a year.

He was born in Charlevoix May 19, 1899. He married the former Mary Gates in October, 1923 at Kalkaska and they always resided in Marion township.

Mr. Black retired as a rural mail carrier after 27 years and was a member of the rural letter carrier's association. He operated a farm in Marion township and was well known throughout Michigan for fine horses which he raised and entered in horse pulling contests held throughout the state.

He was a member of the Community Reform Church and a World War I cavalry veteran.

Besides his wife, he is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Arthur (Jean) Drenth and Mrs. Robert (Maxine) Drenth, both of Elmhurst, Ill.; Edward (Shirley) Wilbur, of Kalamazoo and Mrs. Richard (Mary Lou) Johnson, of Elmhurst, Ill.; 16 grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Henry Felix and Mrs. John Johnson, both of Charlevoix.

The family requests that anyone wishing to honor the memory of Mr. Black may contribute to the Cancer Society in his name.

"Derivative satisfaction from holding the cigarette, lighting it up and watching the smoke."

If smoking is so bad, why doesn't the government do something?

Some months before his death Sen. Robert Kennedy said: "I would wager that if the economic power of the cigarette and related industries were as minuscule as that of the marijuana industry, cigarette would long ago have been prohibited and their sale saddled with severe penalties."

If you do decide to quit, what are the chances you'll stick to it? About 1 in 5, say the researchers. And one withdrawal method is about as good (or bad) as another.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY'S LARGEST NEWSPAPER

Vol. 72 No. 39 16 Pages Charlevoix, Michigan 49720-Monday, August 19, 1968

ONE OF CHARLEVOIX's newest tourist attractions is Castle Van Haver, located on M-66 about two miles southeast of the city. The former Loeb dairy barns, reminiscent of a medieval castle, have been converted into an art foundry and gift shop by John Van Haver. This photo, taken at the beginning of restoration by R. Armstrong, took first place in a photo contest sponsored by the Flint Lensmen Camera Club.

Charlevoix County has something for everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula.

It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan -- Mt. Pisgah -- lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with the supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone. An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs -- the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club -- are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county -- Boyne Mountain, Thimble Mountain, Watkins Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

Station probes fish world

A new era has come to the Great Lakes. The era of the sports fishermen. And Charlevoix is the key to making that era an enduring one.

The Conservation Dept. recognized this by establishing the Great Lakes Fishery Station in the old Charlevoix National Fish Hatchery and assigning its new 63-foot Great Lakes survey boat, the Steelhead, to the station.

The station and boat are under the supervision of Myrl Keller, a graduate biologist and member of a pioneer Great Lakes commercial fishing family. Bill Palmer, an Oneida Indian, is skipper of the Steelhead.

The station and boat, the only ones of their kind on the Great Lakes, represent the first comprehensive effort made to gather information on fish in the lakes so that their long-ignored sport fishing potential can be developed. The station was dedicated May 2, 1968.

It's Keller and Palmer's job to find out where the coho and chinook salmon are, what they are eating, how fast they are growing, etc. From this, and other information, gathered by its elite Charlevoix crew, the Conservation Dept. will plan and develop programs to provide maximum sports fishing for salmon, trout and other Great Lakes species.

The Steelhead is equipped with the most modern fish survey gear, including sophisticated electronic equipment and conventional rigs for netting fish. It has just one mission: Prowl the Inland Seas in search of better sports fishing.

The station, next to the city's Lake Michigan beach, is open to visitors. The old hatchery facilities are now used for rearing young salmon.

Historically, Charlevoix has been the center of commercial fishing activity on the Great Lakes. During the last two decades, when fish tugs disappeared from nearly all other Great Lakes ports, Charlevoix remained a home port for commercial fishermen.

Now it has become the nerve center of this new era to make the Great Lakes the greatest sports fishing water in the world.

THE STEELHEAD, the Conservation Dept.'s new Great Lakes fish survey vessel at work on Lake Michigan just outside the pierheads at Charlevoix. The 63-foot, $105,000 boat is equipped with sophisticated and traditional fish finding and sampling gear.

A-plant tours popular

CHARLEVOIX--One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumers Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles northeast of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone. Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-movie presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Belaire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

Let's save the Jordan

The Jordan River has been called the least spoiled of Northern Lower Michigan's major trout streams, by Dr. Howard Tanner, father of Michigan's Coho and Chinook programs. Dr. Tanner was raised near the Jordan and spent what he considers some of the best days of his boyhood on the Jordan learning to use a fly rod.

His plea to "Save the Jordan" from the rapidly encroaching threat of "progress" has been taken up. Laws have been enacted and are now being enforced to halt development along the banks of the Jordan. The Conservation

Dept. is attempting to buy all of the stream frontage it can to preserve the Jordan in its wilderness state. But the pressures are great.

Money and "profit" are the great destroyers. You can help. You must help if the Jordan is to be saved!

Respect this lone survivor of Michigan's once numerous unspoiled trout streams. Don't litter its banks. Don't cut trees or burn indiscriminately. Tell your friends you are an advocate of "Saving the Jordan." If you have a buck or two to spare send it to "Save the Jordan," Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. We'll see that it gets to the people who will use it to build a stronger campaign to "Save the Jordan."

If you haven't visited the Jordan yet there is plenty of reason to do so. Brown trout weighing up to 15 pounds have been caught in its onflies. Some experts contend even bigger browns are lurking in this beautiful stream. Guides are available in East Jordan.

The Ambassador Bridge, a suspension-type span like Big Mac, crosses the Detroit River between Detroit and Windsor. It was completed in 1929 at a cost of $20 million, is privately owned. Auto toll is 60 cents.

Preservation of Fisherman's Island and the nearby Lake Michigan shoreline as a "natural area" has been proposed by a conservationists.

The small island, about five miles south of Charlevoix at the end of the Bell's Bay road, is only about a 100 yards off some of the least spoiled Lake Michigan shoreline remaining in the Lower Peninsula.

The area can be reached by driving past the Bell's Bay State Forest Campground to the end of the road and then walking a city block to the beach.

Persons interested in supporting the effort to save this magnificent natural area should write to Jack Lockwood, state forester, Conservation Dept., Boyne City, Mich.

Petoskey stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan.

Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

stones may be used as paper-weights or door stops.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bell's Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger live a little!

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

'Spider' dune rides offer thrills aplenty

ATWOOD -- Sand dune rides--long a popular form of recreation in western Michigan--are available at this Antrim County community 12 miles south of Charlevoix.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider" Sand Dune Rides, offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian camp ground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

ESSENBERG says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour.

"Kids simply refuse to get out, and teenagers start begging for money so they can ride again."

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Charlevoix is located 604 feet above sea level and has an average temperature of 45 degrees. The average summer temperature is 68.2 degrees, based on records of the past 22 years.

How about boat ride?

IRONTON -- How about a short boat ride?

For 35 cents, you, your car and your family can take a five-minute boat ride across the mouth of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Ferry docks are located at Ironton, about seven miles south east of Charlevoix on M-66, and at the tip of the high, rolling peninsula which separates Lake Charlevoix from the South Arm.

THE FERRY runs from early spring until late December, or whenever ice conditions make the passage impossible. The ferry ride makes a scenic expedition of the trip to or from East Jordan and Boyne City to Charlevoix.

Shuffleboard Courts Open

Shuffleboard fans will be able to practice their sport during their Charlevoix County vacation.

Courts are located in East Park and at the Lake Michigan Beach in Charlevoix, at East Jordan's Tourist Park and at Veteran's Memorial Park in Boyne City.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation retreat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has two runways, one of them 3,500 feet long.

OTHERS choose to visit the island in their private yachts, weather permitting. The island has ample dock facilities in a natural, sheltered harbor at St. James.

Transportation on the island is no problem if you bring your car. Otherwise, cars and motorcycles may be rented at St. James. Some vacationers prefer to enjoy the island scenery from a bicycle seat.

THE ONLY community of the island, St. James stretches along the shores of Paradise Bay for more than a mile. The village proper has two general stores, two bars, three restaurants and numerous motels, hotels, rental cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile

M-66.5 miles South of Charlevoix Past Ironton
on the South Arm of Beautiful Lake Charlevoix

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our fascinating bridge

CHARLEVOIX--No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over the Pine River channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained and built by the State Highway Dept., the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders--Ted Bergmann, Elmer Gitsou, Chiek Gallagher--and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries US31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

The bridge is raised for vessels too high to pass under it between found Lake and Lake Michigan. The bridge is required to open only every half hour--three minutes before and three minutes after the hour and half hour--for commercial and pleasure boats. A long blast and a short blast of a boat's horn are the signal to get the bridge raised. The bridge tender answers the boat's whistle and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals.

The first step in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches to warn traffic. Gates are lowered across the highway and sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However, the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

Increasing boat and highway traffic in recent years has led to longer and longer pileups on US31, particularly during the height of the summer season.

According to the highway department 103,071 cars had to wait for the bridge during the most recent 12 months survey period, costing motorists an estimated accumulated total of 286.2 days delay. Last year the bridge opened 3,685 times. Of these, 1,047 openings were in July and 691 in August. In an effort to eliminate unnecessary openings last year the bridge tenders were instructed by the State not to open the bridge if boaters would have enough clearance by lowering their radio antennas.

More restrictive action was taken this year with the new regulation limiting required bridge openings to every half hour. Traffic conditions on US31 allowing, the bridge tenders are attempting to be as liberal as possible in implementing these regulations for the convenience of boaters. Any boater in trouble coming in from Lake Michigan can have the bridge raised immediately by blowing a distress signal. However, persons who needlessly take advantage of this can be prosecuted.

Island has a mystery. Archeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

IN THE LATE 1840's, a band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wis., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself. However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were agast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

THE 64-SQUARE mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the hunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes. Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James, Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

BOYNE CITY'S Chamber of Commerce is located in this rustic log cabin. Beside the cabin is a billboard advertising Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival which draws thousands of persons in early May.

Boyne City offers much for summer, winter fun

Boyne City's history goes back to 1876 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Roble Industrial Courier Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills.

In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has several area parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles north west of the city, features a bathing beach with a guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on its 530 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m., band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival, held the second Saturday in May, draws crowds from around Michigan and other states.

E-J Industry

Among East Jordan's industry is Mt. Clemens Metal Products which manufactures metal stampings, Circuit Controls, which produces electric switches and wiring harnesses, East Jordan Iron Works, which makes castings, and heavy and light machine shop finish products, and East Jordan Canning Company, which puts up vegetables and fruits.

Indian past lives again at Greensky Hill church

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearby stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with thongs when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ojibwa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area.

Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

THE FIRST structure was a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 26 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud.

THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, despite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Green-

BUILT OF native cedar logs, the Greensky Hill Indian Methodist Church appears today much as it did in 1860 when it was completed.

JAY OLIVER, a member of Greensky Hill Church, stands near ancient twisted maple trees which once marked the site of Indian ceremonies.

Charlevoix County's wild rabbits don't really grow as big as trucks. This Garden Island hare was more curious than timid when he found this toy truck on the beach. Watching wildlife is one of the favorite pastimes of summer visitors.

Anglers warned about Lake Michigan's fury

"Out too far in boats too small." This sums the problem facing the Charlevoix Coast Guard and sheriff's marine officers as they try to prevent accidents among fishermen on Lake Michigan.

With coho fishing expected to improve in the next few weeks, thousands of boaters will be on the big waters. Sheriff of counties bordering on the Great Lakes, along with Coast Guard officers, representatives of the U.S. Weather Bureau, and the Michigan Department of Conservation have developed plans for emergencies. As good as they are, however, the plans are admittedly inadequate to cope with boaters who do not use good judgment.

Some idea of the problem is indicated in this comment by Lt. Bill Miller, Coast Guard Group Commander at Ludington: "Our off-shore patrols have found small, inland type aluminum fishing boats as far out in Lake Michigan as 15 miles. Even if they listen to their transistor radios and receive a weather warning, they're too far out to get into port before the storm strikes."

James A. Hadley, head of the Conservation Department's boat and water safety section, remarked: "On Saturday, June 29, 1968, one of the worst storms ever to hit the western Michigan coastline occurred with winds in excess of 100 miles per hour. Few boats of any size could weather a storm of this ferocity, but the sixty or more boats which were out shortly before the storm struck were operated by persons of good judgment who, upon hearing the radio weather warning, immediately headed for safety. Only about six boats capsized in this storm and no lives were lost. But had these boats been of the small inland fishing variety with small outboard motors, they would never have made it to safety and lives would have been lost.

"Fishermen must consider their own seamanship ability, have a respect for the weather and be sure their boats are adequately equipped for the severe weather that can be anticipated at any hour of any day on lakes Michigan and Superior."

Since weather has such an important bearing on Great Lakes sport fishing, anglers would be well advised, says Hadley, to heed the warning of Jim Zollar, meteorologist in charge of the Grand Rapids Weather Bureau station: "Carry a transistor radio in your boat, listen for weather warnings and head for safety whenever a warning is broadcast. It could save your life."

One-day scenic, historic tour

Charlevoix resorters seeking a momentary change of pace will find an abundance of Michigan's beauty and history within a comfortable one-day round-trip drive of their cottage.

One of the most interesting "Charlevoix-and-back" auto tours recommended by the Automobile Club of Michigan is the shoreline route to Mackinaw City, across the Big Mac bridge and on to Sault Ste. Marie.

The way the Auto Club charted it out for Playtime, this is a 260 mile round trip. The Club's tour department reports this is generally about the mileage that can be covered comfortably in one day.

You'll want to take your time so you won't miss the many unmarked scenic overlooks that suddenly pop into view as you round a curve on the road between Harbor Springs and Cross Village. Good restaurants and picnic grounds abound along the route.

The first lap of your trip will take you up the shore 27 miles to Harbor Springs, where you will want to make a special point of visiting Chief Blackbird's home, which is now a museum. Harbor's yacht basin will also interest you, as will the Holy Childhood Indian Mission School.

Heading out of Harbor Springs up the shore, the next 19 miles to Cross Village are among the most beautiful in Michigan. Attractions include the Indian church under the hill at Good Hart, the Great Lake's Indian Museum and huge cross marking Father Marquette's landing in Cross Village.

From Cross Village it is 23 more scenic miles to Mackinaw City and a breathtaking view of the Mackinac Bridge and historic tour of Fort Michilimackinac.

The five-mile drive across the bridge to St. Ignace will give you a panoramic view of the Straits of Mackinac and you will marvel at the construction and engineering genius that went into Mighty Mac.

Historic St. Ignace boats numerous attractions, including Castle Rock, Fort Algonquin Museum, Marquette Park and an Indian burial ground.

If your day isn't complete enough at this point, it is 55 miles to Sault Ste. Marie, the third oldest continuous white settlement in North America. There's a viewing stand where you can enjoy shipwatching at the Soo Locks, the busiest in the world. Or you can take a two-hour sightseeing boat cruise of the locks, take the Soo Tour Train, visit historic Diorama of the Soo and Brady Park.

For the return trip you may want to take US-31 out of Mackinaw City, instead of retracing your route up the shoreline through Cross Village. If you return by US-31 you will want to turn off the highway for a few blocks to see "old Levering," which is now a ghost town, and enjoy Pellston, Alanson, Oden and Conway, before, perhaps, stopping for dinner at one of Petoskey's many marvelous restaurants and then home to the cool splendor of a Charlevoix sunset.

"Licked into shape" is a term derived from an ancient superstition. The early Greeks believed that mother bears gave birth to a shapeless living mass which they then licked into the shape of a cub.

Summer concerts

Music lovers will find plenty to please their ear in Charlevoix County.

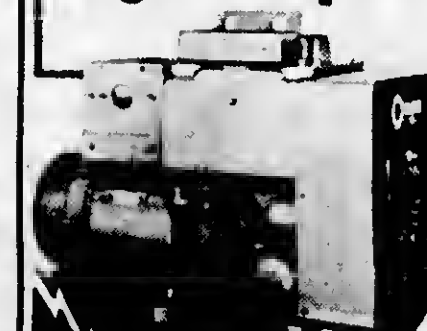

The Charlevoix City Band has scheduled concerts in the park every Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. in East Park. Composed of local musicians, summer visitors and college students home for the holidays, the band is directed by C. A. Odmark.

Boyer City hand concerts also are scheduled Wednesday evenings at 8 in Memorial Park. Dancing follows each concert.

BAY VIEW Assembly just north of Petoskey has concerts scheduled every Sunday evening, with other musical events planned on weekday evenings throughout the summer.

Of course, the National Music Camp is located only a short distance south of Traverse City, with many fine concerts planned for the summer.

Fishing great for trout, bass

The chance of hooking a trophy-size steelhead trout or even a coho salmon or lake trout continues to electrify Charlevoix area fishermen. But, as always, the old dependables are smallmouth bass, perch and pike.

Though steelhead fishing success in Lake Charlevoix fell off this spring and summer from last year's fast pace, more of the big rainbows are known to be in the lake now than before. Why they are not being caught is a fisherman's question which only a fisherman's guess can answer.

Lake trout, however, have come on strong in portions of Lake Charlevoix and nearby Lake Michigan areas. The lake trout, like the 'bows, are glutting themselves on alewives, so fish accordingly. Trolling slow, in front 30 to 80 feet of water, with lures that imitate a silver-colored bait fish seems to be the best producer.

Last fall a few "stray" mature coho were caught in Lake Charlevoix and feeder streams. This fall more are expected, along with some immature males from plantings made here this spring. There are also fleeting reports of schools of coho in Lake Michigan a few miles off Charlevoix. None of these reports have been pinned down; but some fishermen wouldn't be surprised to hit the jackpot before the summer is over.

The Lake Charlevoix shoreline is splattered with smallmouth hotspots. Among the most consistent producers are areas of the South Arm near Ironston.

The most proven method for taking the plucky smallmouths (and an occasional steelhead) is to troll just off the dropoff. Troll slow with Mepps spinner, Jig A Do, Rapala, small Flatfish, Dare-Devil, etc.

If it's the kids you want to please, try dunking worms off docks or near weeds for rock bass and perch. (One of 'em is apt to nail a four-pound bass, though. So be prepared to blush.)

If YOU hanker to try some of Walloon Lake's reknown angling you can rent a boat in the village, or launch your own at several public sites.

Walloon continues to produce some of the biggest bass in northern Lower Michigan. STREAM fishermen will find the trout fishing slow on the lower end of the Jordan river, guide Ted Kotowich reports. But, he says, some nice catches of browns are coming from the headwaters.

The short section of the Boyne River that is still open to the public is also reported to be producing fine trout fishing.

Golf courses lure players

Golfing is a favorite pastime among visitors and year-round residents alike. Here are some of the golf courses you might like to try:

Beaver Lodge Golf and Country Club, 9 holes, Beaver Island.

Miniature Golf Course, Harbor Hills, Beaver Island. Ye Nye Olde Hollies, Ironston Ferry Rd., Boyne City. Boyne Mountain Golf Course, 9 holes, Boyne Falls. Golf Driving Range, Walloon Lake.

Belvedere Golf Course, 18 holes, Charlevoix. Charlevoix Golf Club, 9 holes, Petoskey Avenue.

IF YOUR fancy runs more to worm dunking, there are plenty of small creeks around that harbor trout. You can try Stover, Deer, Monroe, the Bear out of Walloon Lake, and several that feed into the Jordan.

Worm dunkers also have a good time off the Pine River breakwaters and the railroad bridge, where they can sit and soak up the charm of the Charlevoix harbor and luxury yachts.

If you feel more confident fishing small lakes there's no shortage of them in the Charlevoix-Ellsworth area.

THERE IS still a handful of virtually unexploited small lakes known by only a few fishermen. Pike weighing in the 20 pound class and bass that top five pounds come from them.

But to reveal their whereabouts in print would be a violation of an angler's most sacred oath. So dig out a map or buy a native fisherman a drink and find them yourself.

Here's a list, though, of a few of the smaller lakes that are better known and guaranteed to have fish in them:

--Nowland Lake, for pike, bass, panfish.

--Six Mile Lake, for pike, bass and muskie.

--Ellsworth Lake, for pike, bass and panfish.

--Adams Lake for pike and panfish.

--Deer Lake for bass and pike.

IF YOU'RE looking for real fishing adventure journey to Beaver Island. Once in St. James you can rent a small boat to take you into the bays of Garden and Hog Islands.

These bays are among the nation's top-ranked smallmouth hotspots. However, there's no guarantee you'll find the bass in the shallows and hungry. When the fishing's good, it's fantastic. But when it's bad, it's as bad as anywhere else.

There is also reported to be some good fishing on some of the smaller inland lakes on Beaver Island. When you get to St. James ask around and see where they are hitting.

Library wrecking begins, cornerstone opening set

Demolition of the Carnegie Library, built in 1909, started this week. It is the first historically significant public building to meet this fate in recent memory.

The old library and adjoining home on State St. are being razed to make room for a $200,000 Charlevoix State Savings Bank building. The new bank is expected to be opened next summer.

In recognition of the historical value of the library, Savings Bank President Archie Livingston will open the cornerstone at a public ceremony 11 a.m. Wednesday (today). All interested persons are invited.

The cornerstone's contents will be turned over to Mrs. Harley Ocha, who after inventorying them will turn them over to the new library for preservation in its Michigan Room.

The library was given to the community in 1909 by the Carnegie Foundation. Until the present City Hall was opened in the 1920's, the basement of the building was used for city offices.

Still intact from the period when the city used the building is a large safe in a corner of the basement. The safe, with about 10-inch thick doors, must have been used for city money. It wouldn't be needed for the money from overdue books.

Contractor John Apfel of Belleaire started demolition of the library's interior Monday. After gutting the interior he will start on the three-brick thick exterior wall.

In one musty closet-type room in the basement are stacks of old newspapers. Most of them seem to be aged editions of the defunct Grand Rapids Herald, once a favorite daily newspaper with local readers.

An onlooker senses a strong feeling of loss as he watches the old woodwork, still shining and bright after 59 years, being torn from the walls and stairways. There wasn't a crack in the floor Monday before Apfel started his grisly work.

Books which were not selected for the shelves of the new library when it was opened last summer, litter the floor in the basement.

The school built the new library on Clinton St., a block from the Carnegie Library, at a cost of more than $120,000. Its design and location became controversial. Some local people felt the old building should have been repaired. Estimates were repairs would cost around $25,000. Demolition of the library and plans to construct the new bank raises doubts about the future of another old building—the Savings Bank's building on Bridge St.

Jerry Redeker, Savings Bank vice-president, said Monday no decision has been reached on the building's future.

Hospital cuts loss; occupancy climbs 3%

Charlevoix Hospital operated at a more than $6,000 loss and only 57% of capacity, but still had a good year in 1967-68, the board of trustees revealed last week.

It was disclosed at the annual meeting of the board of trustees in City Hall that the hospital took in $504,357 in operating revenue while it spent $513,041 during the last fiscal year. However, contributions of $20,000 more than covered the operating loss.

Anne Baumgartner, administrator, said the hospital served 1,944 patients during the fiscal year and had an average of 32 patients a day. This, she said, was 57% of capacity.

Fred Willis, chairman of the board of trustees, pointed out that during the previous fiscal year the hospital operated at a loss of $45,401 and only 54% of capacity.

The three-percent increase in usage and higher fees reduced the deficit, Willis said.

During the 1967-68 fiscal year, Miss Baumgartner said the hospital had an average of 54 employees. Payroll for the year was $324,114.

Four new trustees were elected. Julius Gilbert was reelected for another three year term.

Others elected for three year terms were Bill Pock of Ironton, replacing Ralph Price; D.D. Walker, replacing Hans DeYoung of Alwood; and Gerald Staablin, replacing Mrs. Kit Carson. Mrs. Carson, DeYoung and Price declined another term.

Bill Graul of East Jordan was elected to fill the remaining two years of the late Mel Saunders' term.

Dying trees slated for axe along city's shaded avenues

Several dozen of the city's most-prized maple and elm shade trees are going to the sawdust heap this winter.

City Street Supt. Leonard Dubey has been marking the trees destined for execution. It's an unpopular job, but one that has to be done, Dubey's boss City Supt. Jim Taylor insists.

The trees to be cut are dying, Taylor points out. If the city doesn't cut them high winds someday will blow them onto a pedestrian, car or even home.

Such things have been happening with disconcerting regularity. After even moderate windstorms broken limbs are seen on lawns and streets around town.

Taylor has been told by tree specialists that the trees are dying because they got too little water to sustain them as they grew larger. Most of the rain water drains down sidewalks and streets into sewers, instead of soaking into the ground to nourish the trees. Chemicals used for lawns and gardens around town also add to the problem. Trees on street corners seem to be the fastest to go, Taylor said. He suspects this is because they are surrounded more concrete than others.

Taylor said the city has no specific plans for replacing the dead trees. He added, though, that he is looking for young maples with which to replace.

Trees suitable for replanting should be about two inch in diameter at the trunk and must be growing in relatively open areas. Young trees growing in thick woods do not survive if moved into the bright sun in town, he said.

Voglers using Hampton Road

Controversial Hampton Rd. has been paved and completed and one homeowner is using it. City Councilmen learned Monday evening.

Third Ward Councilman Jerry Whitley reported the road to serve the new subdivision, Hampton Village, is being used by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Vogler. The Voglers connected their driveway to the road as soon as it was ready for use.

There have been no houses built in the subdivision yet, so the Voglers are the only ones using it regularly.

Mrs. Vogler is a leader in the citizens group which has started a court suit protesting paying a special assessment tax to partially cover the cost of the road.

CHICWAGO LODGE on the Ellsworth Rd. about five miles south of Charlevoix has stood empty and brooding on its hilltop site during most of its 39 years existence.

Softball playoff Friday

by DEANO DAVENPORT
A fine three game series starts at 8:30 p.m. Friday to determine the city softball championship. American Mold won the first round with a 6-0 record and Morwell came back to take the second round with an identical 6-0 record. Both teams have outstanding pitchers.

Mold's Nate Boss won the McBride Memorial Trophy last season and has long been a fan of Northern Michigan's outstanding pitchers.

The two teams have met four times already this season with Mold narrowly winning three contests. In the city tournament they met twice.

In their first meeting Ken Balch slammed a fourth inning lead off homer for a 1-0 win. Boss allowed but three hits, while Kloooster twirled a four hitter.

In the finals of that same early-season tournament, they again looked up in a great contest. Mold scored twice in the first inning on Ken Boss and Don Kowalski's base hits then hung on for a heart-stopping 2-1 win. Kloooster's homer was the only Morwell run. Kloooster allowed but three hits while Boss was touched for five.

In the first regular season game between the two teams Mold and Morwell battled for five scoreless innings before Ken Balch homered again to get Mold on the scoreboard. Nate Boss put the game on ice in the seventh when he singled home two insurance runs. Boss allowed three hits while Kloooster allowed six.

Berlage heads effort to control pollution

Attorney Don Berlage will head the Charlevoix area citizens' effort to maintain control over air pollution and other nuisances from Medusa's South Point Cement plant.

Rabach also told the committee he expects Medusa to have a new system in operation soon which will eliminate air pollution caused when dust collected in filters is emptied onto the ground. The company, he said, is reported preparing to put this very fine dust in a hole where it can be wet down to prevent it from blowing.

Several persons expressed dissatisfaction with the company agreement last week to plant slow-growing trees as a landscape buffer along the east side of South Point. Mrs. Polly Shadko was named chairman.

meeting of the citizens committee to work on air pollution and other problems caused by Medusa's South Point cement plant.

Committee members who make the tour will be able to ask questions, Berlage said.

Berlage told the committee he feels it should consider having a private lab conduct tests on, or immediately near, the plant site to determine if it is polluting the air. He pointed out the township air quality control code calls for such tests.

Medusa has offered to help pay for having private tests made.

He and the committee also asked Rabach to inform it if the township receives any requests from Medusa for building permits to expand its operation.

Rabach agreed and pointed out he understands the only building immediately contemplated will be construction of a shed to cover the raw materials (such as coal) which are now stored in the open where dust can blow off them.

Hilltop Inn's emptiness haunting

For nearly 40 years Sam Straw has been haunted by the emptiness in the 20 bedrooms across the road.

Forty years. That's nearly one-half of Sam Straw's 82 years.

The majestically unique Chichwago Lodge (more recently Hilltop Inn) was built 39 years ago and has been virtually empty except for a few years since.

Sam helped build the rambling building with its 20 bedrooms, massive stone fireplace, rustically warm hall and much-envied "lookout tower." The climb to the tower reveals a panoramic view sweeping from Little Traverse Bay to Horton Bay to the hills around Ellsworth.

Today visitors and more recent year-round residents, drive by the brooding building on the Ellsworth Rd. about five miles south of Charlevoix and speculate on its past. Some stop and peep around the once manicured yards that are now grown up in weeds.

They find the long porch, with its shuffleboard court and rattail outlook on the hills of southwest Charlevoix County, strangely intriguing. A look inside reveals the once inviting main hall, with its multi-hued stone fireplace.

They can only assume this was once a grand place. Yet it would be more accurate to report that many grand dreams have been inspired by the building.

Built in 1928 and 1929 for two women from Pontiac named Cole and Lenton, the Lodge never had a lightning chance. The Depression started before it could get into operation.

Straw explains Cole and Lenton expected to make it a sort of Private Country Club for golfers at the Belvedere Golf Course down the road toward Charlevoix.

The property, which includes 80 acres of farmland, hills and cedar townlands, was deeded to Warren Thompson by the government in 1971. In 1962 Thompson sold to Eli Hapner for $1,100. Nathan Hapner sold to Charles Cole in 1928.

In 1931 it was deeded back to the Charlevoix State Savings Bank.

Edith Blair bought the property in 1933. Miss Blair, Straw recalls, ran the lodge for a couple of years, offering lodgings and meals. But it was during the worst of the depression and it didn't work out.

The building sat empty from about 1935 or 1936 to 1944, when Miss Blair sold to F.A. Reinhardt. Though some effort was made to restore the building, it was not used, as far as Straw or anyone else seems to recall.

In 1946 Bernard C. Linden bought the property. More effort was put into maintaining it in sound condition. Still it sat empty across the road from Straw's West Twin Lake farm home.

Six or seven years ago Linden sold it to Tom Newton of Detroit on a land contract. Newton and his family, Straw says, lived in the awesomely large building for one summer. Then a couple of years later an auction was held. The plumbing and electrical fixtures were sold, along with other valuables.

Newton, or someone, abandoned an Edsel car beside the porch. It is almost overgrown with weeds. The car, itself a failure, almost seems symbolic of the building's past.

Charlevoix architect, builder and realtor Earl Young says the original builders were "too much ahead of their time." Having been involved in several of the real estate transactions with the property, Earl still thinks it has a future. Linden attempted to get a liquor license right after the war, Earl recalls. Had Marion Township agreed to the liquor license he thinks the building might have made it then.

Now there is a Strout really sign in front of the Chichwago Lodge. Tom Newton is trying to sell it.

Strout's salesman Don Anders is convinced the development of Charlevoix County as a year-round recreational playground opens new vistas for the lodge. For instance, he sees it as ideal for a big ski club. Maybe it would even strike someone's fancy for a snowmobile resort, with its hills and townlands lending themselves to cross country trails. With a, perhaps, more liberal attitude among Marion Township officials, a liquor license might now be available.

Anders concedes the building needs new plumbing, wiring, a heating system, paneling and insulation. But he doesn't think that will discourage a big city ski club looking for a relatively inexpensive club building or other far sighted resort developer.

Sam Straw and Mrs. Straw hope Anders and Young are right. They've lived on the shore of Twin Lake for 58 years. They would like to see their confidence in the dream across the road come true.

Morweld cinches title with 11-0 win over Bank

It's now official. Morweld Steel has won the second round title in the Junior League and will meet first round winner American Mid in a best two out of three series to determine the city champion.

The first game is scheduled for this Friday at 8:45 p.m. with the second contest set for Saturday. If a third game is needed it will be played on Monday. It should be a hard fought series. The two teams have met three times already and each contest was a real battle.

Morweld clinched the title with an impressive 11-0 win over County State Bank. The loss eliminated the Bank from any title aspirations and the win ended any hope the Air Force had of ending tied with Morweld for the crown. Ken Richardson's triple accounted for two second inning runs, and that was all Bob Klooster needed, although his home run highlighted a big six run fourth inning to seal it up. Larry Edwards and Chuck Pease picked up singles, the only hits Klooster allowed.

In other games during the week, Wilson's used four first inning runs to beat Lake County 5-3. Bill Chase had a home run to hi-light the outburst. Davenport's three hits paced the loser's attack.

The Air Force knocked out County State Bank by a 2-1 score. The Servicemen, with perhaps the best balanced team in the league, scored the winning run in the fifth on two errors then settled the contest away from the sixth on George Hirschman's home run and base hits by Jerry Lovell and Chuck Sampey. Dave Novotny homered for the losers while Larry Edwards and Gary Stutzman each collected two hits apiece for the Bank.

The Air Force poked away at Wilson's, scoring a run at a time for a 5-3 win. Sonny Wright and Chuck Wyatt led the hitting attack. Each getting two, Chuck Hobbs had two hits for the losers.

In the race for the batting crown, Bob Klooster finished with a fine .462 average with 13 hits in 29 times at bat. Gary Stutzman, with one game left, has a chance to win should he have a hot final game. The top hitters are as follows:

The Cardinals shot out the Braves 5-0 to stay in the title picture.

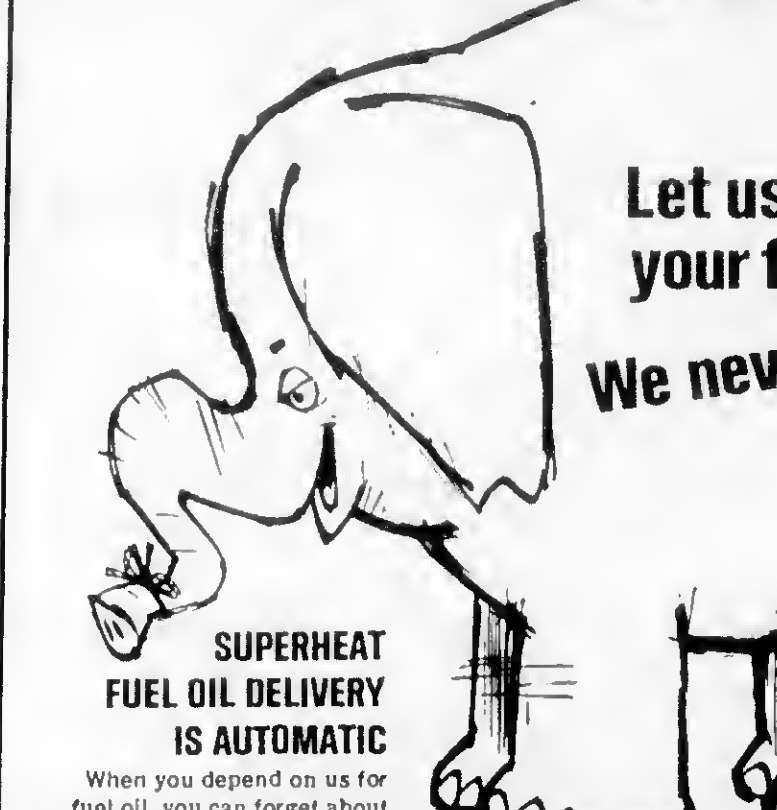

The Braves wanted little time with the Dodgers winning 10-0. Walks and base hits helped the boys in blue to the victory.

The Dodgers did themselves proud despite being edged by the Lions 3-2. They had gone all year without a victory, and they had a two out 2-0 win in their pocket when two errors allowed the winners to tie the game. The two teams battled on even terms for 12 long innings before the Lions' McClellan scored the winning run with a base hit.

DeYoungs kept their faint second round title hopes alive with a fine 1-0 win over Freedman's. The contest ended in a 2-2 tie and will be replayed, but fans viewing the struggle will long remember the fine pitching and outstanding plays.

DeYoungs are one of the youngest teams in the league, just having come up as a unit from the Peanut League last year. They had been beaten three times by an older more mature Novak's team. However, this time they were determined to land Novak's first loss of the season. They scored twice in the third on base hits by Dan Tallas, Larry Potter, and Bruce Meggison. Novak's battled back for their

The Braves looked sharp in blasting the previously unbeaten Astros 10-2. Paul Klooster led the winners attack with two hit pitching of Steve McClellan.

School bus rules studied

A tentative school bus policy setting rules for student behavior was presented to the Charlevoix Board of Education last week.

In addition to establishing items for which students would be responsible, the policy outlines procedure for barring students from buses if they violate the rules.

The school board will study the policy, which is an almost exact copy of the Alpena school board's bus policy.

Parents and students will be furnished copies of the policy when it is drafted.

The tentative policy calls for giving a student two warnings and the third time they violate barring them from riding the bus. They may also be suspended from school.

Bus drivers are given absolute authority for discipline on the bus, however, corporal punishment (spanking or in any way striking a child) is outlawed.

The policy calls for parents to read and sign the rules. Following are the 18 rules outlined for bus riders:

*Pupils are expected to conduct themselves properly.

Shut your seat and keep them out of the aisle.

*Do not leave bus without driver's consent, except at home or at school. Children must have a note signed by the parent in order to get off at any other stop.

Land boom in Antrim

American Central Corp. is reported launching the largest vacation land development project in area history.

The Lansing-based firm has begun development of nearly four sections of land in Star Township, Antrim County.

According to District Health Dept. records, American Central, under the name National Land Co., is building roads, a lodge building, ski run and swimming pool on the property.

"These days, it's quite incredible to us that the United States was founded as a protest against taxation."

Demo pick delegates

Charlevoix County Democrats last week elected four delegates to the party's state convention in Grand Rapids August 30-31.

The delegates were instructed to abide by the will rule, but were not committed to support specific resolutions or candidates.

Delegates are Mr. and Mrs. George LaBlanc and Howard Horton of Charlevoix and Pete Johnson of Boyne City. Alternates are Mrs. Horton, Robert Hoffman of Charlevoix, Carl Skornia of Boyne City and Alvin LaFreniere of Beaver Island.

THE CHURCH IS A WISDOM CENTER

Owls have long been linked with wisdom. It is doubtful, however, if the "wise old owl" possesses any more or less wisdom than many other species of birds. They, like all birds, do have a highly developed instinct which serves for sustenance and self preservation, but no proof has ever been shown that the owl has improved his lot down through the centuries.

Man, on the other hand, may acquire and improve in wisdom. As he gains in wisdom the improvement of his lot follows. There is a great fountain of wisdom available to him in his quest—the Church. In the first place the Church was a primary factor in providing institutions of learning. But the greatest service the Church offers is providing wisdom for spiritual development, the greatest wisdom of all—the science of right living in tune with the laws of God and man.

Nine nominated for city softball award

Several of Charlevoix's best softball players have been nominated by league officials to be considered for the Larry McBride Memorial Sportsmanship Award.

The award was named for the late Larry McBride who was killed in an auto accident last year.

The recipient is chosen because he best exemplifies good sportsmanship, and his conduct both on and off the field is held in high esteem by teammates, league officials and the community.

This year's winner will be chosen from the following nominees: Skip Duerr, County State Bank; Bob Klooster, Morwell; Bob Drenth, Morwell; Ken Baich, American Mold; Dave Smith, American Mold; Glen Mayhew, Wilsons; Perry Bennett, Wilsons; Chuck Sampley, USAF; Gail Sheldon, Medusa.

The winner will have his name engraved on the large trophy which will be on display during the year at one of the softball booster's store or place of business. Last year Nate Boss was named as the first winner of the McBride trophy. League umpires and officials vote on the winner.

New name on county's school district list

East Jordan and Boyne City school districts are kept. They are now the Twin Valley school district.

That's the name picked by school board appointed to run the consolidated school district. Apparently, Twin Valley stands for the Boyne River Valley and Jordan River Valley.

Voters decided July 23 to merge the two school districts. An interim board, selected by the Intermediate School Board, was named to run the merged district until a permanent board can be elected in September.

The interim board has declined that though it has eliminated the East Jordan school system and Boyne City school system both systems will operate this year. No attempt is being made this school-year to actually merge the education program of the two communities.

Though not officially stated, it appears that East Jordan High School will field separate athletic teams from the Boyne City High School.

For those who have not been able to keep up with the rapid changes in school education, there are now three school districts in Charlevoix County: Charlevoix Public Schools, Twin Valley Public Schools and Boyne Falls Public Schools.

Nobody wants to leave Charlevoix in mid-summer, so now is the time to read about all the places you hope to visit at some other time. Here are some arm-chair trips you can take while enjoying the northern Michigan sun and sand.

A Day Outside The City, by Robert Deardorff. This is a book for the serious traveler who has already seen the major cities of Europe. The author plans trips that you can take to less publicized places outside twenty major European cities.

New grid leagues set for first season competition

When the axe fell last fall on the old and powerful Northern Michigan Class C Conference (NMCC), more than 50 teams in the northern portion of the state were involved in a massive league changeover.

Since then three new leagues have been formed, and their official beginning will be in the next few weeks with the opening of the football season.

Last year the smaller schools decided to drop out of the NMCC in order to "preserve" their sports image. Grayling, East Jordan, Manclona, Harbor Springs, and Pellston used "turncoat" methods to get out of all conference ties with Charlevoix, Boyne City, and Gaylord.

The move was sudden, but not unexpected. For the three previous years, the "Big Three" had almost dominated conference championships.

The smaller schools called upon Kalkaska, Petoskey, St. Francis and Onaway to join forces with them, forming the new Northern Michigan League.

Gaylord, Boyne City, and Charlevoix Third try for millage

MANCLONA -- The school board here is asking voters for the third time this summer to approve an operating tax increase.

This week Manclona will vote on a 6.5-mill one-year property tax levy. Earlier this summer voters rejected a school board request for 8.5-mill tax increases.

had no where to turn except to their larger neighbors in the Huron Straits League. After much consultation the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference (MHSC) was formed.

Teams in the new league, are Charlevoix, Gaylord, Boyne City, Petoskey, Traverse City, Alpena, St. Ignace, Rogers City, Alpena Catholic, and Cheboygan.

GOP delegates

Charlevoix County Republicans last week selected delegates to the State GOP convention in Grand Rapids August 23-24.

Delegates will be Gordon Freedman, Oscar Stroud and Leo Bery of Charlevoix; Mrs. Art House of Boyne City and Mrs. Joseph Wilkins of East Jordan.

Alternates are Mrs. Abe VerWys of Charlevoix, Harvey Varum of Boyne City and Mrs. Jay Hite of East Jordan.

Dick Harrington on Navy cruiser

Seaman Richard D. Harrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.T. Harrington of Charlevoix, is serving aboard the heavy cruiser USS St. Paul off the coast of South Vietnam. The ship provided naval gunfire support to U.S. and Allied troops fighting near the DMZ.

E-J bids to keep clinic

EAST JORDAN — With the withdrawal of the District Health Dept.'s immunization clinic from East Jordan has set off a strong protest from some school officials.

Dr. Robert Libke, health department director, said the clinic was withdrawn due to lack of need and a community nurse working under his department's supervision.

Dr. Libke stated he would reconsider the matter if an increased need is shown and funds are provided for a community nurse for the East Jordan area.

Some school officials feel the clinic was withdrawn because school and community chest monies were allocated to the school's supervision instead of the District Health Dept's.

In the past the community nurses have been supervised by the health department's director of nursing, Mrs. Fran Hosper of Charlevoix. For the past two years community nurses in several areas of the district health department have been in a quiet rebellion over policy and supervision of the district office.

The main action for Charlevoix, again this year, is down the shoreline in the Frankfort area. Several local people made the rule Frankfort, either by water or pulling a boat trailer, last weekend.

However, Great Lakes Fishery Station Chief Myrl Keller has reports that there should be closer control to home. The big job is to find them.

The only confirmed report of coho in the area, Keller reports, is that of a salmon taken in commercial fishing nets near Beaver Island.

Last fall fishermen were caught off guard by hundreds of mature salmon who strayed into Lake Charlevoix and fed on stream. Because there are more salmon in Lake Michigan this year, fisheries experts suggest there should be more staying in Lake Charlevoix.

They may be here now, but if they are no one has found them, or whoever has is keeping quiet about it.

Toward late August or early September a small run of "jack" salmon (early maturing male) is definitely expected into Porter Creek (Keweenaw). Some 50,000 coho were planted in the creek this spring. The jacks should weigh two to five pounds.

Down off the Frankfort and Manistee area, the Conservation Dept. expects fishermen to catch three times as many coho as last year, when about 30,000 were caught.

The trip to Frankfort by boat is about 75 miles. Frankfort and Manistee are both reported to have more boat launching and docking facilities this year.

More thoughts on our bridge

IN ASKING the Coast Guard to limit and regulate opening of the Bridge St. bridge of floats frequently cited the possibility of an emergency vehicle being disastrously delayed by the bridge's being open.

Last week it happened. Perhaps not disastrously. But it did happen and it need never happen again.

The city's ambulance returning from the Depot beach area with injured water skier Davis Merwin had to wait several minutes while a sailboat and cruiser were in the bridge.

The new rules say the bridge will open only on the hour and half hour for pleasure boats.

However, it would be unduly harsh to lay all of the fault with the bridge tenders. The men who operate the bridge have not enforced the new rules to the letter for at least two good reasons: 1 -- Most incoming boatsmen do not know about the regulations and the sign in the outer channel is almost impossible to read, and 2 -- High winds sometimes make it hazardous for a boatman to hold his craft in the outer channel and no provisions have been made for tying boats up while they wait for the scheduled

By next summer bridge tenders will be expected to enforce the new rules, making exceptions only for severe weather and emergencies. Before then the State Highway Dept. must prepare and better place more easily read signs for boatsmen and make tie-up facilities available in the outer channel.

Drain Commissioner

HOW COME there are two people running for county Drain Commissioner when there is no such job? The Courier is frequently asked.

The answer is political power. That's right. There is political power in being your party's candidate for a job which does not exist.

It works this way. Any person who is in the ballot as his (or her) party's candidate for a county office is automatically a member of the party's County Executive Committee.

Thus, Fran Martin as Democratic candidate for Drain Commissioner gets a vote on the Democrats' Executive Committee and Jerry Uhrick is seated on the Republican Executive Committee.

It doesn't matter which one is elected because there is no office to go to for them. Charlevoix County simply does not have a Drain Commissioner, although state law places it on the ballot.

Waterfront Fair

THE 1968 Waterfront Fair, which viewed the prospectively with the Venetian Festival, must be classed as an unequalled success.

Chamber manager Wally Loder estimated between 8,000 and 10,000 visitors were in town to wander through East Park viewing the work of artists and craftsmen. We doubt many more persons came to town for the Venetian Festival.

Among the first people who might be called upon to contribute such ideas are those who have made the Waterfront Fair such a success. Mr. and Mrs. Edward McNamara, Mrs. Paul Olson, Mrs. Jack Rader, Mrs. Kit Carson, Mrs. Julius Gilbert, Mrs. Arthur Skelton, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Fran Martin, Jerry delo Silvern, and others whom we may have overlooked.

Perhaps the clincher is that

Thanks, Garden Club

BY FOCUSING attention on the efforts of Charlevoix home owners to make the community more attractive the Charlevoix Garden Club performs one of our most valuable but least heralded public services.

The club's award of a plaque every two weeks to the garden judged the finest in the city has certainly made many families realize their efforts are appreciated by fellow citizens. With equal certainty, this has inspired the winners and others to give at least a little more attention to their home's beautification.

It should also be noted that Garden Club members who accept responsibility for selecting winners are women willing to commit themselves to an olive project. More citizens are needed who willingly accept such an active and sensitive role in their community.

It has been suggested that perhaps the Garden Club should consider awarding permanent markers to families which are consistent winners and to such public institutions as the always beautifully kept Community Reformed Church.

Ellsworth surprise

Is Lanser grid history ending?

By GLEN SHEPPARD

ELLSWORTH-It seems unlikely at this point that Ellsworth will survive the football season. The future of the entire school system may hang in the balance.

The Lakers, which have traditionally fielded gridiron teams that belied the community's smallness, will be mighty lucky to even get on the field this season. Unless a minor miracle occurs in the next few weeks it appears unlikely the hometown folks will be able to cheer the hometown boys.

This, in Ellsworth, will be, and should be, a catastrophe. Year after year Ellsworth athletes have shown a spirit that could only be equalled by the enthusiasm almost the entire town showed by turning out to cheer them on.

All the ends aren't tied together yet, but just for starters the co-op program with Central Lake, offering band, counseling, advanced science and math, will not be offered this year.

With other area school districts offering the best teachers much as a thousand dollars a year more than Ellsworth—as well as much better conditions under which to teach—there is no chance of the less than 300-pupil district competing.

In sharp contrast to the Ellsworth board's curtailment of educational quality, only a short piece down the road Central Lake is making big gains.

Central Lake was also forced to join the new 11-man league. But Supt. Carl Bohlert reports the enrollment of football is nearly ready for full-size play and a junior varsity team is being added because more than 50 boys are expected to show up for grid practice.

Ward Schabalski, who coached the Central Lake squad last year, is still on the job with his new 11-man varsity assignment. Coming in to coach the Central Lake JV's is Tom Tupu, an assistant coach last year at Montague.

Bothwell has been steadily adding to the 600-student school's academic program. This year a qualified foreign language program will be implemented. It looks like full accreditation may soon be in the offing for Central Lake.

So it is ever more loosely held pieces fall apart at Ellsworth the community may logically look toward Central Lake to form a partnership.

Random notes on national issues and candidates:

The mail late last week was a timely reminder that Republicans have not come to the business of winning elections with public funds.

In the letterbox was a political brochure from Republican Congressman Phil Ruge, who is being challenged by former Democratic Congressman Ray Cleveland. The tiny little bit of political propaganda was addressed to local persons in the 11th Congressional District, or about 200,000 voters.

For Ruge's letter, it revealed that the majority of the ground war or ground war withdrawal of U.S. ground troops, 53.9% favor gradual withdrawal. Only 8.9% want to see the U.S. commit more manpower to the ground war. And only 30.2% want to see the bombing escalation.

This, obviously, leaves one big unasked question: How many of us favor an immediate end to America's involvement in the killing?

Maybe Ruge figured it would be in-difference to give up a chance to express our opinion on such an honest and obvious question.

The remainder of Ruge's political newsletter was a bunch of rambling ramblings. He seemed to be talking about a large omelette. Surely the politically astute thing in the North to get your picture taken with.

There was also a bit on one page stating that Ruge supports the concept of government stimulating economic development.

AGNEW'S GATEWAY

The unanimous condemnation of Spiro Agnew by big time pundits has the odor of four grapes.

As welcome as the return of the "Pretzel" to the White House, it is soon become boring to read columns after columns of bylined attacks on Nixon's running mate.

It seemed editors and commentators were trying to warn us about something too sinister to identify. John Knight and his hacks never told us what is wrong with Agnew. The only sin they exposed in that Agnew is not well known enough.

Not that Ruge is worse than the rest of the lot. It's a pretty fair bet that once honestly outspoken Ray Cleveland would have the guts to face the issues any more squarely than Ruge is. But Ray won't have a chance to use our money for the political malfeasance. That just might give Ruge the advantage he needs to win.

On the other side of the picture did you read what Bob Davis and his Republican cohorts who control the State House of Representatives did the other day?

They used what was described as an "ingenious scheme" to see up another pay raise, free cars, higher pensions, exemption from income taxes and $20,000 more in personal help for themselves.

Funny, we didn't get one of those sweetly worded press releases from Bob on what he had in mind. Seeing as how he overlooked telling us why he thinks he has earned all of these benefits from George LaRocca will inform us on the matter—SHEP.

Merger move waiting for audit report

Charlevoix Township action on proposals that it merge with the city is still held up pending a report from the city auditor, according to Clarence Rabach.

Mikulski to police clean air law

Dean Mikulski, District Health Dept. sanitarian, has been retained by Charlevoix Township to police the air pollution control ordinance.

Township Supervisor Clarence Rabach said the township board agreed last week to pay Mikulski a retainer to keep tabs on violations of the law.

The job was originally turned over to District Health Dept. director Dr. Robert Lipke, who appointed Mikulski as his authorized representative. In addition to his new duties, Mikulski is responsible for enforcement of environmental health laws in Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet and Oskosh counties. He has one assistant.

Rabach said the township decided to pay Mikulski a retainer and his actual expenses in hopes it will encourage him to take special interest in the air pollution law. Rabach did not disclose how much Mikulski is being paid.

Mikulski, Rabach said, will make periodic inspections of Medusa's South Point plant and report violations to the township board as well as make recommendations to the company.

The township board has a motion tabled that it ask for consultation with the city. The motion was made in June by Oscar Stroud, township trustee. It was tabled then.

Rabach, who is township supervisor, said city officials asked that no action be taken on the motion until the auditor's study is completed.

The auditor, Rabach explained, is attempting to determine how much more it would cost to operate such an enlarged city and whether the township's added of a Beautification subcommittee to see if anything can be done to encourage the company to take more interest in landscaping.

All but five persons at the meeting said they are bothered by noise from the plant. Noise from blasting in the quarry and operation of machinery was cited.

Greg Shadko, who was elected committee secretary, was named chairman of a Noise subcommittee.

Oscar Stroud reported he has been in contact with an outside attorney who specializes in public nuisance cases. The attorney, Stroud said, told him Medusa can be stopped from creating any type of nuisance.

The committee will meet again after this week's tour of the plant.

tax base would pay for the increased cost.

Township and city officials have met with the auditor, Rabach said. The finished report may be ready in September, he said.

Softball

In the fourth game between the two clubs, Morweld finally broke into the victory column with a 4-2 win. Because Nate was out of town, brother Herb assumed the pitching duties for the Mold, and it wasn't until the fifth that a couple of walks and Smith's single gave Morweld the lead. Payton and Boss, and then Smith and Koozer combined base hits in the next two innings to provide the margin for the winners. Kloozer allowed only two hits in the win.

Now the two teams meet head-on for the title. The first game is Friday with the second scheduled for Saturday.

Morweld has momentum. They have won the second round and have the pitching and big bat of Bob Kloozer going for them.

Mold has long been a team with pride. They have always been able to win the big games. Nate Boss may only need a run or two. The Mold bats have not been ringing the second round. They must come to life now or a new champ will reign as city softball king.

Lightning storms cause 4 area fires

Lightning storms Sunday and Monday night caused four fires in the Charlevoix area, two in the city and two in the country.

The most freakish occurred when lightning streaked into a bedroom at the Jessie Sellman home on Nowland Lake early Monday morning, travelling through an electric blanket, the bed springs and shattering a mirror on the wall. A woman in the bed was not injured.

None of the fires caused extensive damage.

Numerous trees in town and in the country were struck by lightning. Brief power failures were experienced in all sections of the area. Basements and streets flooded from the accompanying downpour.

Other fires were at the Belvedere Club cottage of Mr. Bakewell on Monday morning, at the Larry Edwards home on Mt. McSaba Ave. and at the Ray Canfield home in Ironton on Monday evening.

Charlevoix County has something for everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan. In the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula, it may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan -- Mt. Pisgah -- lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone.

An increasing number of surfers have found that the windswept Lake Michigan shore is an excellent place to practice their sport.

THE CITY of Charlevoix has a year-round population of 2,751, but the figure swells to several times that during the summer. Since before the turn of the century Charlevoix has been a mecca for vacationers from throughout the Midwest. Two private clubs -- the Belvedere Club and the Chicago Club -- are located on the shores of Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix within city limits. Each boasts dozens of elegant summer homes many of which have been in the same families for generations.

More recently, many excellent motels have erected in the city, offering excellent accommodations for the short-term vacationer and travelers. The city also has a number of fine restaurants which have become famous throughout the state.

CHARLEVOIX County also has become famous in recent years as center of Michigan's ski industry. Four superb ski areas are located in the central part of the county -- Boyne Mountain, Thunder Mountain, Walloon Hills and Barn Mountain (formerly Avalanche), all of which afford excellent skiing usually from late November through March. Many skiers also make Charlevoix County their headquarters even when skiing at Boyne Highlands or Nubs Nob, just north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

A-plant tours popular

CHARLEVOIX -- One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumers Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles northeast of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 82,900 of whom visited the site in 1966 alone.

Chuck England, director of the Information Center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-motion picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use.

The plant uses heat from uranium fuel packs to make steam, which in turn operates a gland turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Belaire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

BIG ROCK POINT NUCLEAR POWER PLANT

Recalling a World's Fair!

Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant silhouette frequently has reminded artists and photographers of the Tylon and Perisphere which identified the New York World's Fair of 1939... making that event's official symbol truly prophetic. For at Big Rock Point, nuclear energy -- a fantastic dream in 1939 -- is working every day to bring electric power to Consumers Power Company's customers throughout Michigan's Lower Peninsula. More than 500,000 tourists and area residents have visited the plant's Public Information Center since it opened in 1962. Only a short distance north of Charlevoix, the Information Center is open every day, 8 to 5, just for you!

Let's save the Jordan

The Jordan River has been called the least spoiled of Northern Lower Michigan's major trout streams, by Dr. Howard Tanner, father of Michigan's Coho and Chinook programs. Dr. Tanner was raised near the Jordan and spent what he considers some of the best days of his boyhood on the Jordan learning to use a fly rod.

His plea to "Save the Jordan" from the rapidly encroaching threat of "progress" has been taken up. Laws have been enacted and are now being enforced to halt development along the banks of the Jordan. The Conservation Dept. is attempting to buy all of the stream frontage it can to preserve the Jordan in its wilderness state. But the pressures are great.

Money and "profit" are the great destroyers. You can help. You must help if the Jordan is to be saved!

Respect this lone survivor of Michigan's once numerous unspoiled trout streams. Don't litter its banks. Don't cut trees or burn indiscriminately. Tell your friends you are an advocate of "Saving the Jordan." If you have a buck or two to spare send it to "Save the Jordan", Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. We'll see that it gets to the people who will use it to build a stronger campaign to "Save the Jordan."

If you haven't visited the Jordan yet there is plenty of reason to do so.

CHARLEVOIX is easily accessible by air. The city's new municipal airport welcomes flyers from all over the mid-west.

Petoskey stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone--the state stone of Michigan.

Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

stones may be used as paper-weights or door stops.

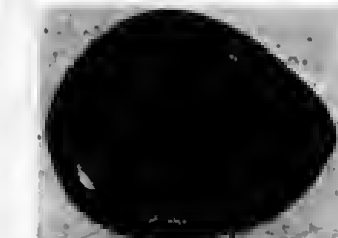

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful--if you have a sharp eye--many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bells Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

Legendary medieval atmosphere, an enormous complex of gardens, courtyards, fountains, Norman arches, Gothic arches, towers, battlements, porticulis, heraldic arms, and a great hall 250 feet long.

A recreational and educational experience for the whole family, with visions of King Arthur, Sir Lancelot and the Knights of the Round Table. The great medieval complexes, with living quarters, defense towers, shops, crafts, etc. Here is a glimpse back into times immemorial, to the crusades, to the great heritage of the western world.

Castle Van Haver is perhaps the closest approach to medieval European atmosphere in America.

'Spider' dune rides offer thrills aplenty

ATWOOD -- Sand dune rides--long a popular form of recreation in western Michigan--are available at this Antrim County community 12 miles south of Charlevoix.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider" Sand Dune Rides, offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian campground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

ESSENBERG says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour. "Kids simply refuse to get out, and teenagers start begging for money so they can ride again."

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Charlevoix is located 604 feet above sea level and has an average temperature of 45 degrees. The average summer temperature is 68.2 degrees, based on records of the past 22 years.

How about boat ride?

UNIONTON -- How about a short boat ride?

For 35 cents, you, your car and your family can take a five-minute boat ride across the mouth of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Ferry docks are located at Unionton, about seven miles south east of Charlevoix on M-66, and at the tip of the high, rolling peninsula which separates Lake Charlevoix from the South Arm.

THE FERRY runs from early spring until late December, or whenever ice conditions make the passage impossible.

The ferry ride makes a scenic expedition of the trip to or from East Jordan and Boyne City to Charlevoix.

Shuffleboard Courts Open

Shuffleboard fans will be able to practice their sport during their Charlevoix County vacation.

Courts are located in East Park and at the Lake Michigan Beach in Charlevoix, at East Jordan's Tourist Park and at Veteran's Memorial Park in Boyne City.

This summer, Charlevoix Senior Citizens are taking up the sport, with matches every Wednesday afternoon at East Park.

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation retreat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has cottage, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Croes parsonage. LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island has a rich history. Continued on page 9

Main Street Looks Better Every Day

There's a better look on Main Street these days--thanks in part to America's consumer-owned rural electric cooperatives.

You can see it in the spruced-up shops and stores, selling the latest products of American industry. And you can see it in the faces of the merchants and their customers, too, who have jobs and purchasing power provided by the new industry served by rural electric.

Last year alone rural electric helped establish 443 rural area development projects creating 31,000 new jobs. That makes a total for the last six years of 2,100 projects and 182,000 new jobs for rural people.

The increased prosperity makes it possible for the towns to build new schools and improve community facilities, to keep the streets in good repair, and provide the services every town needs.

Rural electric cooperatives, owned and operated by their member-consumers, are working with city officials and other local business groups in community programs to make Main Street--and all America--an even better place to live and work.

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our fascinating bridge

CHARLEVOIX—No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over the Pine River channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained and built by the State Highway Dept., the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders—Ted Bergmann, Elmer Gibson, Chick Gallagher—and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries US31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

The bridge is raised for vessels too high to pass under it between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. The bridge is required to open only every half hour—three minutes before and three minutes after the hour and half hour—for commercial and pleasure boats. A long blast and a short blast of a boat's horn are the signal to get the bridge raised. The bridge tender answers the boat's whistle and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals.

The first step in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches to warn traffic. Gates are lowered across the highway and sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the street surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However, the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

Increasing boat and highway traffic in recent years has led to longer and longer pileups on US31, particularly during the height of the summer season.

According to the highway department 103,071 cars had to wait for the bridge during the most recent 12 months survey period, costing motorists an estimated accumulated total of 286.2 days delay. Last year the bridge opened 3,685 times. Of these, 1,047 openings were in July and 691 in August. In an effort to eliminate unnecessary openings last year the bridge tenders were instructed by the State not to open the bridge if boats would have enough clearance by lowering their radio antennas.

More restrictive action was taken this year with the new regulation limiting "required bridge openings to every half hour. Traffic conditions on US31 allowing, the bridge tenders are attempting to be as liberal as possible in implementing these regulations for the convenience of boaters. Any boater in trouble coming in from Lake Michigan can have the bridge raised immediately by blowing a distress signal. However, persons who needlessly take advantage of this can be prosecuted.

Island has a mystery. Archeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "mound builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

IN THE LATE 1840's, a band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wisc., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictator ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were aghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 16, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers on route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing

BOYNE CITY'S Chamber of Commerce is located in this rustic log cabin. Beside the cabin is a billboard advertising Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival which draws thousands of persons in early May.

Boyne City offers much for summer, winter fun

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Murmons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Noble Industrial Counter Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills.

In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has several area parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on 11 1/2 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 80 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m., band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Indian past lives again at Greensky Hill church

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearby stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with things when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ottawa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area. Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

THE FIRST structure was a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 26 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud.

THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, in spite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Greensky's wife. The older graves, all facing East, are marked off with wooden fences and or rude wooden crosses.

Softball champions get crowns

Charlevoix this morning (Wednesday) has seven softball league champions.

By press time Tuesday afternoon every league, except the fastball loop, had crowned its champion.

The 1968 champions are Novaks in the Junior League; Doyne in the Dwyer League; Green Sox in the Kivans Youth League; Maroon Skirts in the Junior Miss League; the Cards in the Point League and the Dairy Queens in the Womens League.

Pictures of all winners appear on pages six and seven of this week's Courier.

Due to the upset Monday night by American Mohl as it stopped Morwell 3-1, the Fastball League play-off had to be played Tuesday night, after the Courier went to press.

Mohl and Morwell went into the playoffs after Mohl won the loop's first round title and Morwell came back to win the second round without a single loss.

In the first game of the playoff series Friday, Morwell beat Mohl 2-0 as Bob Klooster homered and then hurled the Ellsworth squad to victory.

In Monday's contest Mohl turned the tables as it banged out nine hits and went on to win 3-1.

Teacher strike feared as fact finder called

With school due to open in less than a week, contract talks with Charlevoix teachers are in what is generally considered a showdown stage.

The school board has asked for a state "fact-finding" study by the Labor Mediation Board.

Fact-finding means a state labor mediation specialist will appraise the facts both sides agree on and come up with a settlement recommendation based on his conclusions from the facts. Neither side is obligated to accept the fact-finder's recommendation.

The seriousness of the contract stalemate stems from the realization on both sides that fact-finding is often the last step before a strike. If fact-finding fails to produce a settlement, labor negotiations frequently break-down and a strike is called.

Wayne Richard (Dick) Smith, the attorney representing the school board in the teacher contract talks, said fact-finding may be "the last step to avoid a strike."

Leonard Staley, chief negotiator for the teachers, said he would not anticipate a strike if fact-finding fails. (The teachers call a strike "withholding services.")

Both Staley and Smith said there has been talk of a possible strike. And Staley said he cannot guarantee teachers will not withhold services.

Staley says he is quite confident something will come of fact-finding. "We are not that far apart," he explained. "We are trying to do everything we can to get this settled," he added.

If fact-finding fails, Staley said, the teachers can return to negotiating with the school board.

The teachers, Staley explained, "consider ourselves a cooperative group with the board whose objective in negotiations is to improve the education offered."

Salaries, he added, are a major factor in the quality of education because they can attract good teachers and reduce the loss of experienced teachers. The loss of more than a dozen teachers this year indicates more money is necessary to hold experienced personnel, Staley said.

The board has scheduled classes to open September 3 this year, compared to September 11 last year. The early opening is aimed at an early closing in June 20 contractors can complete renovation of the elementary school before the 1969-70 school years begin.

The school board stands firm on its latest salary offer, contending there simply is no more money in the budget.

Teachers, however, reject this argument, contending the school board should ask taxpayers for higher property taxes. They point out all other area districts levy nearly twice as much for operation as the 6.5 mills Charlevoix voters approved this summer.

If the school board were to ask for another election to increase millage it is doubtful it could be voted on in time to levy the added tax for 1969.

Teachers are also armed with the fact that Charlevoix this year is expected to be spending approximately $20 less per student on education than some other area districts.

There is also reported to be dissatisfaction among teachers over the board's

FHA mortgages available here

Federal Housing Administration low-downpayment, long-term home mortgages are now available in the Charlevoix area, according to Irving Drost of Colwell and Company Realtors.

Colwell has arranged through a mortgage company to make the FHA mortgages available to Charlevoix families, Drost said. The FHA financing was arranged by Colwell president Ed Colwell of Potosky.

This means, Drost explained, that homes can be purchased for as little as $450 down and paid for over 30 years. This, he said, applies to both new and used homes.

Colwell pointed out this gives young families with a steady income a chance to invest in a home without paying years of rent without obtaining any equity until they can save enough for a one-third down-payment.

It also means, he feels, that young families who would like to go to Charlevoix and can find jobs here will be more inclined to buy a home because they can purchase a home on the same terms available to them in domestic areas.

Community Chest leaders

Charlevoix's 1968 Community Chest division chairmen have been selected by campaign co-chairmen Maurice J. Foster and Larry LaGrow.

Clem Wagner, Medusa Portland Cement Co.'s South Point plant manager, will be industrial division chairman. Jerry Redeker, State Savings Bank vice president, is commercial division chairman.

Attorney Robert L. Hoffman heads the professional division.

Mrs. James Alger is residential division chairman. Fran Martin is outlining across chairman. Mrs. Don Anders heads up the organizations division.

Mrs. James Driggett has already started work in the summer business division.

spending about $20,000 for a coach-type school bus for the athletic teams. Some teachers feel this money should have gone into salaries and citizen donations should have paid the nearly $13,000 more than a regular bus.

Another major issue is the board's hiring of an attorney to bargain with teachers. Many teachers have openly expressed resentment over this move.

The money Smith will be paid, perhaps as much as $5,000 or $7,000, could better be used for salaries, teachers contend.

The school board, however, hired Smith because it did not feel its members had the time to become experts in labor law and negotiations. Without this expertise board members felt they could not adequately represent the public's interest.

Teachers, board members pointed out, are coaches, trained and advised by their union (Michigan Education Association), which has expert legal counsel.

There is some suspicion that the board's use of legal counsel may be at the root of the stalemate. The only other northern school reported going into fact-finding is Gaylord, which is also the only other district where the board has hired an attorney to lead its contract talks.

Library was city's pride

59-year-old box reveals

"They were all my good friends," Archie Livingston, Charlevoix banker for the past 55 years, said.

His voice wandered off as he read the names of Charlevoix's 1909 city and county officials.

Mrs. Harley Ochs, wife of the late pioneer pharmacist, nodded silently again and again as she recognized the names. Her memory, like Archie's, was preoccupied as it searched the sweet recesses of nostalgia.

Briefly the dozen or so persons around them on the porch of the Carnegie Library were forgotten by Mrs. Ochs and Livingston.

Few, if any, of the spectators had known the oldtimers. They were on hand due to curiosity and a desire to participate in a small way in a small bit of history.

The event was the opening of a 12x6x4 inch copper box which had been buried in the library cornerstone for 59 years.

At the 11 a.m. Wednesday opening hour, workers who were to remove the heavy concrete cornerstone began speculating on whether there was a box of historical documents in the cornerstone. Some workers were nude.

When the moment arrived, a flash rain shower drove the key participants in the ceremony onto the tiny library porch. A few of the more hearty spectators scorned the porch's protection to watch three workmen with crowbars pry the cornerstone out of the wall.

Attending a recent Community Chest campaign training workshop at Hildene Valley in Gaylord were Maurice Foster, Clem Wagner, Mrs. Charles Berg, Mrs. Don Anders and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duerr.

The first item was a September 5, 1909 copy of the Charlevoix Courier. The front page of the eight page paper was devoted almost entirely to farming. One headline announced, "Agriculture our greatest industry growing fast."

After Mrs. Ochs and Livingston scanned through the ads—shoes were selling from $1.50 to $3.25—and the scant amount of local news, Livingston dipped into the box again. This time it produced a printed program of the Sept. 20, 1909, cornerstone laying ceremony.

Ellsworth parents pick CHS

Approval was given by the school board Monday night for four Ellsworth students to attend Charlevoix schools this year.

Supt. Rex Milligan told the board he has been asked to enroll three students from Ellsworth who did not attend Charlevoix schools on a tuition basis last year.

The new students are two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kaynor and Terry Elzinga, a sophomore, son of Postmaster and Mrs. Mary Elzinga of Ellsworth. One Kaynor daughter will be in the 10th grade. The other is in sixth grade.

Dan Wieland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wieland, will be a senior at Charlevoix this year. Dan attended Charlevoix High School last year.

Also continuing to attend Charlevoix will be Mary Lynn Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Barnes of Eastport. She will be a junior this year.

The board Monday also decided to require all athletes to buy a minimal accident insurance. The insurance will cost $2.50 and will cover every sport but tackle football.

The $2.50 insurance package will be made available to all students on a voluntary basis.

Kusma Motors' low bid on a 1969 Pontiac station wagon was accepted. Kusma's bid was $2,950. The next lowest was Erber Auto on a Galaxie 500 wagon for $2,990.87.

High school principal Ray Carr announced that only students in cooperative education will be released from school year to go to jobs.

The board agreed with a health department recommendation that a pop machine not be installed in the cafeteria. Mrs. Fran Hooper pointed out the health department feels such a machine would discourage drinking milk.

Students have been requesting the pop machine for three years.

In other action the board adopted the bus policy which was recommended earlier.

A student code was also adopted. The four-page code covers every facet of student responsibility from attendance to dress.

This year's campaign goal, the highest in history, is $16,512.

MRS. LARRY (Betty) McBride awards the McBride Memorial Trophy to Bob Klooster at a ceremony on the city softball field Monday evening. Klooster was the unanimous choice of league officials and umpires. The trophy is awarded for sportsmanship and leadership. Klooster, long recognized as an outstanding pitcher and slugger, this year lead Morwell to the second round title and into the city playoffs. The trophy is named after Mrs. McBride's late husband, who was killed in an automobile accident. Nate Boss won the trophy last year, the first time it was presented.

Pilots demand change in city airport rules

A long simmering conflict between amateur flying buffs and Charlevoix airport manager Joe McPhillips has erupted into the open.

City Council is snared in the middle of the two warring factions over use of the airport. Taxpayers have an estimated $230,000 invested in the airport.

Amateur and semi-professional fliers charge McPhillips is using his non-salaried position at the airport to keep out competition and control facilities for his personal and commercial convenience.

McPhillips has operated his charter and instruction flying business at the airport for 23 years.

His supporters point out he has provided around-the-clock operation of the airport during this period for no pay. Had it not been for McPhillips' volunteer efforts in promoting and running the airport, they contend Charlevoix would not attract tourists and businessmen who use the airport.

Only now that the airport has been modernized are others taking an interest, these persons point out.

Joe Barnes, president of Lexitall, last week surprised the City Council by applying for permission to operate a full-service commercial aviation business at the airport.

According to Barnes' application he wants to provide charter flights, pilot lessons, aircraft repairs, hangars and new plane sales. McPhillips does not offer repairs or airplane sales.

City Council said it will take no action on the Barnes proposal until it can draft regulations governing commercial and recreational use of the airport. The only regulations now in effect are state and federal and those unofficially made by McPhillips.

The city started writing regulations

BUILT TO LAST forever, Charlevoix's Carnegie Library was no match for this huge ball's smashing power as it started pounding the three-brick-thick walls down

Tuesday morning. The library and former Bill Carey home next door will be the site of the new Charlevoix State Savings Bank building.

NOVAKS
NOVAKS POSTED a perfect 12-0 season record on the way to winning the junior league championship. They finished 6-0 in each round. They defeated Freedmans and DeYoungs, their nearest rivals, during the week to wrap up the crown. Freedmans played a strong game but fell 2-1. Two errors accounted for both runs. Stewart Coleman batted two hits for the winners while White had two for the losers.

Against DeYoung it was much easier as the winners scored in all but two innings for a 13-2 win. Kraag Lieberman led the attack with two hits while teammate Bob Crain limited the losers to just three hits. Final Standings for Junior League: Novaks Ins., 6-0; DeYoungs Auto, 4-2; Freedmans, 1-5, and Electra, 1-5.

KRAAG LIEBERMAN receives the Junior League softball batting trophy from Deano Davenport. Lieberman edged his teammate Jim Warner for the crown, with a .444 average, compared to Warner's .424. Lieberman had 16 hits for 36 times at bat to Warner's 14 safeties for 33 times at bat. Both played for Novaks. Other top hitters were Stewart Coleman, Novaks; Tim Dean and Clay Jones, both of Electra.

GARY STUTZMAN of County State Bank takes home the fastball batting crown from Deano Davenport. Stutzman ended the season with a .478 average with 18 hits in 38 times at bat. Close behind was Steve Faoulak of Lake Construction. Other top batters were Bob Klooster, Don Kowbell, Barney Smith, Bill Chase, Jack Wyatt and George Hutchinson.

MAROON SOX
THE JUNIOR Miss softball league for girls 10-14 years of age finished in exciting fashion with the Maroon Sox winning their final game to give them the title. The three other teams finished with identical 3-3 records, all tied for second place. Standings: Maroon, 4-2; Red, 3-3; White, 3-3, and Black, 3-3.

Cards cop Peanut crown

The Cardinals came from way back in the pack to cop their fourth straight Peanut League championship.

In a flurry of a finish the Cards won the second round title in a playoff, then went on to beat the Lions, winner of the first round, in the championship game. The Cards first defeated the Astros 6-4 to tie the Braves for the second round. Three runs in the seventh inning did the trick.

In the Brave game they jumped out to a 5-1 lead then had to fight off the Braves to post a narrow 6-5 win. Chris Hillman scored the winning run in a cloud of dust at home plate in the bottom of the seventh inning. Skip Skippergosh and Hillman shared hitting honors for the winners.

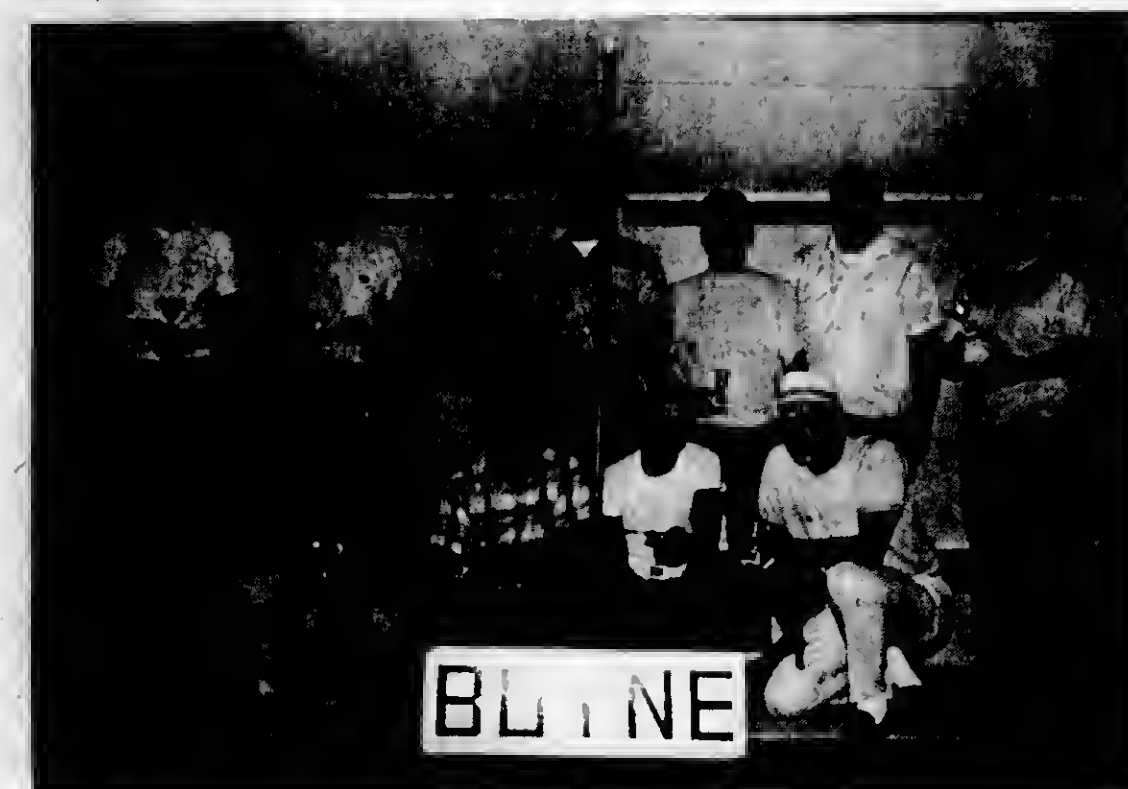

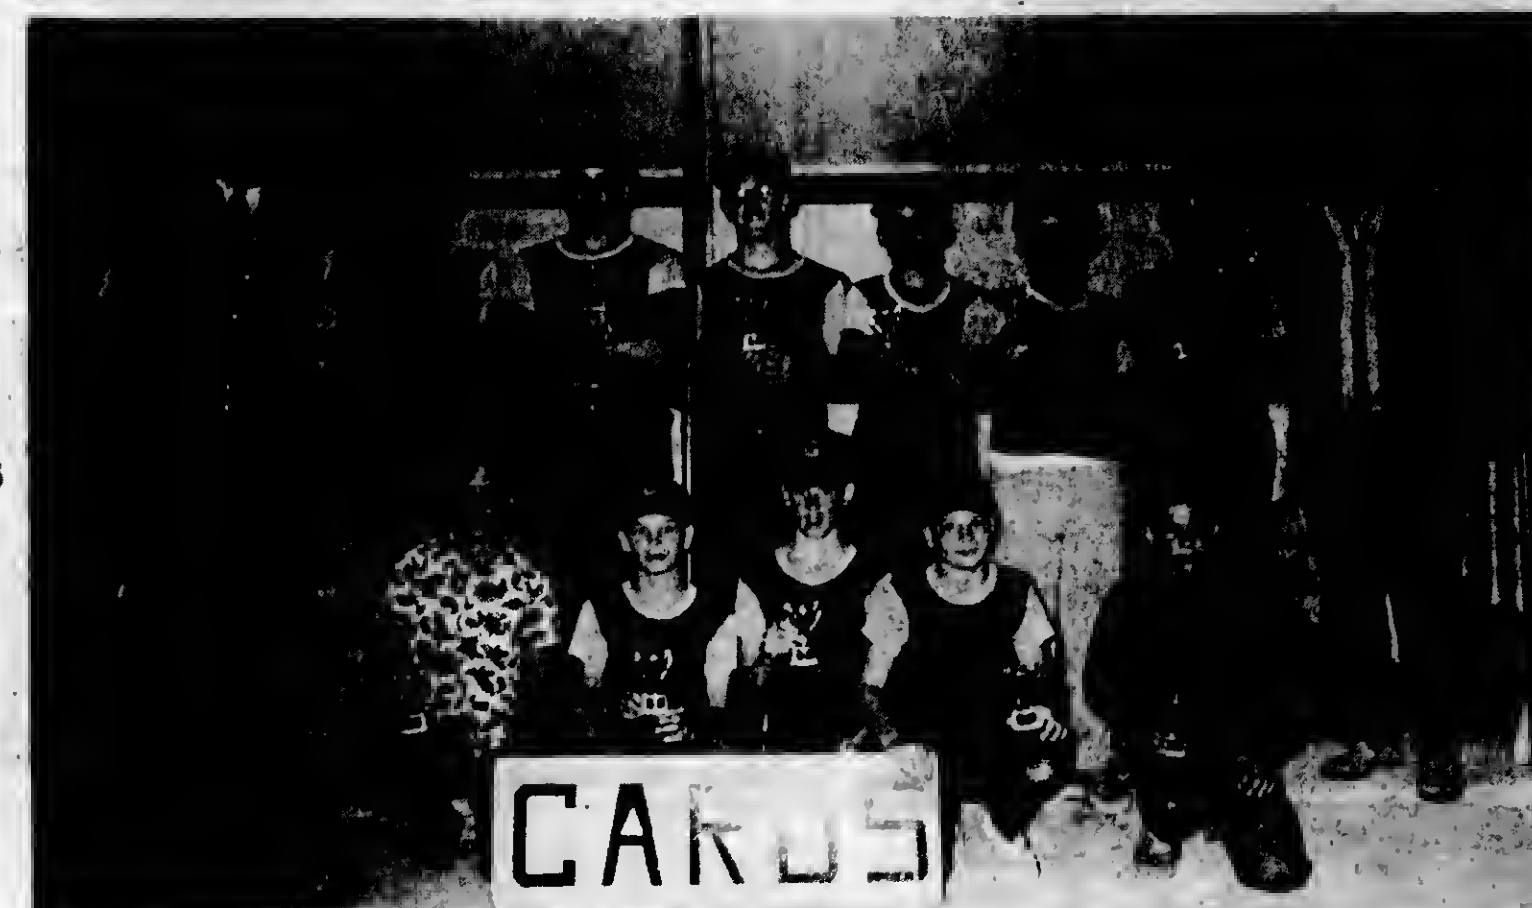

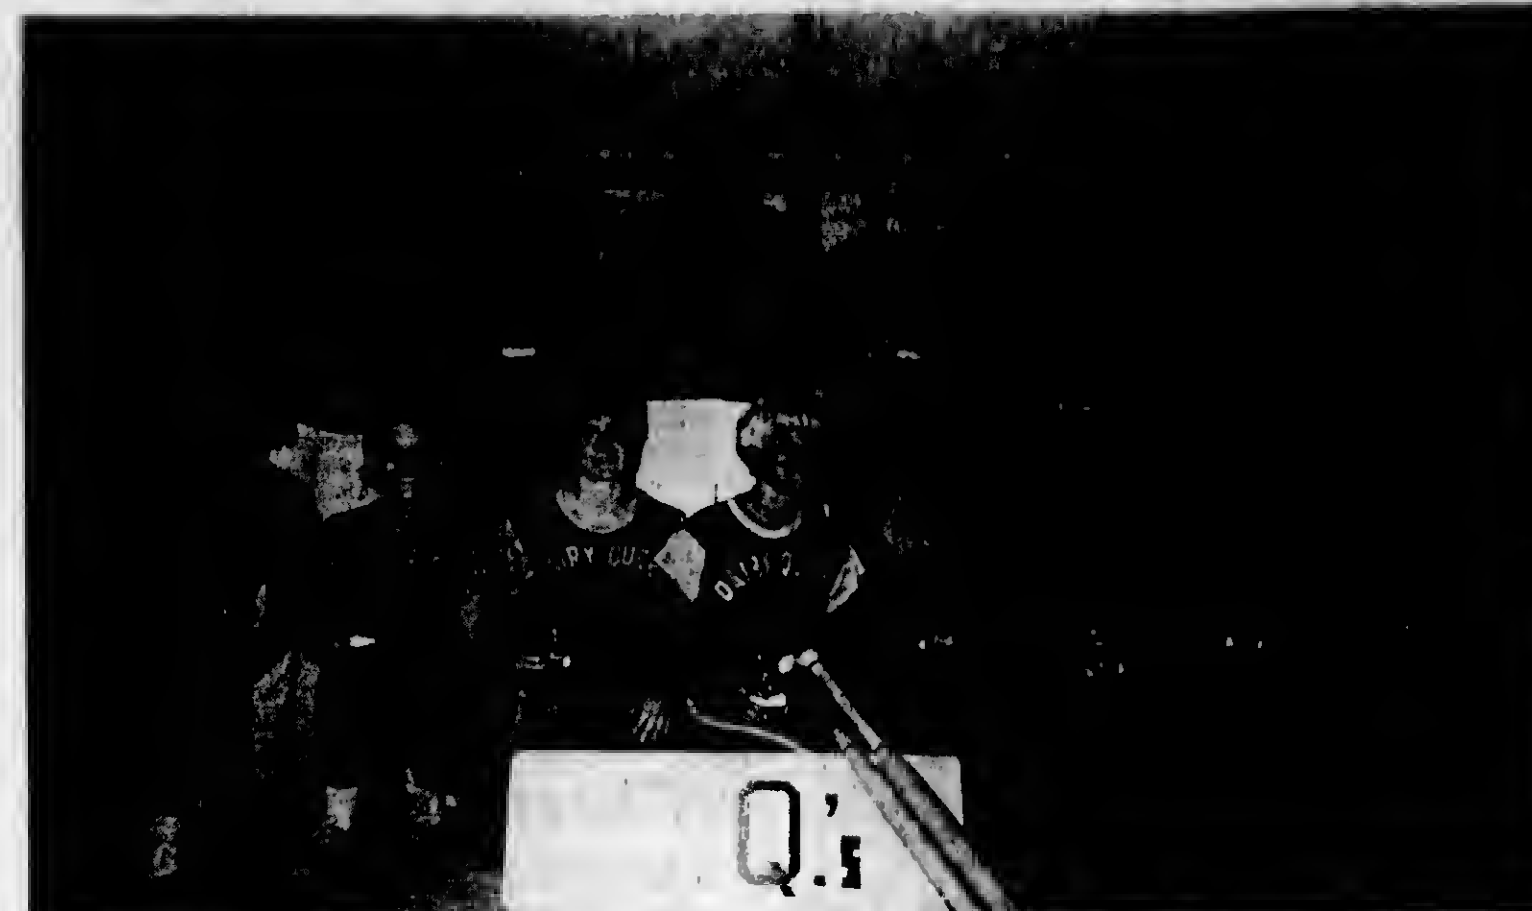

The title was the fourth straight chalked up by the Cards under the able management of Max Novak and Eldon Poller.

HOWARD'S OILERS of Boyne copped both rounds of the Bloopers League to finish 10-0 for the season. The final night they defeated the Medicine Chest twice to win the title. In the first contest, a make-up from the first round, they used five runs in the fifth inning to break the game wide open. Dick Erber and Merl Karlskin each collected two hits. Dave Fowler had two for the losers. The second contest was a thriller with the Champs posting a narrow 3-2 win. Merl Karlskin again provided the spark with a two run homer in the third inning.

In other games Freedmans and the USCG split a double-header. Freedmans won the first 9-8, which was the completion of their first round game which was rained out and tied 8-8 earlier in the season. The second contest was won by the Servicemen 5-4 with Browe and Konjura contributing two hits apiece.

Novaks ended on a happy note, shutting out American Mold 11-0. Jack Mol, Bill Lusk, and Bill Blissett each batted out two hits for the winners. Guy Smith had two in a losing cause.

Final Bloopers Standings: Boyne City, 5-0; Med. Chest, 4-1; Novaks, 2-3; Am. Mold, 2-3; Freedmans, 1-4, and USCG, 1-4.

AN EFFECTIVE PRESCRIPTION

When certain drugs, herbs or other materials are placed together in a container, the fact that they are together does not make of them a remedy or something that has functional power. But when placed in the mortar by the pharmacist and pounded with the pestle until they become a single powder or unit they are then on their way to becoming a compound possessing certain medical powers.

As with the drugs, people placed in a group do not by that act become a church. If one joins a church, the mere act of joining does not differ much from joining a lodge or club. To receive the full aid a church can give one should become a part of it, as a hand, leg or eye is a part of the body. For the Church is such a body and to realize the fullest benefits from affiliation and attendance it is essential to become a "hand, leg or eye" of that church. It is then that it becomes a great functioning powerhouse in any man or woman's life.

Sixth graders to rotate between four classrooms

Charlevoix sixth graders will be pioneering an experiment in local education this year, according to principal Glenn Snider.

Sixth grade classes this year will be broken into four 90 minutes sections. The four classrooms of sixth graders will move between the four temporary classrooms next to the high school every 90 minutes.

In one mobile unit Peter Spieles will teach science and health. Math and spelling will be taught in another by Condit Drury. Vincent Chew will teach reading and English in another unit and Gary Shanley will teach history, geography and art in another.

Each classroom, Snider explained, will be set up with visual aids, displays and other instructional material for the specific subjects to be taught.

Pre-WWI Community leaders recalled

The opening of the Charlevoix Historical Society's new exhibit, "Pre-WWI Community Leaders," is being held in the spotlight for the first time in nearly 100 years.

For instance, Oscar E. Wilbur was mayor in 1909. H.L. Edgins was president of the school board. School superintendent was L.M. O'Neil.

All of these names, and many more of men who were leaders throughout the community and county, were preserved in the little copper box in the corner-stone.

Included were the names of all the teachers of Charlevoix public schools in 1909. There were 20 teachers in all the grades, only two were assigned to the high school, then called the Michigan Building.

Chief Clerk Judge was Frederick W. Mayne of Charlevoix. Hugh Mayne has been Charlevoix City Clerk now for a decade or so.

United S. Payton was county clerk. Sheriff was Frank McWain.

Charlevoix Township Supervisor was William H. Cook. Frank C. Burnett of Bay Shore was supervisor of Hayes Township. Supervisor of Marion was James H. Adams. Norwood Supervisor was John H. Dubeau.

On Beaver Island two William Galsdislike for the fly-in. He feels club members take advantage of the public by using city property to raise funds for their personal recreation flying.

It appears that this year's fly-in may have been blocked. City officials have told the club they must donate all profits to charity if they hold another fly-in. The flying club does not qualify as a charity.

Most of the critics of McPhillips' operation of the airport claim they do not want to see him ousted as airport manager or lose his services.

McPhillips, they contend, cannot handle the commercial business available. For instance, they say it is nearly impossible to get a charter flight from McPhillips to Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and other distant points. Many people would like to take pilot lessons who cannot work themselves into McPhillips' schedule, they add.

It is also felt by some that more planes would be based in Charlevoix if hangars, repairs and sales were available.

All of this alleged commercial potential would bring added income into the city treasury, thus helping to pay the money taxpayers have spent on the airport.

McPhillips does not believe there is any appreciable commercial business available that he is not satisfactorily serving.

He points out the community could lose its only fulltime commercial flying service if parttime commercial operations are allowed to undercut his business.

The copper box, which had protected these documents so faithfully, had this inscription crudely scratched into the side of the box and, "Presented by M.G. Stockman."

Items in the box will be turned over to the new public library by Mrs. Ochs. It is expected they will be preserved in the Michigan Room for all citizens to see.

By the end of this month the Carnegie Library, which cost $12,000 -- property and all -- in 1909 is expected to be no more than a pile of rubble.

The site is being cleared for the Savings Bank, which paid the school board $7,000 for it, by John Apple of Belleaire for a $200,000 bank building.

After the last item in the box had been examined, Livingston noted that the Carnegie Library had served as a community landmark for nearly 60 years.

The new bank building, he said, will also be a landmark. He added that he hopes it will serve the community at least as long and as well.

Other documents revealed that the community had raised $2,000 to buy the library site (which had a house on it) at the corner of Clinton and State St.

New look needed at city airport

THE BITTER clash between personal attitudes and issues which has broken into the open at Charlevoix's municipal airport was inevitable. It has been coming for several years.

Unfortunately, for editorial writers, taxpayers and city councilmen, everyone involved is partially wrong and partially right, making the issues hard to isolate and clarify.

Chief responsibility for the controversy must rest with the City Council. It is the council's job to operate the airport in the best interest of the public, which has an estimated $230,000 invested in it. Thus, the blame for any problems at the airport is the council's.

However, if the council erred it was in trying to operate and develop one of the state's finest smalltown airports as economically as possible.

Rather than hire someone to manage the airport, the city has bartered for the services of Joe McPhillips and his dedicated family. In lieu of salary McPhillips receives all proceeds from gas sales, airplane tie-downs, gets reduced rates on city-owned hangar space and free office space for his commercial aviation service.

Consequently, McPhillips is the only person who knows how much he is making on his job as airport manager. He turns in no reports to the city on how much gas is sold, how much he makes on tie-downs, etc.

Councilmen are inclined to suspect they are getting by cheap at the airport. Yet the fact is they have no idea how much income they are missing out on. Rather distressing, the council does not even know how much the airport is used, or if the city is getting its money's worth. If the city is getting its money's worth, it is actually warranted.

No other segment of the city's business is run in this clumsy fashion. Other departments have chiefs who are paid a salary and given a budget and rules to operate under. The city keeps admirable records on everything it sells to how many people play golf on the municipal course. Everything, that is, except the airport.

Obviously, the city should hire and pay a qualified airport manager and give him a budget and definite rules to operate with. It seems most logical and fair that McPhillips should get first consideration for the job... if he is willing to do things the way airport users and the city wants them done.

The airport is no one man's, or one group's, personal province. It is understandable that McPhillips and his family feel a kind of priority interest in the airport. It is in large measure due to their dedication and sacrifice that the airport is what it is.

For his efforts over the years McPhillips has been rewarded with a virtual monopoly on Beaver Island traffic. Because of Beaver Island Charlevoix is one of the most "natural" areas in the state for a small commercial aviation business. Recognizing McPhillips' service and the growing importance of aviation the people of Charlevoix have provided one of the finest airports of its type in the state.

Under our laws, our sense of justice and our faith in the competitive system, if the free enterprise system is to work, we cannot condone giving anyone a government regulated business advantage.

Anyone who meets state and federal licensing qualifications should have the right to freely compete at the airport with McPhillips. If there is business McPhillips is not satisfying he will either have to expand or improve his services to satisfy it or see it taken from him by someone else. It can be no other way.

Perhaps, as many critics contend, the demand for aviation services has outgrown those McPhillips now offers. We hear many people complain about not being able to get charter flights that would be available to them from Harbor Springs. We know others who claim they have been forced to travel to Traverse City or Harbor Springs for flying lessons because they couldn't work a schedule out with McPhillips.

In line with opening the airport to all, ground rules should be established by the city so all have equal opportunity and responsibility. These rules, which are now being considered by the council, should require all commercial pilots to register their planes with the city, to have their planes inspected by the terminal, hangars, runways and other facilities.

These rates should be high enough so that the city, in effect, isn't subsidizing someone's business by providing them with facilities at cut-rate prices.

City councilmen have frequently admitted they are not experts on airport and flying matters. They certainly cannot be faulted for this. However, it does suggest that the council would be well advised to appoint an airport advisory committee, made up of pilots representing all spectrums of interest at the airport.

Charlevoix's airport is one of the community's largest and proudest investments. It is gaining in use. This year several private jets have landed here.

The airport is no longer a couple of rough sand runways and a poorly heated shack on the south side of town. It is time we quit running it like it is.

Charlevoix added to mail route in 1866

Charlevoix's heritage

OPENING OF PINE RIVER

Early in 1867 a mail route was established, also a postoffice, at Charlevoix. Philo Beers was postmaster. Nelson Ainslie had the contract for carrying the mail, and moved his family here in the spring of 1867. The village had been platted by Mr. Dixon in 1866.

Mrs. Beers kept the postoffice at his house which stood just south of the river, and was postmaster until his death, which occurred April 3, 1872. Richard Cooper, who was deputy postmaster, moved the office to the Fountain City House where it was kept for some time.

The firm of A. Fox & Co. had a contract with a firm in Buffalo to build a tug for use on Pine Lake. In towing their wood from the different points around the lake to the dock, early in the spring of 1867 they began clearing out the river, and the construction of a railroad from their woodyard on the river to their dock. They had four scows built at Northport for their tug trade. Some time in June, the tug, named "The Beaver," was towed to Charlevoix, and after considerable trouble was got into Pine Lake, where the waters were then parted for the first time by steam craft.

In the spring of 1867, Richard Cooper came from Little Traverse and kept the boarding-house for A. Fox & Co. He afterward purchased the property and built the present Fountain City House.

In the fall of 1867 Messrs. Redington, Nelson & Co. came here to look for a location for a saw-mill. There was some talk of buying the dock property of A. Fox & Co., but they did not agree upon the terms, and they then made a contract with a mill site. They went away, and in the following spring their mill machinery and equipment arrived, and the mill was erected. The Charlevoix Lumber Co., organized in 1891 by John Nicholas as president and son Harry as secretary-treasurer and general manager, purchased the mill property and the mill was then the Charlevoix Lumber Co. still operates a regular lumber yard at this location. Mr. E. J. Hiller being the general manager and Mr. Ernest Dawson book-keeper.

In the fall of 1868 the first lawyer to locate in the county arrived in the person of Major Edward H. Green.

It was during this time that Charlevoix enjoyed the brief honor of being the county seat of Emmet County. The records were brought over from Little Traverse and court was held in the Albion building. The superintendents also met here, but Charlevoix County was organized the following spring and was thereafter disconnected from Emmet.

The year 1869 was an important period. Charlevoix County was organized and the village of Charlevoix became the county seat, and in April the Charlevoix Sentinel was established.

Traffic jams too much

With summer bridge St. traffic sometimes backed up as far as Garfield St. on the south and Edwards St. on the north there has been more talk about the day when US-31 will become a four-lane divided highway.

When that day is no one appears real certain. But the, apparently realistic, story dealing around it is that it will be less than ten years from now and more like less than five—if they quit spending money on death in Vietnam.

But speculation on when this "great stride forward" will be made isn't as much concern to most people as the route the roadshows ugly speedway will take.

Most people we hear are doubtful

Charlevoix's heritage

OPENING OF PINE RIVER

On January 13, 1872 a mass meeting was held to discuss the matter of opening Pine River for navigation and we find that Willard A. Smith was secretary of this meeting. In June 1873 a contract was closed with N. Stuckney for dredging the channel of Pine River, and the following July the dredge arrived and work was begun.

All dredging prior to this time had been done with tugs, and the appearance of a real live dredge was an occasion of great public interest, and the entire populace turned out to give it a reception.

The cut between Round and Pine Lakes was made thirty-five feet wide and twelve feet deep by an appropriation of $1,000 made by the board of supervisors.

The first dredging under a government appropriation was done in July, 1877.

The death by drowning of Seth F. Mason which occurred Nov. 15, 1870 was a notable event in the history of Charlevoix. Mr. Mason was a prominent citizen and the tragic circumstances of his death produced a profound sensation.

Dr. Levi Lewis located in Charlevoix in the spring of 1870, and was the monest physician of this region. The first few years of his practice after locating here were fraught with hard work and rough experience. His visits extended over a large area and travel was attended with difficulty, according to the records Dr. Lewis owned the first buggy in the village.

In 1871 Dr. Lewis built the opera house, near the bridge. In 1880 he entered into partnership with John M. Ackert, in the drug and grocery business. This business continued for some time when the firm dissolved, and Dr. Lewis closed out his stock to devote all of his time to the practice of medicine. Dr. Lewis continued active in the development of Charlevoix until his death on December 29, 1920.

From the organization of Charlevoix as a village the growth of the town was rapid and we find the following business men, aside from those already mentioned, taking an active part in its growth: A. Butters & Co., Henry Morgan, C.B. Norris & Co., George Kyes, M. See, A.K. Daugherty, Henry Carr, Henry Newman, Byron See, L. Gebau, S.S. Liscomb, D.C. Nettleton, Richard Cooper, Eaterly & Co., Philo Beers, John M. Ackert, H. Lee Edgins, O.S. Westburn, Egbert Carpenter, B.W. Miller, Harrison B. Edger, A.J. Up-right, A. J. McLeod, James Wood, L.D. Bartholomew, Nelson Ainslie, J. Milo Esau, Fred W. Mayne, Richard Shapton, Sias H. Comfort, O.F. Wiesner, Hon. J.S. Dixon, Horace S. Harsh, William Nelson, W.J. Stevenson, Dr. L.B. Bartlett, O.E. Wilbur, W.H. Francis, Dr. J.B. Thielan, Dr. F.A. Auld, H.A. Emery & Co., C.W. Priest, Dr. R.B. Armstrong, Frank M. Sears, and others.

It is not that our Craig is different. It's simply that our time has come to face up to our failure.

And certainly, my frustration is not unique. All educators and parents with the imagination to question must feel it.

Just as certainly, and maybe more frustrating, there is no one, or thing, to blame. On the contrary, we live here because we have found no where else where our son will have as many advantages.

His teachers here will care. The school board cares. The community cares.

He will learn from his playmates and grownups in other homes, stores and in the parks that decency and compassion are the root drive of most people.

If he stays in Charlevoix he may never be afflicted by the cynicism and anger that can come from exposure to power politics, big business, newspapering, education and uniforms.

If his dad does not meddle too much, he may not find the dry rot in textbooks that inspire his learning lessons. He may accept the classroom explanation of history and man's quest for freedom without recognizing the emptiness of the answers.

He may believe that society is in balance and he should be a good follow by doing his part to keep it that. He may never hear Thoreau's warning that "Nothing, no matter how ancient, can be trusted until proven."

He may never cut too-holds in a glacier to reach a mountain top so he can be closer to the source when he asks "why?"

And, perhaps, it is best that he not seek his own drummer. There is no craving here to send him in search of an unattainable peace.

Yet there is the nagging fear that by sending him off to school next week we are dooming him to 13 years of brainwashing from which he may never break free to seek his own truths and values.

Even though these truths and values may be those he can more easily learn from mankind's well-ordered and uniform education system, shouldn't he be taught to deny and question them until he proves them for himself?

But this is impossible under our concept of education, which is founded on the prerequisite that students are failures if they do not learn the shallow and drab facts and values society dictates to them in the classroom.

It seems, somehow, inadequate. May I not be forgiven for failing to have a better alternative for our son. —Step.

GLENN ROSE AND Earl Miller found the north shore of Lake Michigan turned into this elbow-circus when they went to Thompson near Manistique to fish for the early-run coho salmon. Rose said he will never go back to fish. Charlevoix has a Chamber of Commerce committee working on getting facilities ready for coho fishermen next fall. The city has begun a study of expanding facilities at the Ferry Ave. launching ramp.

Even though these truths and values may be those he can more easily learn from mankind's well-ordered and uniform education system, shouldn't he be taught to deny and question them until he proves them for himself?

But this is impossible under our concept

Medusa promises some changes, won't talk others

Medusa Portland Cement Co. officials Saturday told a group of 14 citizens who toured the South Point plant they are attempting to eliminate some problems and refused to discuss others.

Company spokesman said they have, or in the immediate future will:

- Completed construction of a ten-foot deep bowl containing water, into which dust collected in the electric precipitators is dumped. The water keeps the fine dust from blowing into the air and turns it into a hard, cement-like, substance.
- Will take steps to stop the widespread erosion around the plant into Lake Michigan.
- Will consult with state forester Jack Lockwood on the possibility of planting fast growing trees as well as slower maturing ones to beautify its waterfront area.
- Will attempt to muffle the high-pitched whine from its large electric motors to reduce noise.
- Try to get the trucking contractor who hauls shale from Ellsworth to South Point to quit using or reduce its use of the Martin Center Rd.

John Hofstedt, Medusa's director of production from Cleveland, asked that Charlevoix citizens show a "little compassion" for the company's problems. He said Medusa is "going to do everything it can."

He was reminded that citizens showed "compassion" by giving the company from September to June before they started complaining.

Under questioning by Citizens Committee Chairman Don Berlage, Medusa spokesman told him they would not discuss air pollution caused by materials handling (moving of raw materials in production and the quarry) or from the clinker cooling operation.

Berlage pointed out following the tour that these areas are specifically covered in the Charlevoix Township air quality control code.

Myrl Keller, chief of the Great Lakes Fishery Station, was bluntly told, "We don't care to tell you this" when he asked for specific figures on how much pollution is caused by materials handling and clinker cooling.

Following a tour of the company's chemical laboratory, where the quality of cement being produced is continually checked, Keller asked if the checks on air pollution are as tight as on the product.

Plant manager Henry Krebs denied the accuracy of the company's registration of air contaminants. This statement, required by the township ordinance, was filed this month, nearly a year late. It was signed by Krebs.

The ordinance requires Medusa to file a "description of the specific nature and estimated quantity of the air contaminants emitted."

The company's registration statement reads: "The contaminant is cement kiln dust. The quantity is 0.25 pounds of cement kiln dust per one thousand pounds of gas emitted. At capacity operation the Medusa Cement Plant will emit 950,000 pounds of gas per hour."

This figures out to slightly more than 5,600 pounds of cement dust a day from the smoke stack.

Krebs, however, said a report in the August 14 Courier that the registration stated "approximately 5,600 pounds of cement dust is coming from the plant's stack every 24 hours of capacity operation" is not true.

He contended the 5,600 pounds of dust represents the maximum amount "allowable" and includes dust from all sources at the plant.

The statement, signed by him, specifically states "the contaminant is cement kiln dust," which does not include dust from the quarry or other sources.

Berlage said Monday the ordinance requires the company's registration to state the amount of pollution from all sources.

Three weeks ago Dean Mikulski, district Health Dept. sanitarian who has been appointed to enforce and administer the township code, said he will press the company to identify the other sources and quantity of air pollution, as required by law.

Following the tour Berlage said he will write company and township officials asking them clarify Krebs' insistence that the registration of contaminants covers all sources on South Point and reflects the "allowable" instead of the actual amount of pollution.

Richard Lowenstein, a summer resident who owns a home on Michigan Ave., told company officials, "Our problem appears to be that you are interested in quality control of your product and we are interested in the quality of our air and water." He asked, "How are we going to reconcile the two interests?"

Keller said he noticed that no efforts have been made to stop erosion. He pointed out erosion is a form of water pollution.

Hofstedt said efforts will be made to halt erosion, but did not explain how it could be stopped.

Before starting the tour Krebs introduced Miss Fran Martin of Nichols St. as the firm's new consultant. Miss Martin, a newspaperwoman who previously worked for a committee fighting Medusa's coming to Charlevoix, will prepare company news releases.

Krebs presented Miss Martin with two token gifts to show the company's appreciation.

Members of the citizens committee making the nearly three-hour tour were Berlage, Lowenstein, Kollar, George Richardson, Bill Haggard, Ed Hansen, Mrs. Howard Messmore, Ray Tolls, Ivan Phillips, Woodbury Ransom, Gregg Shadko, Paul Sifton and Clayton Smith. D.D. Walker had to leave before the tour was completed.

MEDUSA SOUTH POINT plant manager Henry Krebs briefs members of the citizens committee prior to their tour of the plant, the first for Charlevoix citizens since full operation began. The plant was operating Saturday when the committee members toured it and the material handling and quarry operation.

The Party's Over

THE END OF SUMMER is a busy time -- and a nostalgic one -- for Charlevoix visitors. There is the boat to be pulled from the water. The cottage must be sealed tight against the coming winter. Water pipes need to be drained, and the lawn furniture must be put away for another year. Packing the car is the last step before waving goodbye to Bridge Street until next summer.

Charlevoix County has something for everyone

CHARLEVOIX -- There's something for everyone in Charlevoix County.

Located 270 miles northwest of Detroit, 350 miles northeast of Chicago, 54 miles southwest of Mackinaw City, 181 miles north of Grand Rapids, Charlevoix County lies on the east shore of Lake Michigan in the highlands of Michigan's lower peninsula.

It may be reached by U.S. highway 31, which runs through the heart of the city of Charlevoix, by U.S. highway 131, which cuts through the western part of the county, or by State routes 32 and 66 which enter the county from the southeast, merging in the city of East Jordan and continuing along the south shore of Lake Charlevoix into the county seat at Charlevoix.

Historically, Charlevoix County was organized in 1869. It was named for the Jesuit missionary Pierre de Charlevoix, one of the first French explorers to visit and write about northern Lake Michigan.

IN THE SCENERY department alone, Charlevoix County rates second to none in the state. The land rises rapidly from the Lake Michigan shore, with the second highest elevation in Michigan -- Mt. Pisgah -- lying just south of Thumb Lake in the western part of the county.

This is the rugged wilderness area where elk have been reintroduced to Michigan and are thriving.

THE EASTERN half of the county is dominated by Lake Charlevoix, a 13 mile long body of water with the city of Charlevoix at its eastern extremity and Boyne City at the western end. The city of East Jordan lies at the end of the lake's South Arm, a narrow, picturesque body of water with many beautiful summer homes along its shores.

Other Lake Charlevoix communities include Ironton, where auto ferry service is offered across the South Arm, Horton Bay, famed for its Ernest Hemingway lore, and Advance, home of Top O' Michigan Rural Electric plant.

CHARLEVOIX'S beautiful yacht basin welcomes boaters from around the state. Water and electric power are included in the reasonable daily and weekly rates.

SEPARATED from Lake Michigan by Round Lake (within the city of Charlevoix) and the upper and lower Pine River Channels, Lake Charlevoix is a mecca for boating enthusiasts. There is usually a fair breeze for sailing, without the high seas which sometimes make Lake Michigan precarious for small craft.

Fishermen also find Lake Charlevoix much to their liking. Scrappy rainbow trout are to be found in increasing numbers in her crystal waters, and excellent small mouth bass catches are reported regularly. (Two years ago, an eight-pounder was taken near the C&O railroad bridge just off Charlevoix.)

The village of Ironton is noted for its perch runs, and although the number of perch in the lake is down substantially from what it was a few years ago, there are still some good size yellow-bellies taken summer and winter near Ironton.

During July and August, swimming is perhaps the most popular outdoor sport in the county. Dozens of fine swimming areas are located throughout the county, with three supervised beaches in the city of Charlevoix alone.

north of Petoskey.

Ski hills range from bunny slopes where the novice can try his wings to rugged grades which even the expert finds challenging.

IN THE 1960's, two major industrial developments have taken place in Charlevoix County. Consumers Power Co. has erected its first nuclear power plant at Big Rock Point on the Lake Michigan shore five miles northeast of Charlevoix. Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Cleveland expects to complete construction of its $25 million Charlevoix plant this summer. It is located on South Point, across the bay from the city of Charlevoix.

In addition, many light manufacturing industries have found it profitable to locate in Charlevoix County, providing year-round job opportunities for thousands of people.

So welcome to Charlevoix County. Whether you have come north for a day, a week, a summer or a lifetime, you'll find plenty to keep you busy.

CHARLEVOIX--One of the prime tourist attractions in the Charlevoix area is Consumers Power Co.'s Big Rock Point nuclear power plant. Situated five miles northeast of Charlevoix via U.S. 31 on the Lake Michigan shore, the plant is one of the first in the world to generate electricity by means of nuclear fission.

SINCE the information center at the plant opened in 1961, Consumers has played host to more than 442,000 persons, 62,900 of whom visited the site in 1968 alone. Chuck England, director of the information center at the plant, says visitors are welcome from 8 a.m. through 5 p.m. seven days a week during the summer.

ALTHOUGH tours of the atomic reactor itself are not practicable, visitors are welcome to visit many cutaway displays of plant operations and sit in on a lecture-movie picture presentation of how the plant converts atomic energy into electricity for home and industrial use. The plant uses heat from uranium fuel rods to make steam, which in turn operates a giant turbine to create electricity. The power generated is fed into Consumers network of power lines across Michigan, and is utilized far beyond the immediate Charlevoix area.

THE CITY of Charlevoix is unique, since it draws on power supplied not only by the ultra-modern Big Rock plant, but also from an old hydro-electric plant at Belaire.

England emphasizes that there is absolutely no difference in the electricity generated at the Big Rock Point plant and that of other generating facilities. The only difference is the source of heat.

Let's save the Jordan

The Jordan River has been called the least spotted of Northern Lower Michigan's major trout streams, by Dr. Howard Tanner, father of Michigan's Coho and Chinook programs. Dr. Tanner was raised near the Jordan and spent what he considers some of the best days of his boyhood on the Jordan learning to use a fly rod.

His plea to "Save the Jordan" from the rapidly encroaching threat of "progress" has been taken up. Laws have been enacted and are now being enforced to halt development along the banks of the Jordan. The Conservation Dept. is attempting to buy all of the stream frontage it can to preserve the Jordan in its wilderness state. But the pressures are great.

Money and "profit" are the great destroyers. You can help. You must help if the Jordan is to be saved!

Respect this lone survivor of Michigan's once numerous unspoiled trout streams. Don't litter its banks. Don't cut trees or burn indiscriminately. Tell your friends you are an advocate of "Saving the Jordan." If you have a buck or two to spare send it to "Save the Jordan", Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720. We'll see that it gets to the people who will use it to build a stronger campaign to "Save the Jordan."

If you haven't visited the Jordan yet there is plenty of reason to do so. Brown trout weighing up to 15 pounds have been caught in it on flies. Some experts contend even bigger browns are lurking in this beautiful stream. Guides are available in East Jordan.

CHARLEVOIX is easily accessible by air. The city's new municipal airport welcomes flyers from all over the mid-west.

Petoskey stones

CHARLEVOIX -- Charlevoix's Lake Michigan beaches are a prime hunting ground for the elusive Petoskey stone---the state stone of Michigan.

Formed millions of years ago, the stones actually are petrified "colony corals" which lived when northern Michigan was at the bottom of a tropical sea.

PETOSKEY stones may look like this when you find them on the Lake Michigan shore.

When polished, the stones make beautiful earrings, cufflinks and brooches. Larger stones may be used as paperweights or door stops.

PETOSKEY stones are easiest to spot when they are wet, since moisture brings out the hexagonal (six-sided) pattern of the original coral. An uncut Petoskey stone may sometimes appear as an ordinary rock covered with tiny bumps.

Although it is named for the city of Petoskey, the stones are plentiful---if you have a sharp eye---many places along the northern Lake Michigan shore. Some excellent stones have been found at Bells Bay, about five miles south of Charlevoix.

POLISHED, the stones make attractive pieces for jewelry and other decorations. Kits are available to hand-polish the stones.

Legendary medieval atmosphere, an enormous complex of gardens, courtyards, fountains, Norman arches, Gothic arches, towers, battlements, porticulis, heraldic arms, and a great hall 250 feet long.

A recreational and educational experience for the whole family, with visions of King Arthur, Sir Lancelot and the Knights of the Round Table. The great medieval complexes, with living quarters, defense towers, shops, crafts, etc. Here is a glimpse back into times immemorial, to the crusades, to the great heritage of the western world.

Castle Van Haver is perhaps the closest approach to medieval European atmosphere in America.

'Spider' dune rides offer thrills aplenty

ATWOOD -- Sand dune rides--long a popular form of recreation in western Michigan--are available at this Antrim County community 12 miles south of Charlevoix.

Operated by Melvin Essenberg, "Spider Sand Dune Rides," offers a scenic thrill-tour of the Lake Michigan shore.

THE ROUTE takes passengers past an old Indian campground where pottery fragments have been found and near the site where a Great Lakes freighter sank during a storm.

ESSENBERG says the greatest testimony to the popularity of the rides comes at the end of the tour.

"Kids simply refuse to get out, and teenagers start begging for money so they can ride again."

Rides are made in a Scout, a four-wheel drive vehicle made by International Harvester.

Charlevoix is located 604 feet above sea level and has an average temperature of 45 degrees. The average summer temperature is 68.2 degrees, based on records of the past 22 years.

How about boat ride?

IRONTON -- How about a short boat ride?

For 35 cents, you, your car and your family can take a five-minute boat ride across the mouth of the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Ferry docks are located at Ironton, about seven-miles south east of Charlevoix on M-66, and at the tip of the high, rolling peninsula which separates Lake Charlevoix from the South Arm.

THE FERRY runs from early spring until late December, or whenever ice conditions make the passage impossible.

The ferry ride makes a scenic expedition of the trip to or from East Jordan and Boyne City to Charlevoix.

Shuffleboard Courts Open

Shuffleboard fans will be able to practice their sport during their Charlevoix County vacation.

Courts are located in East Park and at the Lake Michigan Beach in Charlevoix, at East Jordan's Tourist Park

Beautiful Beaver Awaits You Island Steeped in Lore

ST. JAMES--If you're looking for something different in the way of a vacation retreat, why not try Beaver Island -- America's Emerald Isle?

Located northwest of Charlevoix in the middle of northern Lake Michigan, Beaver Island offers everything an island should--and then some.

PHYSICALLY, Beaver Island is as attractive a chunk of island real estate as you're likely to find in North America. Fourteen miles long and from three to six miles wide, the island is still heavily forested. Visitors are amazed at the growth of the giant hemlocks and birches which line the island's 75 miles of narrow, gravel roads.

The island may be reached either by water or air. The motorship Beaver Islander carries mail, freight, passengers and cars from Charlevoix to St. James, 32 miles distant, on a regular schedule from the middle of April until the end of December. Fifteen-minute air service is available either from the Charlevoix or Harbor Springs airports. The island airport has cottages, lodges and rooming houses. An excellent restaurant-bar is located one mile south of the village in what was formerly the Holy Cross parsonage. LIKE MOST islands, Beaver Island has a rich history. Continued on page 9

Main Street Looks Better Every Day

There's a better look on Main Street these days--thanks in part to America's consumer-owned rural electric cooperatives.

You can see it in the spruced-up shops and stores, selling the latest products of American industry. And you can see it in the faces of the merchants and their customers, too, who have jobs and purchasing power provided by the new industry served by rural electric.

Last year alone rural electric cooperatives helped establish 443 rural area development projects creating 31,000 new jobs. That makes a total for the last six years of 2,100 projects and 182,000 new jobs for rural people.

The increased prosperity makes it possible for the towns to build new schools and improve community facilities, to keep the streets in good repair, and provide the services every town needs.

Rural electric cooperatives, owned and operated by their member-consumers, are working with city officials and other local business groups to make Main Street--and all America--an even better place to live and work.

VISITORS and natives alike are fascinated by the Pine River Channel bridge which raises several times a day to let ships pass in and out of Charlevoix Harbor. This view was taken west of the channel from the rear deck of the Beaver Islander.

Our fascinating bridge

CHARLEVOIX—No visit to Charlevoix is complete without seeing the bascule bridge over the Pine River channel raise her steel and concrete arms to let a vessel pass in or out of Charlevoix Harbor.

Maintained and built by the State Highway Dept., the bridge is manned 24 hours a day, 12 months a year by a team of three bridge tenders—Ted Bergmann, Elmer Gibson, Chick Gallagher—and a relief man.

When in place, the bridge carries US31 traffic north and south through the city of Charlevoix.

The bridge is raised for vessels too high to pass under it between Round Lake and Lake Michigan. The bridge is required to open only every half hour—three minutes before the hour and half hour—for commercial and pleasure boats. A long blast and a short blast of a boat's horn are the signal to get the bridge raised. The bridge tender answers the boat's whistle and sets in motion the gigantic mechanism which lifts the twin portals.

The first step in the procedure is the turning on of warning lights and bells at the bridge approaches to warn traffic. Gates are lowered across the highway and sidewalks and a road barrier raises as if by magic from the pavement.

When this is done the tender manipulates levers which activate machinery under the steel surface which move weights to raise the bridge.

On an average, it takes about three minutes to raise and lower the bridge to let a boat pass. However, the time can vary, depending on the speed of the vessel or how many boats wish to pass through at one time. The bridge has been opened as long as 20 minutes to let a big lake freighter through.

Increasing boat and highway traffic in recent years has led to longer and longer pileups on US31, particularly during the height of the summer season.

According to the highway department 103,071 cars bad to wait for the bridge during the most recent 12 months survey period, costing motorists an estimated accumulated total of 288.2 days delay. Last year the bridge opened 3,685 times. Of these, 1,047 openings were in July in an effort to eliminate unnecessary openings last year the bridge tenders were instructed by the State not to open the bridge if boats would have enough clearance by lowering their radio antennas.

More restrictive action was taken this year with the new regulation limiting "required bridge openings to every half hour. To allow conditions on US31 allowing the bridge tenders are attempting to be as liberal as possible in implementing these regulations for the convenience of boaters. Any boater intruding on the bridge raised immediately by blowing a distress signal. However, persons who needlessly take advantage of this can be prosecuted.

Island has a mystery. Archaeologists are still puzzled as to the origin and the fate of the first "bund builders" who made their home on Beaver Island. Their worship and burial mounds are still to be seen.

Later, the island was inhabited by Chippewa and Ottawa Indians, many of whom still make their home there.

IN THE LATE 1840's, a band of Mormons led by James Jesse Strang moved to the island from Voree, Wis., in order to practice their religion without interference. Strang, a rural New York lawyer, had himself crowned "King of the Earth", built a Mormon tabernacle and laid out the village of St. James, named after himself.

However King Strang proved to be a dictatorial ruler. He outlawed the use of tea, tobacco and liquor on the island, instructed the women to wear bloomers instead of long skirts and legalized polygamy.

The Irish mainlanders were aghast at his high-handed dictums and eventually Strang's own people turned against him. Following his assassination June 18, 1856, by one of his followers, the Irish moved in, bodily evicting some 2,000 of his followers.

Before long the island was populated entirely by Irish fishermen, whose descendants make up the bulk of the island population today. If you listen to a native Beaver Islander talk, you'll catch a trace of the brogue his ancestors brought over from the Auld Sod.

At one time, the wooded island was visited daily by Great Lakes steamers, since it was a convenient place to stop and pick up firewood for their boilers en route from Chicago to Detroit.

Although the fishing industry is not what it once was, at least one commercial fisherman still operates out of St. James bringing in excellent catches of whitefish.

HOWEVER, the main industry today is tourism. Americans by the thousands have found on Beaver Island the peace and solitude which have all but vanished from other vacation retreats. Attractive summer cottages have sprung up along the Lake Michigan shore as well as on some of the islands seven inland lakes.

This summer, American Central Land Co. of Lansing has given the tourist industry a big push by subdividing several thousands of acres on the island for resort development.

CENTRAL MICHIGAN University holds summer classes at its Beaver Island campus, located on the east shore of the island. They setting is a natural for marine biology studies.

THE 54-SQUARE mile island still teems with wildlife, including grouse, rabbits, squirrels, ducks, geese, deer, and wild turkeys and the bunting is superb.

Fishing in the Beavers is generally excellent. Three of the islands inland lakes yield game and panfish. The perch run in Paradise Bay each spring and fall is one of the finest on the Great Lakes. Bass and pike fishing in the waters off nearby Garden Island attract many fishermen by motor launch from St. James. Lake Genesareth on Beaver Island has a public fishing site, with a boat launching ramp.

BOYNE CITY'S Chamber of Commerce is located in this rustic log cabin. Beside the cabin is a billboard advertising Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival which draws thousands of persons in early May.

Boyne City offers much for summer, winter fun

Boyne City's history goes back to 1856 when John Miller, his wife and two sons along with John Dixon sailed across Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix) from Charlevoix to settle at North Boyne.

Miller, originally from Ireland, found some vacant cabins formerly occupied by the Mormons who were forced to leave and moved in with his family and Dixon.

MILLER CALLED the area "River Boyne" after a river in Ireland where a decisive battle was fought.

After that it was called Boyne Village until 1904 when it became Boyne City.

BOYNE CITY now has a population of about 3,000 persons with a summer increase of about 2,000. The city's major industries include Boyne Products, Inc., Roble Industrial, Courter Products, Howe's Leather Company and Mill's Cabin Mills. In 1961 a new high school and elementary school was built and the city has 12 churches.

Boyne City has several area parks including Whiting Park where children's swimming classes are held mornings and afternoons. Young State Park, two miles northwest of the city, features a bathing beach with a life guard on duty, picnic facilities, camp sites, and a park store on its 536 acres.

THE CITY also has four marinas, a new steel bulkhead dock with accommodations for crafts up to 60 feet long, tennis courts, shuffleboard and playground equipment, a nine hole golf course and riding stables.

Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. band concerts are held at Memorial Park with a dance following the concerts.

Boyne City's Annual Mushroom Festival, held the second Saturday in May, draws crowds from around Michigan and other states.

Indian past lives again at Greensky Hill church

CHARLEVOIX - Lovers of Indian lore will be fascinated by a visit to Greensky Hill Methodist Church, located high on a bluff near Susan Lake, northeast of Charlevoix on the old Petoskey Road.

Built of hand-hewn logs, the church was completed in 1860 on the site of an ancient tribal meeting ground.

Nearby stand nine gigantic maple trees in a circle. Their lower limbs were bent outward with things when they were saplings as a symbol of peace among Indian tribes in the area.

SERVICES are conducted each Sunday during the summer at 9:30 a.m. by the Rev. Leona Winegarden, pastor of the Charlevoix Methodist Church. The services are conducted in English, with several hymns sung in the Ottawa language.

The mission church was built by Peter Greensky, an Indian brave who received his Christian training at the Methodist settlement of Bay Mills in the Upper Peninsula. In 1838, Greensky moved to the Lower Peninsula to take part in a Protestant movement then underway in the Grand Traverse Bay area.

Later, Greensky became dissatisfied with the mission and decided to establish a church of his own where he and his followers could worship as they saw fit.

Twenty-seven families joined him on the trek north, through Lake Michigan, Pine River Channel and Round Lake into Pine Lake (now Lake Charlevoix). They came upon the Council Trees where their ancestors had once smoked the peace pipe and decided this would be the site of their church.

THE FIRST structure was a rude shelter of boughs covered with cedar bark. In 1850, work began on the present church. Although the logs were cut from the surrounding woods, the windows and other hardware had to be transported from Traverse City in canoes, and then carried by hand two miles overland from the Lake Charlevoix shore to the hilltop where the church stands.

The building is 26 by 32 feet and has eight windows. The logs are all notched at the ends to make a snug fit and the crevices have been filled with wood and mud.

THE TINY church has had its ups and downs over the years. Sometime back, a parcel of land including the famed Council trees was purchased by an adjoining farmer. However, the church recently has been able to purchase back some of the property it lost, in spite of a membership of less than 25.

Members also have built a meeting house on the grounds, where church socials and banquets are held. Last year, the old wood-burning stove in the church was replaced by an oil space heater.

Another recent project has been the planting of a new circle of Council Trees adjacent to the church.

Visitors to the area will find it interesting to visit the old Greensky Hill Indian cemetery overlooking Susan Lake, named for Peter Greensky's wife. The older graves, all facing East, are marked off with wooden fences and or rude wooden crosses.

No contract, no school

Charlevoix schools did not open as scheduled this week because the school board and teachers failed to reach a contract settlement without which teachers did not agree to work.

Legally the teachers are not on strike.

In a move to avoid the unpleasantness of having the faculty stage a strike the school board agreed to postpone the opening of school until at least next Monday.

There is no assurance teachers will report for work next Monday.

School board president Glenn Kenney said he is hoping the board and teachers will come to an agreement on salaries by Monday so classes can open.

The approximately 1,500 students in the Charlevoix district were scheduled to report for school Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The tentative schedule now calls for them to report Monday afternoon, September 3, with kindergartners starting Tuesday, September 10.

The days lost from school this month will be made up by cutting vacations or keeping classes open longer in June.

Settlement of the salary dispute hinges on the recommendations of a State Labor Mediation Board factfinder. Both the board and teachers are hoping the fact finder will come up with recommendations supporting their positions.

The fact finder's report is due sometime this week.

The board and teachers are reported between $30,000 and $40,000 apart on salaries.

Chief negotiator for the teachers, Leonard Staley, estimates the teachers' salary request will cost the school district about $30,000 more than the board's offering.

Petoskey Attorney Dick Smith, the board's official negotiator, estimates the teachers' proposal will cost the board between $35,000 and $40,000.

Supt. Rex Milligan figures the board's salary offer will cost the district about $52,000 more this year than last year—not including four-and-a-half new teachers added to the faculty this year.

The board's contention is that its offer is the best it can do because there is no additional money in the budget. Teachers dispute this.

The board expects the fact finder, William Bigham, will support its claim that the budget cannot be tightened up to make more money for salaries. The teachers are counting on Bigham finding areas of the budget which can be trimmed to allow more for salaries.

The school board has offered the teachers a beginning salary of $6,300 with a bachelor's degree and $6,800 with a master's. This compares to $5,100 and $5,100 last year.

Under the board's proposal a teacher with a bachelor's would make $9,548 after 11 years experience, compared to a maximum of $8,800 with 12 years experience under the 1967-68 contract.

Maximum salary for a teacher with a master's degree after 11 years would be $10,904 under the board's offer. This compares to $9,214 last year.

This means an increase of more than $1,000 for top teachers with masters and more than $700 for those with bachelor's.

According to Smith the teachers are demanding a $6,400 starting salary with bachelor's and maximum of $10,385 with bachelor's. The teachers' request for those with master's degrees ranges from $7,000 to $11,297, Smith said.

The board, Smith said, has also offered to pay $180 of each teacher's health insurance, compared to $120 last year and increase the amount paid for extra services, such as coaching, class sponsor, etc.

Smith pointed out the board's offer is almost exactly the same as that accepted by Harbor Springs teachers and slightly higher than Petoskey teachers settled for.

Teachers answer this by claiming the board's offer is far lower than that paid teachers in some downstate areas.

Staley blames the board's slowness in coming across with a salary offer for the stalemate which has kept hundreds of children out of school.

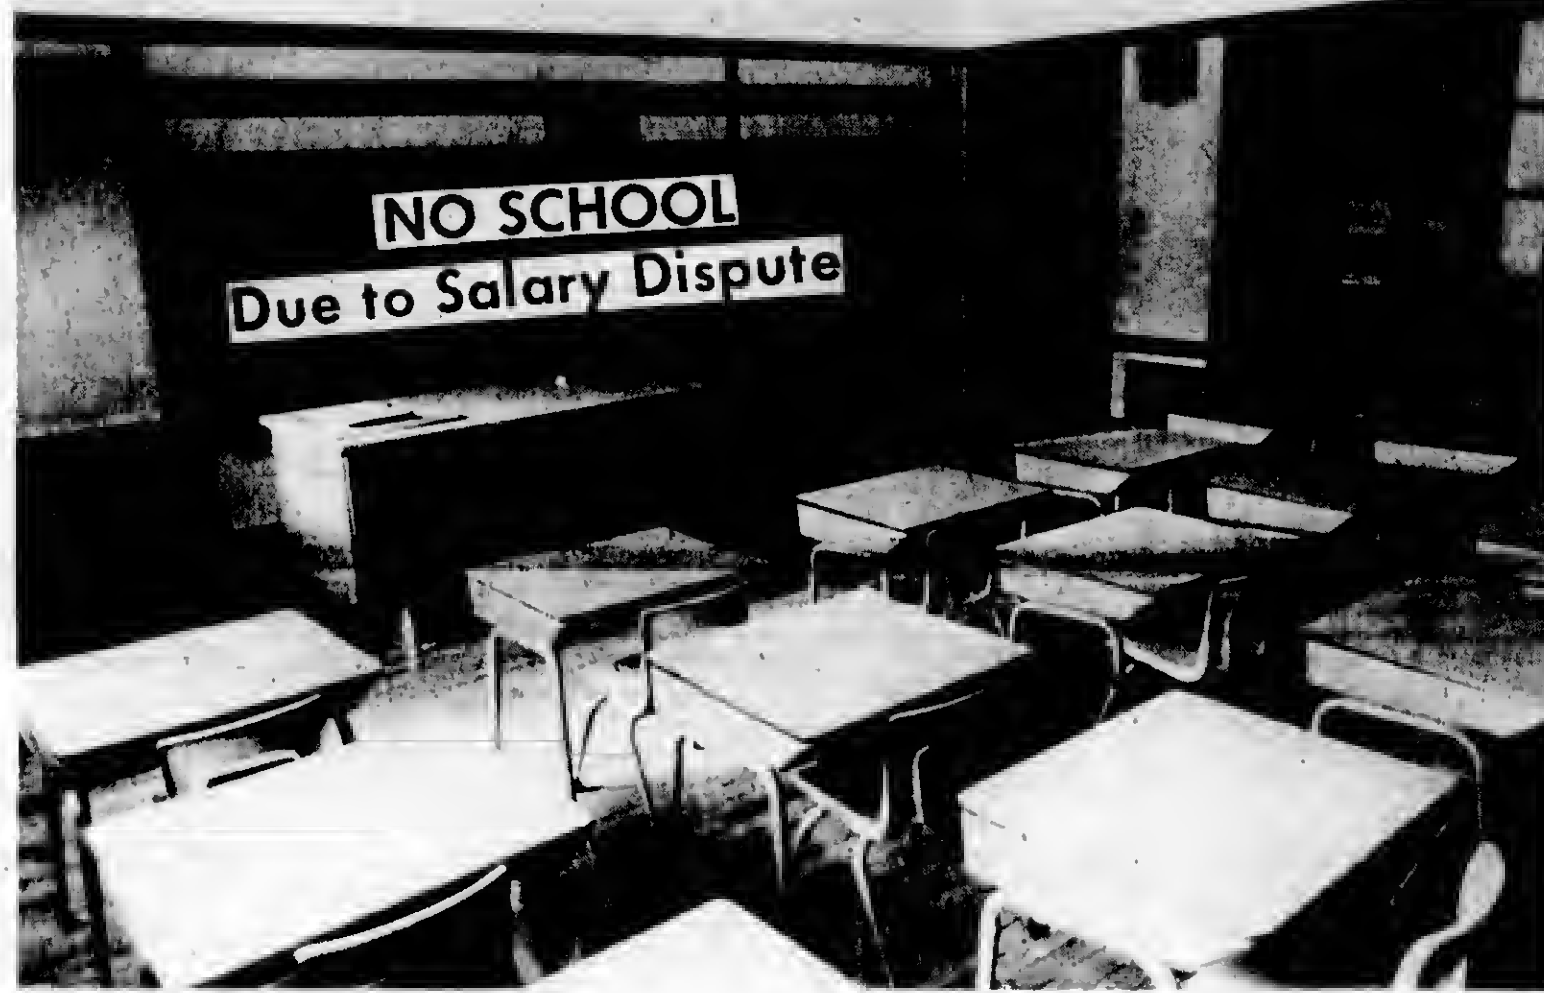

The board, Staley explained, did not make its salary offer until August when a state mediator was called in. The board, he said, has not compromised on its original offer.

Teachers, Staley added, tried to get negotiations on salaries underway earlier and have twice reduced their salary request.

Perhaps the crux of the difference is the feeling of teachers that the school board should have sought more millage from taxpayers this spring.

The board asked voters for, and received, 6.5 mills voted for operation. This is the same amount levied last year. The board considered this adequate because the 6.5 mills would raise more than one-third more because the district's taxable property valuation increased from $27 million to $37 million.

Oldest resident dies

Mrs. Emma (William) Sutton, who was believed to be Charlevoix County's oldest living resident, died Saturday. She was 101 years old.

Mrs. Sutton, the daughter of a pioneer farm family, the Spikemans, died August 31 at Grandview, where she has lived for the past six years.

Born in Canada Dec. 28, 1866, she moved to Michigan with her family 96 years ago. They settled in the Barnard area about 90 years ago.

She and her husband owned and developed the present Ken Sweet farm on 31 south of town. Mr. Sutton died in 1912.

She is survived by 102 descendants, representing six generations. Survivors include her son Archie of Muskegon, her daughter Mrs. Harry Hammond of Charlevoix, 13 grandchildren, 47 great grandchildren, 38 great great grandchildren and two great great great grandchildren.

She was a member of the Charlevoix Methodist Church and Barnard Grange.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, September 3, from the Winchester Funeral Home with Rev. Leona M. Wingard officiating. Burial was in Brookside Cemetery.

Savings Bank offers 5% on savings plan

The Charlevoix State Savings Bank has come up with another northern Michigan first.

It is now offering five-percent interest on short-term savings deposits. No other northern Michigan bank does this. Similar plans, however, are offered by some banks in downstate metropolitan areas.

"Why shouldn't people up here be able to get 5% the same as people can in Grand Rapids, Lansing or Detroit? Those people down there are no better than the people up here," bank Vice President Jerry Redeker said in announcing the new policy.

The bank is calling its new service the "Red Carpet Investment Savings Pass-book," Redeker said.

Previously the only way to earn 5% on savings was to deposit them in time certificates for a year or more. If these deposits were withdrawn in less than a year they earned no interest.

Under the Savings Bank's new plan 5% interest will be paid daily on deposits of $1,000 or more every 90 days. Until now such savings earned 3% per banking quarter.

School bids

Bids for construction of Charlevoix's north side elementary school will be opened at a public meeting Thursday, September 5, 8 p.m. in the high school.

According to Supt. Rex Milligan, architects have estimated cost of the kindergarten through fourth grade school at $1,270,000.

The bond issue voted last spring is for $1,595,000. It includes funds for furnishing the present elementary school into a fifth through eighth grade school.

If bids come in high tomorrow evening, the school board will have to seek new bids or cut some features from the building. If they come in low money will be available for added features.

Medusa has new figures

Medusa Portland Cement Co. today released figures claiming its emission of dust from its smoke stack is lower than it originally claimed in its registration with the District Health Dept.

According to the new figures the South Point plant's stack is releasing a minimum of about 4,600 pounds of dust a day during peak operation.

When the plant filed its air pollution registration form several weeks ago it claimed the plant was releasing a maximum of 5,600 pounds per day during maximum operation.

Both figures are well within the Charlevoix Township air quality control code's requirements, Henry Krebs, plant manager, said.

Don Berlage, chairman of the citizens committee to work with pollution and other community problems caused by the plant, pointed out the new figures fail to answer three major areas of concern:

- How much air pollution is caused by dust from the clinker cooling operation?
- How much dust is caused by the moving of raw materials (stone, gravel, coal, etc.)?
- How much harm is being done to water quality due to erosion and emission of water used in the cement making process.

Berlage pointed out the citizens committee attempted to obtain answers to these questions during its recent tour of the plant. Company officials, he recalled, refused at that time to discuss them.

District Health Dept. sanitarian Dean Mikulski is attempting to determine the amount of pollution from the clinker storage process and material handling. Berlage said, Mikulski is paid by the township to administer the air pollution law.

Berlage said he is awaiting a report from Mikulski before further attempts to obtain answers are made by the committee.

In releasing the new figures on pollution from the stack, Krebs said they were obtained by Western Precipitation, an independent testing firm.

Berlage said that though he does not question the validity of the tests, he has no knowledge of their thoroughness or the techniques used.

Medusa revealed the figures in a news release written by Fran Martin. The release follows.

"Henry J. Krebs, Medusa Portland Cement Company plant manager, today announced the results of the tests on the electrostatic precipitation dust collection system for the kiln show that Medusa is operating well below the level allowed and the system is more than adequately meeting the Charlevoix Township code.

"The tests, conducted by Western Precipitation, a division of Joy Manufacturing Company, indicate that there is between 0.123 and 0.234 pounds of dust dispersed by Medusa per 1,000 pounds of flue gas which is vented through the 220 foot high concrete chimney at the plant. The Township code permits 0.28 pounds of dust, plus, or minus 50%, per 1,000 pounds of flue gas.

"A copy of the complete report has been sent to the Michigan State Department of Public Health for their study. Dean Mikulski of the district health Department in Charlevoix also has a copy for his records and for study by any interested citizens.

Weathervane sues to stop building

Officers of the Weathervane Inn restaurant have started court action to block architect Jack Begrow from building a condominium next to them on the Pine River Channel.

The suit started in Circuit Court last Friday charges that the city's building permit for the six-unit apartment is illegal and that construction would endanger the foundation of the inn.

City Supt. James Taylor said Tuesday the building permit issued to Begrow in April is legal and will not be revoked. Begrow's attorney, Don Berlage, has asked that it not be revoked.

George Richardson, one of the inn's owners, reports his attorney, Richard M. Van Orden of Grand Rapids, told him in a letter that Taylor admitted the building permit "resulted from unfortunate haste and oversight" and that it "would probably be his (Taylor's) intent to notify Begrow that the building permit was not properly issued and that it would be necessary for the City to secure its revocation."

Van Orden claims that the city zoning ordinance requires that any structure on the property next to the inn have 25-foot front and back yards and be no more than 24 stories high.

Begrow's proposed building, the suit charges, will have a six-foot front yard and 20-foot rear yard and be three stories high.

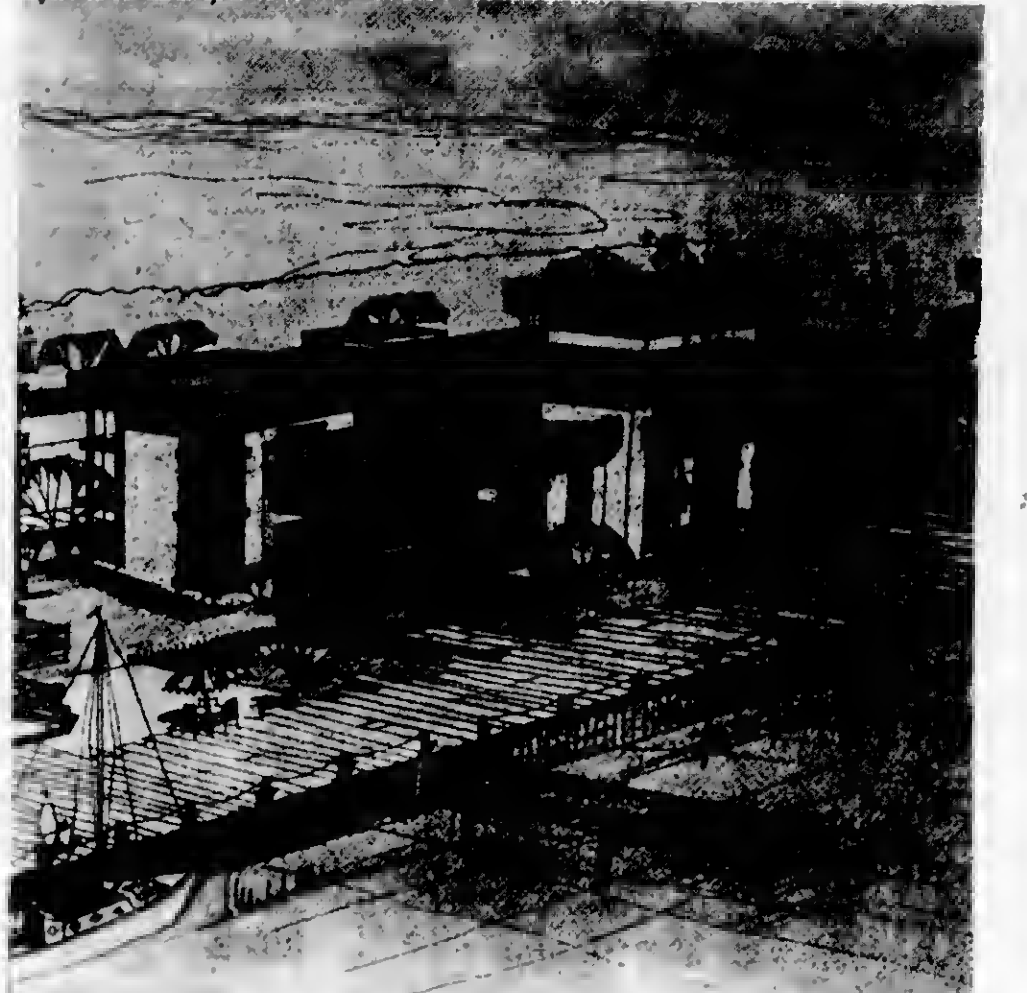

The city was not named as a co-defendant with Berlage in the inn's request that the building permit be declared illegal. Richardson said Van Orden told him naming the city in the suit was not necessary.

The complaint filed in Circuit Court also claims that Begrow plans to drive 18 pilings into the channel bank as footings for the condominium.

Driving the pilings, the suit contends, will undermine the foundation of the inn.

Richardson said the inn hired an engineering firm to determine if driving the pilings would harm the building.

Each of the six units in Begrow's proposed condominium will be privately owned. According to Begrow several of the units have already been sold. Construction was scheduled to begin this month.

Home building behind 1967

New home building in the city continues to lag far behind last year, according to latest reports from the City Manager's office.

The estimated cost of the Hoffman home is $20,000. The Smith home's estimated cost is $5,000.

The duplex will be built by Paragon Construction Co. for Mrs. Lucille Cunningham at 305 Garfield. It will cost an estimated $17,000.

Last year at this time permits had been issued for nearly 20 new homes, and to Stan Smith who is building a 32 by 24 foot house on W. Robinson.

THE NEED REMAINS THE SAME

The world about us has changed materially since the "horse and buggy days." The pace is incredibly faster and this tremendous change has all but transformed the physical world around us.

Despite this and the wonders wrought by science and invention, our need for God and His counseling is as indispensable as it was in horse and buggy days, yes, even as in the days of Moses. Our need may be even greater now because of our chances of being lulled into a sense of false security by our many comforts. The Church of our faith can fill the demands of this need.

The same satisfaction of inner well-being and source of comfort and assurance in time of grief and trouble can be ours for the regular attendance at the Church of our choosing. It is worth just as much and carries just as much inner joy in these modern days as it did for those who were glad to drive behind a horse, in all kinds of weather, to take part in its fellowship.

Mold nabs 3rd title

American Mold surprised local softball buffs with a surprisingly easy 15-4 win over Morwell Steel in their series to determine the City Fastball Champion Tuesday, August 27, after Courier press time.

Each had won a game with Morwell winning the opener 2-0 and Mold rebounding to take the second contest 3-1, thus setting the stage for what appeared to be a handy in the final game.

But it wasn't to be. Mold bats which had been silenced for all the second round, suddenly came to life as they ran away with the game and the chamionship 15-4. Morwell scored three in the first and pitcher Bob Klooster had more than enough runs so it appeared the double in the first was the key hit although two errors set up two of the runs.

It was that way until the Mold third when after two were out, a crucial error allowed Des Milligan to reach first. Harry Cole doubled into right, Ken Balch singled hard into left center, and Ken Wojan topped it off with a long home run over the left field fence, and four runs were in.

Five runs came in the fourth with Wojan's two-bagger the key hit along with Milligan's two run single.

In the fifth, five solid base knocks and a walk accounted for six runs and the jubilant Mold men had racked up their third straight title.

Nate Boss allowed Morwell a fifth inning run, but sprinkled four hits to pick up the win.

THE MIZZPAH leaving Round Lake during the pro-War II era of grand luxury yachts. The big ship usually anchored in Round Lake or stayed at Hamilton's Boatyard during its summer visits to Charlevoix.

Luxury yacht's final cruise to ocean bottom

Charlevoixans recalling the "grand" summer resort era and big yachts of the 1920s and 1930s like to talk about the Mizzpah, Sylvia, and other privately-owned luxury ships.

Owned by Eugene McDonald, the 185-foot Mizzpah made long trips in Round Lake part of her annual summer tour. In the story below from the August Motor Boating Magazine Pete Smyth reports on the Mizzpah's final cruise.

Sinking a ship inadvertently is usually disastrous. Sinking one on purpose goes against the grain also. Yet, when an old and gallant vessel reaches the end, what can you do?

Scraping is one possibility. Sinking is another and, in the case of Mizzpah, a more creative one. Her owners sank her off Palm Beach, Florida, in mid-April, allowing her to continue serving a useful purpose as an artificial reef that will encourage fish habitation.

Mizzpah's history is as unique as her demise. In fact, her unusual past started before she was built, when the Washington Naval Conference of 1921 scrapped plans and materials for a group of new destroyers they had intended to build. These materials were subsequently fashioned into Mizzpah's 185-foot hull.

Launched in 1926, she became the yacht of Eugene McDonald Jr., founder and president of Zenith Radio Corporation. She was one of the largest yachts on the Great Lakes, and McDonald used her for many years as his Chicago residence and as a vehicle to test electronic innovations.

With one of the finest floating electronic laboratories on board, Mizzpah also carried Mr. McDonald on explorations and expeditions. It was on one of these, to Coos Bay, Oregon, that Mizzpah was wrecked. Although its full potential was not realized at that time, Mizzpah was taken over by the Navy in 1942 and served throughout the war as YP-29, escorting convoys along the Atlantic Coast and doing duty as the flagship of the escort commander of her last four missions. Navy Secretary James Forrestal awarded McDonald the Yacht Owner's Distinguished Service Pennant in 1947.

During the last twenty years of her life, Mizzpah was in the South American fruit trade. She was disabled with a broken crankshaft last year and was laid up in Tampa, Fla. Eugene McDonald, McDonald's nephew and current Zenith vice president, heard of her plight and purchased her. Subsequently, due to the impracticality of repairing her, Kinney elected to turn her into an artificial reef. And so ends the story of a noble ship—a ship that once hosted royalty from all over the world.

Obituary

George Whitley

Funeral services for George W. Whitley, 66, who died unexpectedly Thursday, August 29, at the Charlevoix Hospital where he had been a patient for nine days, were held Saturday, August 31, at the Winchester Funeral Home. Rev. Hewitt Johnston officiated and interment was in Brookside Cemetery.

He was born May 25, 1902 in Charlevoix and always lived here. He was a bookkeeper for a construction company. In 1929, he married the former Ruth Ranger. Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Roy, of Charlevoix; three grandchildren; two step-sisters, Mrs. E.L. Kramer of Tucson, Arizona and Mrs. Fred Tipton of Charlevoix; three step-brothers, Carl Holschek of Elk Rapids, Frank Holschek of Bloomfield Hills and Glenn Holschek of Grand Rapids. He was a member of the Grand Rapids Elks Lodge, of Grand Rapids, and a half-brother, Robert, of Norwood.

No contract, no school

Teachers, however, have submitted other offers and are willing to accept a 2.2 percent raise for the year. The board has not yet decided whether to accept the offer or to go to arbitration.

Stille, pointed out the teachers recommended that the board seek more than the 2.2 percent raise. He said, "I don't like the idea of a 2.2 percent raise."

The board and teachers met 3:45 a.m. Friday and until 1 a.m. Monday trying to reach an agreement.

The board agreed to postpone classes until at least next Monday following the failure of Sunday night's meeting.

The postponement came after an effort by the board to determine if teachers would actually stage the threatened strike (or "withhold of services").

In a bid to determine if the majority of teachers were willing to go to the extremes of a strike—which legally could lead to their dismissal—the board last week sent questionnaires to teachers offering its salary proposal.

Leaders of the teachers' union (The Charlevoix Education Association, a member of the Michigan Education Association) lastly gathered the contracts from each teacher.

It was then informally charged by teachers that the board's action was an unfair labor practice. However, the teachers have filed no formal complaint with the state citing the board for unfair practice.

Following the last meeting with the board Monday morning, teachers held a meeting

Monday evening at which time they reviewed teachers' union contracts, suggested action of their negotiating team.

Stille pointed out teachers are proposing that from now on negotiations continue year-round to avoid the last minute stalemate of this year and the last two years.

He said teachers have also proposed a two-year, or longer contract. Under such

Medusa

"Krebs said he is pleased with the test results which prove the plant is operating within the framework of the code. Medusa's kiln dust collection system is more efficient than any similar unit in Michigan, he said, and is as good and probably better than any similar unit in the country."

"With reference to the disposal of waste dust, Krebs explained that when the plans for the plant were announced the company expected to use the dust by blowing it into the burning zone of the kiln, thus eliminating a disposal problem. In the intervening years the quality requirements of cement have been changed by competition. These changes have required the wasting of kiln dust such as is done in many cement plants in the country."

"This dust is now transported in covered trucks from the plant to a new disposal site in a remote section of the company property. It is carefully put into water, thereby controlling dispersal into the air and causing the material to harden so it will not blow around."

a contract, he said, teachers would demand a 10 percent raise for the next year. The board offers a 2.2 percent raise and many dollars for each teacher each year.

If the fact finisher's report expected that this week does not produce a settlement, Krebs said he does not believe the board will agree to another postponement of school.

In this case, he said, teachers will either have to report for work without a contract or strike.

"I just didn't believe, and I still don't, that this contract we are offering is so poor they would take such drastic action, and I still don't," Kinney said.

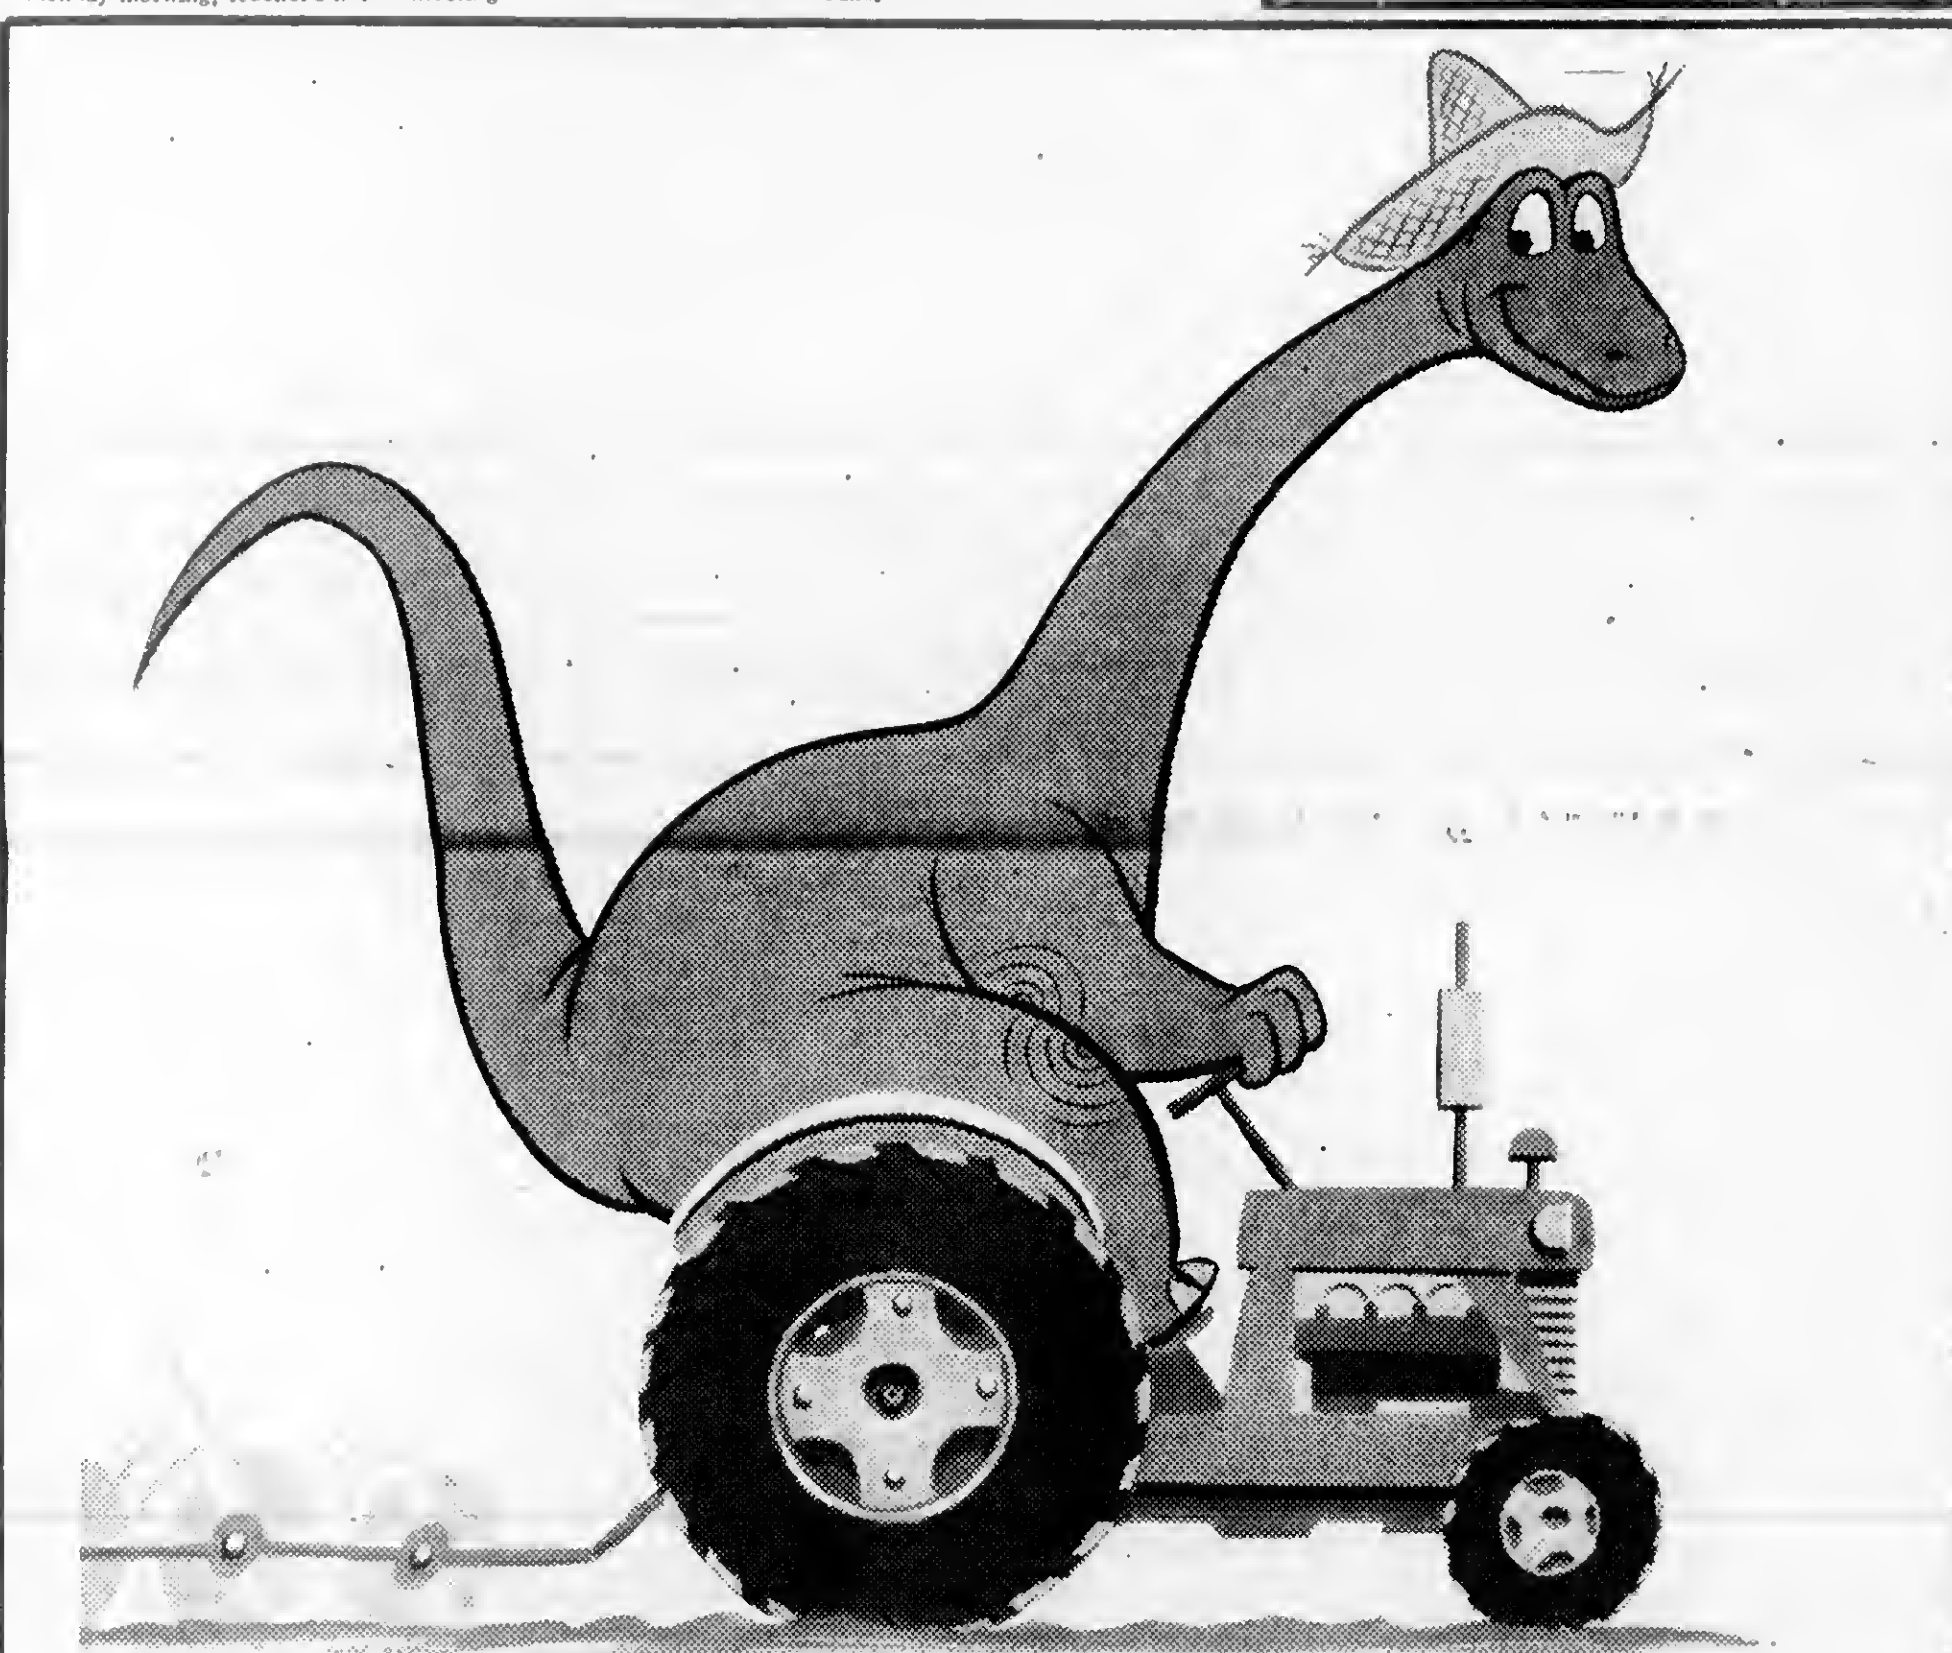

Max Novak, a member of the teachers' negotiating team, pointed out teachers want to work before a contract settlement was reached the last two years. He does not rule out the possibility of them doing it again.

Let's learn from library

IT SEEMS sad...don't ask me why, but its just sad," a relative newcomer remarked as she watched them tear down the Charlevoix Carnegie Library last week.

Apparently, her feeling was inspired by the common reluctance of people to see something old destroyed. With this nearly all of us agree.

However, there are many more legitimate reasons why a large segment of Charlevoix's population regretted the library's abandonment.

As the wrecker's tools revealed, the building was still plenty sound. The three-brick thick walls may have survived longer than the new library's will.

When the cost between the old and the new library is compared—$12,000 to about $140,000—the new building seems like an awful extravagance. The school board justified construction of the new building, it should be remembered, by pointing out it would cost about $25,000 to completely renovate the old building. We never did, and still don't, understand why.

If it were to be done all over we doubt the old building would be abandoned.

Even the location of the old building made more sense. The northwest corner of Clinton and State is just far enough from the downtown district to have some measure of calm, but close enough to be a part of the central business and public service area.

The new building is located in one of the most bustling areas of a growing downtown district. If the central business district is to grow it will surround the new building.

The pinch for business space is shown by the State Savings Bank's decision to build its new building on the site of the old library.

None of this is not to say we are not proud of our new library. Or that the new bank building won't be a welcome addition to our community.

But we do hope the library will have taught us a lesson and we won't again sacrifice a community landmark simply because we can raise $140,000 with which to replace it.

Henry Krebs

HENRY Krebs, we suspect, has been doing a disservice by his employer, Medusa Portland Cement Co.

Krebs has a reputation as one of the cement making cement makers in the business. He was sent to South Point to do just that—make cement. When he arrived, South Point was reported to be a maze of production problems. As expected, Hank Krebs reportedly got things running.

We have never heard Krebs claim any experience or particular interest in public relations. Nor have we ever heard anyone else suggest this is his field.

Being one of the country's outstanding cement makers ought to be calling enough for one man. We cannot fault Krebs for not being a public relations specialist, or even for not being especially interested in what the public thinks.

However, his bosses have a responsibility to the public.

Sad and ugly

Scottie, his search led him through the parking area between the old docks and behind the theatre.

Walking close to the parked cars, he heard a voice on one of two motorcycles coming up behind him holler, "Hey, got the dog!" Turning around and pulling the dog behind him, he saw lead motorcycle make a threatening swipe toward him. The two cycles turned off when he yelled back.

The Courier editor, stumped for ideas to fill this editorial column, decided to seek inspiration with a walk about 10 p.m. Leashing up the family dog, a 10 or 15 pound white CHARLEVOIX'S NEW $140,000-plus public library is framed in the pillars of the "Charlevoix Free Library," which cost $12,000 in 1909. Only the pillars remained of the old library last week when this picture was taken. Today nothing is left except a few bricks.

The "Charlevoix Free Library" cross piece is being preserved to be used as an outside bench at the new State Savings Bank which will open on the library site next summer. Also being saved is the 1909 cornerstone, which will be used as a planter outside the bank.

Charlevoix's heritage

After widening the channel of Pine River, the Mendota, Maple Leaf, and the steamer Fountains City, 1,000 tons burden, commanded by Captain Gibson, the first boat to enter Round Lake through the new channel. This was on July 7, 1882.

Later came the passenger boats Idaho, Charlevoix, Potoksey, Missouri, Illinois, the City of Grand Rapids, the Manitowish and Puritan. In 1932 the names of the Manitowish and Puritan were changed to the Isle Royal and Geo. M. Cox respectively. The Cox was wrecked on Isle Royal, in Lake Superior, during the season of 1932 and the steamer Isle Royal was soon after tied up and abandoned at one of the lower lake ports.

In about the year 1890 regular mail, freight and passenger service was established between Charlevoix and Beaver Island. Making daily trips on this run, during the season of navigation, were such boats as the E.L. Mackley, the Beaver, the Columbia, the Bruce, the James E. Sanford, the Ossian Bedell and the Marold in this run at the present time.

Before the development of roads and highways in the County it was necessary to travel by boat from Charlevoix to Boyne City, East Jordan and other points on Pine Lake. Some of the ferry boats which made these trips twice daily were the Gordon, the Walter Chrysler, the Northstar, the Vette Booth, the Pilgrim later called the Humber and the Lou A. Cummings re-built and re-named the City of Boyne, and the Gazelle.

Bible-spouting bigots wave Wallace banner

by JIM FITZGERALD

The shame of my life is that I served 3 years in a segregated army without protesting one peep.

The hope of my life is that my son was amazed to learn there ever was such a thing as a segregated U.S. Army.

Onward and Upward, But nigh, it is a slow and agonizing trip. I'm scribbling these thoughts after watching one of the splendid "Of Black America" TV shows. They are sponsored by Xerox. Just about the only national advertiser with guts enough to list its name to anything more controversial than "I Love Lucy."

This particular Xerox show told how the U.S. won World War II with 2 million white and 1 black. Mostly, the blacks did the dirty work, finding what glory they could in doing cargo and driving last shift, just as the whites lived apart from the Marvellous White Man, always in the shabbiest of the north to tell southern Negroes that life looked better from the front of the bus except keep a close eye on the driver. But the plantation owner didn't believe it. He also couldn't believe that, only 20 years ago, white Horatio or Willie Mays would not have been allowed to play big league baseball simply because their skin is black.

"That sure wasn't fair," Eddie said. Ah. Out of the mouths of babes.

It is sad that such unfair things could happen and still happen. The only encouraging thing is that, incredibly, we are a civilization which can measure fairness by the calendar. What was fair yesterday can be a dirty egg today. We do wake up, but slowly.

This is not right but it is better than a sharp stick embedded in the eyeball forever. My discouragement grows when the mail brings me such messages as this one, received last week: "Negro crime, riot and their population explosion grow worse and worse. Our only hope is Wallace. Psalm 140:1, Second Cor. 6:14 & 17, Exodus 21:12, 1. Amos 2:12."

There is nothing more depressing than a Bible-quoting bigot. Unless it is a Bible-quoting bigot who thinks George Wallace can save the world. You can hit me in the head with 1,500 Bibles but you'll never convince me it is Christian to judge a man by his skin. If anyone's Bible says black people are born less worthy than white, then that Bible is wrong.

And there is no way you can sell me George Wallace as anything but an opportunist who shouts "law and order" when he means "keep the niggers in their place." And his followers know exactly what he means. Along with law and order you must have equal justice for all. You are not going to get it from a man who, as governor of a state, would physically bar a public university to black skin. Old law and order George doesn't talk about the law he tried to break when he took his famous stand in the school-house door.

But this too shall pass. Wallace is not a fair man. This will be evident when, some day, my grandchildren will be amazed to read that a racist like George Wallace could have been a serious candidate for President of the United States.

The day must come when racists of all colors will be regarded as the distasteful freaks they are. If I hear my great grandchildren say some day they are surprised to read that the States were ever united,

Banks worth $775,000

The Inn, The Beach and the Belvedere hotels had more than their usual quotas of guests at this season of the year and large numbers expressed their intention of staying later than usual.

Fifteen Charlevoix County girls registered as willing to be war nurses. According to reports received from the Charlevoix County Bank and the State Savings Bank, their combined resources show a sum of approximately $775,000 and both also report a gain in deposits equaling 25%.

Lee Powers, manager of The Argonne, says the popular amusement place will remain open until November 1 this year.

The Charlevoix All-Stars baseball team were to meet the Barnard Sluggers Sunday afternoon.

Omer McCann, who was employed at the local Kroger store, was transferred to Grand Rapids.

Thirty-one local men from the CCC camp north of Newberry spent the week-end visiting at their homes in Charlevoix. Among them were Edwin McCann, Glen Helso, Dan Genett, George Bergmann, Gordon Bartlett, Emmett Shearer and Joe Brunsberry.

25 Years Ago

Cpl. Frank A. Winkler was among three western Michigan men to be awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross awarded by Lieut. General George C. Kenney, commander of the allied air forces in the southwest Pacific.

Charlevoixians were told that the third War Loan drive was finished this week when Harry Bloch, of New York City and Charlevoix, made a purchase of $125,000 in war bonds.

Tidbits

A friend, writing of such things a few weeks ago, said that if you take 2 towns of equal size and facilities, there is one factor that will make one grow and prosper while the other withers away.

That factor is people who care. There may be only a dozen of them, but they will improve the lives of a thousand neighbors just by living there.

They care about everything that touches the community.

They care if windows are clean and sidewalks swept, if lawns are green and streets are clean.

They worry about recreation for youngsters, and whether teachers can teach.

They want our laws enforced impartially. They want public officials to be men and women of whom we can be proud.

They attend public meetings and carry petitions and write letters and jangle phones.

They deplore garbage untended and junk abandoned in unsightly yards. They volunteer while others scoff.

They care about trees and churches, about sidewalks and streets, they care about the people who use these things each day.

We fear that people who care do not lead the carefree lives of their neighbors. Sometimes they are objects of ridicule for their can-doing, free-wheeling fellows.

But without them a community can soon reach the level of the biggest slob who dwells there.

Half pay frowned on by board

Charlevoix Board of Supervisors met Tuesday, September 11, 1968 at 7:30 p.m. when Clerk Pete Holm was reading off each of the 25 supervisors' individual per diem and expense statement he came to Moorland's—$312.50.

All others were for the regular per diem rate of $25, plus, in most cases, travel expenses.

When it came time for a motion to pay the bills, Mayor City Supervisor John Kulawski proposed that Moorland paid the regular $20 fee.

(He was supported by Mayor's Bill Taylor. Taylor said the $25 per day isn't a full day's work, but for every long—what the supervisor is called to attend.

There being no dissent, Moorland's bill was changed to $20.

At the end of the session, the board insisted that full pay, Moorland didn't show up for the morning part of the one-day monthly session, he did make it to the afternoon gathering of the clan.

U.S. MAIL

ACCOMPANIED BY A PRAYER

Many a letter starts on its journey through the mails bearing a message that will not be found within the envelope. It accompanies the letter, nevertheless. Such messages are prayers offered by the sender when the letter is sealed or when it is dropped into the mail box. It is often a prayer for a parent for a son in the armed forces, a daughter in a hospital, or for those in anxiety from many causes. Prayer, with a firm belief in its power, can accomplish wonders. The occasion may be a mass disaster or a purely personal and intimate matter. How can you make your prayers effective? By first learning how to pray and practicing a faith. The church that best suits you can be of tremendous help in this direction. Here, through active participation in the services you can learn to pray effectively. Prayer is dynamic.

Lancers in first 11-man grid test on home field

ELLSWORTH—United Lancer football coach Butch Wagner is bucking odds that would make his former mentor, Rayder coach Don Cerey, a winning 11-man grid squad at Ellsworth High School with only 15 players out for football. Any other coach will tell you those are impossible odds. Wagner likes to think they are only difficult odds.

He has one factor going for him that could spell the difference between impossible and possible—school spirit. Last year the Lancers romped to a perfect, unbeaten, football season in their sophomore eight—team league. This year they go up against 11—man teams from much bigger schools, like Deltaire, Palleton and Mancelona.

Even if none of the 16 men on the squad are injured or come down with a cold, Wagner will have only five men on the bench. Eight of the 16 boys played for the Lancers last year. Two of the returning players earned all-star berths last year. Randy Fuls was named to the all-star roster as a center. Stan Treub was named to the all-star backfield.

Sixteen players, obviously, are not enough to even hold a scrimmage, in an effort to give his boys some actual playing practice. Wagner has been calling for Lancer graduates to don uniforms for afternoon scrimmages with this year's varsity.

This novel plan doesn't have much appeal to the former stars who find after a few minutes on the field that they are not as tough as they were a few years ago. The author returns each year to the cottage her father built in 1902 on the south shore of Crooked Lake. Her book has 45 nostalgic illustrations, it well bound and covered with an attractive dust jacket which reflects the "creative enjoyment of the author. Readers will find the book both informative and enjoyable."

The reviewer recognized the author's accuracy in recording her research of boats and her detailed story of the "Dummy Train". The title of the book carries the name of one of the steamers, the "Topinabee", that piled the

Recount judge ballots

A recount of votes will be conducted September 12 by County Clerk Pete Hulow to determine the outcome of the August 6 primary election contest for circuit judge.

Glen Aylsworth demanded the recount in his 20-vote loss to Ormond Danford in the four-county circuit. The circuit covers Charlevoix, Antrim, Grand Traverse and Leelanau counties.

Danford, according to the initial ballot tally, collected 3,243 votes to Aylsworth's 3,223.

Two candidates were to be nominated out of the field of four. James Fitzpatrick easily beat Danford and Aylsworth with 3,483 votes. The obvious loser was Bob Kiewit of Boye City who polled only 2,564 votes.

Aylsworth easily beat Danford in Charlevoix and Antrim counties. Charlevoix County voters gave Aylsworth 232 votes to 144 for Danford. In Antrim Aylsworth got 665 votes to Danford's 388.

Whichever candidate wins the recount will vie with Fitzpatrick for election in November. The winner will serve with Judge Charles Brown in Circuit Court.

Community Chest drive getting into full swing

Charlevoix's 1968 Community Chest campaign will be in full swing next Monday.

All divisions except residential and outlying areas, are soliciting funds this week. The combined goal of all divisions is $16,512, the highest in history.

Divisions now at work are organizations, commercial, industrial and professional. The two divisions which call on families at their homes will begin their solicitations Monday.

The kick-off for the residential and outlying areas campaign will be a coffee at the elementary school cafeteria Monday, Sept. 23, at 9:30 a.m. The approximately 100 individuals who solicit from home to home will be given their directions at the coffee gathering.

The residential division, headed by Mrs. James Alger has a goal of $1,811. The outlying areas division, under Fran Martin, has a goal of $1,183.

Chairmen of other divisions now at work are Glen Wagner, Industrial; Jerry Redeker, commercial and Bob Hoffman, professional. Co-chairmen of the overall drive are Maurice Foster and Larry LaGrow of the County State Bank.

This year's goal of $16,512 is nearly $2,000 higher than the 1967 goal of $14,670. However, last year's drive raised $15,716.

The Community Chest goal is based on the needs of local organizations which are supported by Chest funds.

Redeker named to bank post

Achieve Livingston, 78, this week took another step in his previously announced plans to gradually retire after 55 years with the Charlevoix State Savings Bank.

Livingston turned over his duties as chief administrative officer at the bank to Jerry Redeker, who in the same move accepted the title of executive vice president. Livingston remains as president of the bank.

Redeker came to the State Savings Bank Nov. 1, 1967 as vice president. He had been vice president at the Metropolitan National Bank of Farmington from 1965 to 1967. Before that he was with Old Kent Bank and Trust Co. of Grand Rapids for five years.

Livingston's majority stock in the State Savings Bank was sold last fall to the group which owns the Farmington bank, headed by Tom Duke. Duke is now chairman of the board of the State Savings Bank.

The bank's board of directors took formal action Friday to appoint Redeker as chief administrative officer and executive vice president.

In other action the board signed the contract with John Apfel, Bellaire contractor, to construct the new bank building on the old library site. Footings for the building are expected to be poured this week. Completion is scheduled for no later than Aug. 1, 1969.

Boat builder buys property

Ted McCutcheon, northern Lower Michigan's only fulltime custom boat builder, has purchased property in Charlevoix for a new shop.

McCutcheon has purchased the 180 feet of Charlevoix Cooperative property next to the Foster Boat Works building near Ferry Ave. Beach on Lake Charlevoix.

The coal sheds on the property will be rebuilt to serve as year-round boatbuilding space, McCutcheon said. Though his plans are not yet firm, he said he is considering building small boat docks.

The Co-op used the property to unload coal from C&O rail cars and store it. The railroad runs through the property.

McCutcheon has been custom building sailboats and repairing boats in rented space in the former Foster Boat Works building, now owned by Bob Schieman.

Medusa this week agreed to follow the basic recommendations of state officials for landscaping its South Point plant site, according to the following company news release, written by Fran Martin of Charlevoix.

Recommendations for stabilization of exposed areas around the Medusa Portland Cement Company's South Point plant buildings and overburden area made by Bill Grimm, Work Unit Conservationalist of the Soil Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, and Jack R. Lockwood, area forester of the Department of Conservation, following a tour of the property, have been received by Henry J. Krebs, manager of the South Point plant.

Rabach moves to maintain beach for use of public

Efforts to preserve the beach in Pine Point for public use were underway before a Circuit Court suit was started last week seeking to transfer some of the property to private ownership, according to Clarence Rabach, Charlevoix Township supervisor.

Five Pine Point property owners started the court action to obtain ownership of about 250 feet of waterfrontage platted as a public street.

However, before the suit was started Rabach said 67 property owners in the area petitioned township and county officials to "preserve and protect" the beach area on Lake Charlevoix set forth in the platts of Pine Point and North Charlevoix.

The two platts which are on Pine Point. Of the nearly 1,400 feet of waterfrontage, about 1,150 is in Charlevoix Township and in the North Charlevoix plat. The remaining 250 feet is in Hayes Township in Pine Point plat.

It is the 250 feet in Hayes Township that the court suit seeks to have vacated as a public road and transferred to the property owners who own the first lots back from the lake.

The plaintiffs in the court suit, through their attorney John Michael, disagree. They contend that because no effort was made to develop a road in front of their property and because the county and township failed to carry the platted roadways on their list of designated roads, the public's claim to the property has been relinquished.

Plaintiffs are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Darnon, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Darnon, Martha J. Darnon, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Walters and Ramon Abel.

Rabach called the effort by the plaintiffs to the 250 feet of beach secure for their private use as a "land grab."

He pointed out there has been a long-standing disagreement over public use of the water front area in Pine Point between lake-front property owners and those who live back from the lake. However, he said, this has been most pronounced in the 250-foot area in front of the property owned by the plaintiffs in the court suit.

Rabach admitted he is in agreement with the petition and is determined to have the 150 feet of frontage not involved in the court suit officially set aside for public use, he said he does not foresee any concerted effort to stop this.

Because the 250 feet involved in the court suit is in Hayes Township, Rabach has no jurisdiction over its use.

The fact that the platts, accepted by the townships in 1913, earmark the water front property as a road, preserves them for public use, Rabach said.

Because the 250 feet involved in the court suit is in Hayes Township, Rabach has no jurisdiction over its use.

The fact that the platts, accepted by the townships in 1913, earmark the water front property as a road, preserves them for public use, Rabach said.

The plaintiffs in the court suit, through their attorney John Michael, disagree. They contend that because no effort was made to develop a road in front of their property and because the county and township failed to carry the platted roadways on their list of designated roads, the public's claim to the property has been relinquished.

Plaintiffs are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Darnon, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Darnon, Martha J. Darnon, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Walters and Ramon Abel.

Rabach called the effort by the plaintiffs to the 250 feet of beach secure for their private use as a "land grab."

He pointed out there has been a long-standing disagreement over public use of the water front area in Pine Point between lake-front property owners and those who live back from the lake. However, he said, this has been most pronounced in the 250-foot area in front of the property owned by the plaintiffs in the court suit.

Rabach admitted he is in agreement with the petition and is determined to have the 150 feet of frontage not involved in the court suit officially set aside for public use, he said he does not foresee any concerted effort to stop this.

Because the 250 feet involved in the court suit is in Hayes Township, Rabach has no jurisdiction over its use.

The fact that the platts, accepted by the townships in 1913, earmark the water front property as a road, preserves them for public use, Rabach said.

Paving ok'd for high school lot

Football fans got a long-awaited break Monday.

It will no longer take a certain amount of daring to drive to a Charlevoix home game. The parking lot at the high school is going to be paved.

School Board Treasurer Dale Boss Monday evening informed the board it could get a "buy" on hard surfacing the lot. If it acted immediately, the board jumped at the chance.

Because Northland Construction Co. of Petoskey is here paving and improving city streets, Boss told the board it will do the school lot for a bargain rate. The job will cost no more than $3,000, and probably less.

Most citizens thought the lot was to be paved when the high school was built in 1962. It wasn't.

Every year since the board has been tentative plans to do the job. But when it got right down to the budget wire the board found greater need for the funds.

Consequently, drivers have risked getting stuck in mud and frozen chuck holes. Many have refused to use the lot during football and basketball seasons, preferring to park on May St. and often causing traffic congestion.

The lot will be leveled before the tar and chip surface is applied by Northland.

In other action Monday the board approved salary increases for non-teaching personnel. The raises were reportedly based on those given teachers earlier this month.

Supt. Rex Milligan's salary was raised to $17,000. Other administrators' salaries are: High School Principal Ray Carr, $14,400; Elementary Principal Glenn Soley, $13,800; Administrative Assistant Del Ferris, $13,500.

The base pay for bus drivers was increased from $12,200 to $12,500. In addition drivers received a $1,000 raise from the length of their work year, from about $22 to $200 a year.

Other non-teaching personnel received an across the board raise of 11.82%.

Financial gain seen by merging township

Merger of Charlevoix city and township would produce a surplus of operating funds according to a city financial study based on current taxes and projected expenses.

Made by the city's auditor, the study anticipates a $50,123 annual budget surplus for operating the merged municipality. This compares to an $11,791 actual city-operating surplus last year.

The study reveals that if the merged municipality continued to levy the eight mills the city now levies, it would obtain $188,468. This is an increase of $108,717 over the city's property tax income of $79,751 last year.

The report shows the merger would result in about $15,000 more income from state and other sources. Giving the merged city $124,960 more in general fund income than the city had last year.

Expenses for operating the merged city would increase an estimated $85,928, according to the study.

The major anticipated increases are $12,000 more for the police department (two policemen) and $63,800 for street maintenance and improvement.

The total operating expenses increase of $85,928 would leave a "profit" of $38,332 out of the $124,960 expected revenue increase. Adding this to the city's surplus of $11,791 last year, the merged city would have a "profit" of $50,123.

The study also anticipates the electric utility would benefit from an increased profit due to the merger. The utility's profit would increase from $12,340 last year to $117,127 under the merger, the study indicates.

The Charlevoix Township board has been waiting for the auditor's report since spring. The board has refused to act on a motion that it ask the city to merge until the report was completed.

GOOD OR BAD, like it or not, Charlevoix shoppers will always know what the time and temperature is. The Charlevoix County State Bank Tuesday morning started displaying this new time and temperature sign.

WORKMEN HAVE COMPLETED repairs to the gymnasium floor at Ellsworth High School. Sections of the floor were ruined by floodwater about three weeks ago. Cost of the repairs is estimated at $3,500. They are not covered by insurance.

Charlevoix summer man finds culture at fort

By PAT BEHROW
Just a short drive from Charlevoix is a skillfully reconstructed fort so rich in Michigan history that it is visited each year by about 250,000 people. This is Fort Michilimackinac located at Mackinac Island.

If you are planning to take a leisurely drive this fall to view the vivid Michigan color season you might want to include a visit to this fort in your trip. The admission charge is only one dollar for adults, and children under twelve can enter free.

There is a pleasant picnic area adjacent to the fort where you can eat lunch while enjoying an excellent view of the Mackinac Bridge.

The Strata of Mackinac was the gateway to the west and the historic home of the Chippewas, Ottawa and Huron Indians. For 50 years before the fort was built in 1715 the French were active in the area trading the Indians knives and beads for their precious furs.

After the French built the fort in 1715, the British took over the fort and immediately began a rebuilding project as the original French fort was too small for their needs.

In 1761, after the French and Indian War, the British took over the fort and immediately began a rebuilding project as the original French fort was too small for their needs.

Later in 1780-81 the command officer of the fort, believing it could not be defended on the mainland moved the fort across the straits to Mackinac Island where it was renamed Fort Mackinac. The mainland fort was abandoned and before long wind and sand obliterated the site. Fort Michilimackinac was buried in history.

But today it is being rebuilt at the amazing rate of a building a year. This is being done by the Mackinac Island State Park Commission in conjunction with archaeologists from Michigan State University.

The work was started in the summer of 1959 and was financed by the sale of 500,000 worth of revenue bonds.

While archaeologists began digging at the site to uncover clues, historians began a

City vetoes on-way bid for Dixon

City Council Monday evening voted against keeping 6: Dixon Ave. a one-way street year-round.

Acting on a petition favoring the one-way order, the council voted 5-2 against it. Voting for one-way on Dixon were Jack Noll and Nate Boss.

The request of the 11 petitioners was presented by Charlevoix County State Bank President E. D. (Pat) Hawley. He said the street is so narrow that two-way traffic is dangerous to the many children who live along it.

Dixon is one-way during the summer season. It reverts to normal two-way traffic Sept. 15 of each year.

Fish search big success

The fish are here. Experimental gill netting last week by the Great Lakes Fishery Station here established that coho salmon and lake trout are in Lake Charlevoix or nearby Lake Michigan.

Conservation Dept. crews netted lake trout, salmon and other sports fish. After tabulating the results of the nettings, station chief Myrl Kaller announced there is a high population of lake trout just off-shore from Charlevoix in Lake Michigan and an excellent chance of fishermen picking up salmon in Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix.

Off South Point the nets took 34 lake trout in 100 to 150 feet of water. Off Nine Mile Point 35 lake trout and two mature coho were taken in 150 feet of water. The lake trout stomachs contained crawfish and stone rollers.

In Lake Charlevoix off Advance, where 50,000 coho were planted this spring, 24 salmon were netted in 60 feet of water.

Four of the coho in Lake Charlevoix were mature fish, weighing up to 14 pounds. The others were pre-mature mado fish (jacks).

Several rainbow trout, bass, walleye and other sport fish were also taken in the nets off Advance.

Considering that the nets were set no more than 24 hours, Kaller said the catch indicates there is a high population of trout and enough salmon to provide some exciting surprises.

Kaller predicted the lake trout and salmon will be coming into shallower water as soon as the surface water temperature warms up to about 60 degrees.

COHO SALMON and lake trout netted in Lake Michigan off Charlevoix are held up by, from left, Mel Plum, Chet Belfy, Mike Iyerse and Lee Moffitt. Ryerse and Moffitt hold the coho. The netting was done from the Conservation Dept. patrol boat operated by Belfy and Plum.

A SMALL JACK coho salmon comes up in the gill net being lifted by Mel Plum, right, and Chet Belfy in the Conservation Dept. patrol boat off Advance in Lake Charlevoix. The net produced 24 salmon, 20 of them immature jacks.

minimizing the danger of erosion and making it easier to maintain later on, he went on to say that he would consult with the landscaper regarding the seeding and sodding project as soon as the conditioning of the area is completed.

The less critical areas, the open areas on the property, will be seeded as recommended. Seed to cover approximately eight acres has been ordered and will be planted this fall. Rye, Kentucky blue, Red fescue and white clover plus two and a half tons of fertilizer will be planted.

Grimm's recommendations also included a long range program which suggests soil tests in the spring of 1969 to determine the proper kind and amount of fertilizer needed with the recommended legume and grass mixtures with seaside bent grass to be included in mixtures in the wet areas of the property.

Grimm advised that planting this late in the season is not always successful but Krebs decided to go ahead in the hope that some good will come of it. "We can always supplement present plantings in the spring," he added.

Like Grimm's report, Lockwood's called attention to the fact that the soil is of low organic content and the area is not a good site for trees as indicated by the adjacent forested areas. He defined site as the measure of combined factors influencing the growth such as soil, slope, moisture, climate and related factors.

He listed trees best suited to the site as: red maple, white birch, aspen, willow, white and red pine and white cedar. He noted that all but the willow could be found growing on the property.

Lockwood also advised that surface soil is normally well drained but that drainage is slow and tree plantings should be made either in the spring or fall. He advised against plantings too close to the beach area.

Lockwood concluded his report by saying that "although you are faced with some adverse conditions, I feel that you can do a great deal not only to improve the appearance of the grounds but to protect the natural resources."

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LODER

The most popular questions coming into the Chamber at this time are having to do with eel salmon fishery. Many persons on the outside have a picture of some spectacular boom on the order that occurred last fall over in the Frankfort and Manistee area, which, of course, is not accurate.

curate for our area, and I need always to explain or render some qualification of the potential here.

At any rate this year some extra people and dollars will be coming into the city. This fishery, of course, is much discussed pro and con and regarding the salmon are going to be here, 1969 will be the first time they came here.

My thinking was recently confirmed by a number of spot checks of different businesses within the area having to do especially with the over-all gross for this season with these various businesses. All reported an increase.

It is especially interesting to note one motel in particular indicated a sizable increase, especially for the month of August. It is a fact that there were more tourists or visitors in town this year. Possibly in proportion, the gross did not increase as much, but as least the people were here and many come here for information they received from this state after contacting and were here primarily to see for themselves and many went away with planning concluded for vacationing here in 1969.

In Michigan you are never more than six miles from a lake or a stream.

Turkey due for Jordan

EAST JORDAN -- Turkey which is expected in the Charlevoix County maintained three to five years.

District game biologist Ford Kellum reports he will release 20 to 30 mature turkeys in the Jordan River valley this spring. Within three years, and no more than five, Kellum predicts a limited turkey hunting season will be authorized.

There has been a restriction on turkey season on Beaver Island since 1966.

The turkey planned for the Jordan River area will be trapped downtown Kellum said. They will be released in the largely state-owned headwaters area of the stream.

The habitat in this area, he explained, is ideal for turkey. It has been found, Kellum said, that turkey and deer co-exist well, and there is a high deer population in the upper end of the Jordan.

Turkey, he said, will never become plentiful in the area. The maximum population that can be expected is about 12 birds to the square mile, he said.

Kellum cautioned against feeding the birds, he said people feeding turkeys have proved to be one of the greatest threats to their survival.

Bow to Ramblers

Rayders give too much

by DAVE HESS
The Rayders gave up too much ground last Friday night as Boyne City marched forward to defeat Charlevoix, 20-6 on Kipke field.

The first quarter showed the inexperience of both teams as yards were lost because of slowness in running through plays.

Mike Lord got the game underway as he kicked off to Boyne. Boyne's Ramblers went through three firstdowns before Charlevoix received the ball again.

Quarterback Stewart Coleman attempted several passes before Rambler Peck intercepted a pass with two minutes to go in the first quarter.

The play was down on the Charlevoix 30 yard line after Boyne City lost 15 yards in a penalty. Charlevoix held the ball on the 26 yard line when the quarter was called.

After moving to the other end, the Rayders rushed the ball to the 20 where the Ramblers intercepted a wild pass and took the ball down to the 47. The ball was traded several more times before Boyne City carried the ball across the line untouched from the 20 yard line in the last 10 seconds of the first half. With three seconds left, the Ramblers kicked off to the Rayders giving the ball to Boyne at the start of the second half.

Coach Carcy tried several new tactics in the third quarter, including Coleman with a quarterback sneak. This twice helped Charlevoix move to within 20 yards of the goal.

Boyne's Ramblers received the ball for the second time in the third quarter and with less than four minutes gone, Guitard of the Ramblers carried the ball in to add to the Boyne points. The quarter ended 14 to 0 in the Ramblers favor.

In the final quarter it looked like a possible touchdown for Charlevoix when McClellan carrying the ball from a Rambler punt went 35 yards to put Charlevoix on the 41.

On the next play Boyne City intercepted a pass. The Ramblers made little progress on the next two plays. But on the third, Holzsehu ran 57 yards for a touchdown.

On Boyne's 37, Charlevoix started their movement down the field, Coleman to Lord, Coleman to McClellan. On the third down the Rayders held the ball on their 20 yard line. The game ended before the third down could be used.

Lancers show mettle in 32-6 opening win

ELLSWORTH--The Lancers passed the test Friday as if they had written the exam.

The Lancers and their coach, Henry (Butch) Wagner, were alone in the area sports spotlight Friday after trouncing Suttons Bay 32-6.

Everything appeared stacked against the Lancers going into the game:

- It was the school's first 11-man football game.

- It was Wagner's initial try as a football coach.

- The hurriedly enlarged home field was shaggy and slick in spots.

- Suttons Bay had 16 men on the bench, while there were only six Lancers to back up the first string.

But it didn't take the Lancers long to show they could handle the odds.

In the fourth play of the game Stan Drenth took a Suttons Bay punt and ran 55 yards for a touchdown.

Before the game was over Stan scored two more touchdowns. Dennis Drenth scored the other two.

Stan moved the ball 142 yards during the game, averaging ten yards on each carry. Dennis moved it 90 yards, as did Ron Bess.

The win put the Lancers on top of the new Ski Valley League.

The score by quarters was 13-6, 20-6 and 26-6.

All of the touchdowns were made on the ground, though much of the gained yardage was in the air.

The long-range test for the Lancers is whether they can maintain their speed and power with such little reserve strength.

Wagner reports the team will also be handicapped for the rest of the season by the loss of Ken Harthorn. Ken broke his arm Sunday while horseback riding.

This week the Lancers travel to Gaylord St. Mary's Friday evening.

New federal loans for rural families

Ernest Schott, area director for the Farmers Home Administration, reports new opportunities are available to farmers to develop nonfarm enterprises.

New Legislation authorizes Farmers Home Administration loans to family farmers:

• to develop farm - based small business or service enterprise that will add to their income, and

• to convert entire farm into outdoor recreational centers.

The Farmers Home Administration will be authorized to finance establishments such as farm equipment, electrical appliances and auto repair shops, and other farm-based services needed in rural areas.

Local plant sued in court

United Sprinkler Co. of Milwaukee has started suit in Circuit Court against Freedman Aircraft Corp. of Charlevoix.

United Sprinkler claims Freedman's owes it $11,920 for the 150,000 water tank and fire sprinkler system it installed at the plant by the city airport last year.

Loans will be limited under the law to $50,000, less any existing indebtedness on the security, for improvement and development of real estate, payable over periods up to 40 years at 5 percent interest, and $35,000 for equipment and other operating expenses, payable over periods of 7 years at 5-1/2 percent.

Prior to enactment of the new law, the Farmers Home Administration was authorized to help low-income rural families establish small non-agricultural enterprises only through loans not exceeding $3,500 under authority delegated by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The new act's provisions on recreation authorize loans to convert farm tracts wholly or partially into recreation areas such as fishing, hunting, and camping resorts, winter sports areas and golf courses which may be operated by farmers as their means of livelihood or to supplement their farm income. The limits of $50,000 for real estate development and $35,000 for operating expenses also apply to loans for recreation enterprises.

ELLSWORTH'S SPECTACULAR Lancers (all-black uniforms) show no quarter as they mix it up with Suttons Bay in the opening minutes of Friday's game. Though Suttons Bay had nearly three times as many men on the bench as Ellsworth, the Lancers showed no sign of tiring as they racked up their 32-6 victory.

Young gridders vie for honors

Charlevoix's best junior football punt, pass and kickers have a chance to travel to several states by participating in the Paul, Pass and Kick clinic being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club and Erber Auto Co.

All area kids eight through 13 years old can participate in the clinics October 5 and 12 at 1 p.m. on the high school football field. Charlevoix touchers and coaches will instruct them in ways to improve their punting, passing and kicking.

They will then compete for the PPK trophies.

The seven top local boys will attend the district competition. They then have chances to move into regional and national competition, including attendance at a Detroit Lions football game and the Super Bowl in Miami, where the nation's two top pro grid teams will face off.

Library notes

New fiction has arrived at the library in time for the first end of autumn. It covers a wide range from mystery to history, so there should be something for everyone. One intriguing and timely title is:

Our Most President, by Russell Baker. Subtitled "The Incredible Story of What Happened in the 1968 Election", this book is the fictionalized account of what is happening on January 20, 1969, Inauguration Day, when the U.S. is without a president to inaugurate.

For Mystery and suspense fans:

Good Children Don't Kill,

school boys involved in a student prank which rapidly turns into a terrifying plot of violence

Teacher contract good compromise

THE WOUNDS opened by the non-strike teachers' strike are healing with less festering than any pollster would have predicted the morning of Tuesday, Sept. 3.

Yet it remains difficult for many of us to believe our teachers actually went so far as to force a week's delay in the opening of school. We simply were not prepared for the militancy of our teachers. We should have been.

Around the state teachers are stepping forward. Perhaps in a back-handed way we should be proud that our teachers are among the more forceful. It is not unreasonable to rationalize that individuals with this kind of grit and leadership will inspire our children to demand a better life for themselves.

It should also be recognized that the school board and teachers' union hammered out commendable compromises in the commodity interest.

The board's decision to "postpone" school rather than force the teachers' strike threat took considerable restraint and compromise on the part of several board members. Had the board stood fast, forcing an actual strike, the public's faith might never have been restored.

Teachers, we suspect, realized they were on the brink of the community's patience. So they gave when the hour for settlement grew short.

The salary schedule they settled for, while not as generous as they obviously felt they had coming. Even more indicative of the faculty's recognition of public opinion and financial realities is its agreement to a two-year contract with an eight-percent raise next year.

The two-year contract, it should be understood, takes from the union the opportunity to strong arm the school board next year; as it has for the past three years. During each of the past three years the union has been able to negotiate better than eight percent salary hikes.

Taxpayers might do well to review their own conscience in trying to understand why teachers have become so demanding.

As recently as 1965 the most we were willing to pay our most experienced teachers with bachelors degrees was $6,200 a year. At that time draftsmen with no college education were making more the day they started work.

No matter how you look at it, the people we charge with the formal education of our children are worth princely salaries. Our top 1965 salary of $6,200 was an insult to our children and our teachers.

Yet $6,200 is the best we were willing to do as long as teachers limited their salary ambitions to polite requests. Most of us would have started militantly demanding higher wages years before.

Now, however, it seems fair to demand a leveling off. Since 1965 teachers have won raises of as much as $4,500. They may still desire, and perhaps deserve, more. But time has run out on taxpayers paying the only ones who give.

The board (which, let's remember, represents the public) and teachers have two years to negotiate a new contract. Under the terms of the contract they will be meeting monthly for two years.

This should be time enough to produce a system under which parents can look at the record and say this teacher is not doing a good enough job. Taxpayers are going to be interested in seeing if teachers are as good at proving their worth as they are at reaching deeper into the tax kitty.

Let's keep quarry

MEDUSA PORTLAND Cement Co. officials report they would like to mine the stone in the old Charlevoix Rock Products Co. quarry on South Point.

The approximately eight-acre, public - owned quarry, certainly has no immense value as a portion of the state forest scenic and camping area from Bells Bay south along the Lake Michigan shore. Most visitors to the campground and beach do not know the quarry is hidden in the trees only a few feet off the road.

The Courier, however, agrees with state forester Jack Lockwood that the quarry should remain as it is for public use.

When Medusa was pleading for permission to go into the cement business here it widely broadcast that it had enough limestone on its property to last 100 years. In lieu of this it seems unreasonable that it would need the mere eight acres.

The quarry does have tangible and intangible value to the public. Perhaps most important, it provides an effective buffer between Medusa's quarry operation and the campground and scenic outlook at Bells Bay.

Furthermore, it has considerable value to the relatively small number of rock hunters and geologists who visit it. For reasons which we do not fully understand, amateur geologists and students prize the quarry for the fossils which are perfectly preserved in its compressed strata of rock. Much about nature's history in this area, we are told, can be learned from the quarry's specimens.

Lockwood plans to build a nature trail into the quarry--when time and money allow. With proper signs, the trail will explain to laymen what this fossil business is all about, giving hundreds of persons greater understanding of nature.

Medusa, according to its production director John Hofstedt, is not asking to buy the quarry from the state. Instead, it would like to lease the mining rights.

The public, we believe, has already made too many concessions to Medusa. Giving up the unique values of the quarry is not in the public interest.

Pilots speak out on airport the cons...

Dear Editor:

The members of the Charlevoix Flying Club understand that the City is in the process of preparing certain rules and regulations pertaining to the hiring of an airport manager and/or fixed base operator. As you know, there has been a misunderstanding between the Flying Club and the present manager, even though the club has attempted to do what was required by the manager. According to our information there have also been misunderstandings between the manager and most of the other local pilots who have airplanes based at the City Airport.

The members of our club formed the organization to enable us to fly and also, more important, to promote general aviation in the area, which has a large economic influence on the community. We are proud of our airport and feel that the community has made great strides in improving the airport. However, we feel that the comparative inactivity of our airport has a basis that can be corrected.

We have used the funds from the last two fly-ins to erect a tach-room which is presently located on the airport, which of course, is the property of the City and can be used by the public. We would be happy to leave it open for pilots who cannot use the main terminal building because same is locked. We were forced to build a tach-room because of the static we received from the airport manager when we desired to use the main terminal building for our meetings.

Our net profit from the last two fly-ins was of a sufficient amount to obtain the materials to construct the tach-room, and of course, all of the members donated their time.

Therefore, in reply to your letter, we feel that it is impossible for our organization to sponsor a third annual fly-in.

However, we would be very happy to co-sponsor a fly-in with the City and we feel that the airport manager could then completely regulate the activities and we would be more than happy to donate our time and our airplane.

We have received a great many requests from townspeople to sponsor another fly-in and many people have congratulated us on this event. We feel this is a real blow to the accomplishments of the community, in that we cannot sponsor the third annual fly-in. However, as we stated above, if the City is willing to sponsor the fly-in, our club members would be more than happy to donate their time and the airport manager could then donate the proceeds, if any, to the charity of your choice.

William Dajnowicz
President of the Charlevoix Flying Club

the pros...

Dear Editor:

We have read the editorial, in the Charlevoix Courier, dated August 28, 1968, concerning the controversy over our airport operation and personnel. Our airport, in Hamilton, is a privately owned fixed base operation. We have been in business for 36 years, buying our first plane in 1932. We have grown to our present fleet of fifteen, including four mail-engine aircraft. Our operation includes air taxi and charter as well as a flight training center. As you can see, our airport and its growth is somewhat parallel to that of Charlevoix Airport. We have no doubt been exposed to many of the same problems.

We are familiar with Mr. Joe McPhillips and his airport operations. Through our association we have known it to be one of Michigan's best airports. This accomplishment is due to the management. We have the experience as to the time and effort involved in such an operation. What we would be happy to do is manage, of an airport, consists of a fourteen hour day, seven days a week, if you stop and analyze all aspects of aviation, you will find that Charlevoix Airport has been very successful.

Our twin and single engine fleet has used the Charlevoix Airport, for the past seven years, every weekend, during the vacation season. We are using Charlevoix as our north terminal point, due to the service we have received. You will always have a few pilots who believe that they have been mistreated, unfortunately, we all have them every day. Their criticism, 99% of the time, is proven wrong. For instance, the Courier relates there is not ample flight instruction available. One flight instructor employed part time would be more than sufficient to carry students and pilots in the Charlevoix area. Possibly, in the summer months, a full time instructor could be utilized. A part time instructor could be justified as there is not enough activity in this area. Mr. Joe McPhillips, on a flexible and sensible basis has filled the required needs of dual instruction, of the immediate area, which he draws business. Students, which we personally have knowledge of, always cooperate to work on their schedules, on a flexible basis. You will find that a demanding person will always be dissatisfied, even though every effort is made to please him.

We wish to say, in all sincerity, that Charlevoix and the surrounding communities owe the McPhillips family a vote of thanks, for their untiring efforts. To the City Council and the Charlevoix Courier, we would add, you have a good experienced fixed base operator. Financial support is long overdue this in view of what he has done for all the taxpayers of Charlevoix.

Dear Editor:

I was interested to read in your issue of August 28th the article entitled "Pilots Demand Change in City Airport Rules". Having been a continuous user of the Airport at Charlevoix since 1947, I find it difficult to reconcile my own personal experiences with the article on the front page of the newspaper, and editorial on the Editorial Page entitled "New Look Needed at City Airport".

For the last ten years we have been flying company planes in and out of the Charlevoix Airport many times during each year. As we operate several company planes into small airports in about 20 communities in the Middle West, I believe that we have a better-than-average knowledge as to the operation of small city airports. It is the opinion of our pilots, and we fly back and forth, that the operation of the Charlevoix Airport is excellent.

We have received courteous treatment and superior service at the Charlevoix Airport.

The question of charter service obviously was given a good deal of play in the two articles, and having been in the habit of using the charter service from the Airport at Charlevoix, I think am in a position to at least comment on the quality and the timeliness of the service offered. It has been excellent over the years, and I think the City of Charlevoix can be thankful that they have had an operator who took as good care of the public as he has taken. I believe Joe McPhillips has done an excellent job of furnishing charter service and also serving the transient planes that come in, such as ours.

I thought you might be interested in the observations of an individual who has been using the facilities of this airport since 1946, and who is in a position to judge comparative service. I think about 20 of the communities in the Middle-Western part of the United States, nearly all of which are larger in population than Charlevoix.

Luxury tax gets start

50 Years Ago

Charlevoixians were told that the government had passed a luxury tax and that all art objects, non-essentials and expensive clothing was to bear the heaviest tax.

Rev. Dr. William B. Lampe, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church of Chicago preached at the Congregational church Sunday morning.

Charlevoix parents were told school would begin August ninth and that the school board had made many changes in the teaching staff.

35 Years Ago

Local children taking part in the program at the annual Belvedere masquerade party Tuesday evening were Nancy Price, Ardis Unher, Margery Edwards, "Cappy" Hooker, Buddy Kohler, in tap dance numbers.

W. Stevens of Grosse Pointe Farms is the new Belvedere golf champion, succeeding C.S. Boushaff of Chicago, the 1932 title holder.

25 Years Ago

Charlevoixians were told that they should save their tin cans since 100 percent pure tin encloses the little indigestible morphine hypodermic syringe which deadens the pain of a soldier lying wounded in the battlefield.

Plans to hold the 21st annual county picnic September 6 in Whiting Park were announced.

Douglas C. Porter, of Kansas City, Mo., won the men's crown in the annual Belvedere Club golf tournament.

A-Shut up.

Q-What that your wife I saw you with last night?

A-Yes and no. It was Pat but it was not her wig. She traded wigs for awhile with a kooky friend. The borrowed wig is streaked gray and the bangs were trimmed with a jack-knife. Pat thinks it is cute. If it is not sufficient proof she has flipped, now hear this: Again this summer she is growing long watermelon (a pea-sized) garden behind our home. The vines and melons cover the sidewalk and porch. Last week the meter reader got lost in the jungle and I had to send a white hunter in to guide him out. If you like I'm kidding, come take a look. Watch out for Pygmies with blowguns.

Q-Does your wife ever get angry at you for some of the things you write about her?

A-Yes.

Pygmies with blowguns in melon patch

by JIM FITZGERALD

The last 2 weeks I've made notes on my editorial of the questions most often asked me. It is now time to change the shirt but first, folks, here's the tale off the tail:

Q-Would you rather write funny columns or serious columns?

Q-Do you think the Tigers will win the pennant?

A-They'd better. I have been an aching, rooting, bleeding Tiger fan since I can remember. I inherited the disease from my father who was that marvelous voice in the crowd that the robber umpire always heard. But the important thing is not that the Tigers win the pennant for us old crocks. They'd better do it for the young people.

Fans over 40 can remember, dimly, the glory days of 1934, 1935, 1940 lines because I couldn't work as fast as the other fellows. I dropped asleep enough, to keep hoping the tiger might turn vicious again. We've put up with a lot of jassys and, if Detroit turns in second this September, we oldsters are stupid enough to come back for more next year. Most of the nation is under 25 years old, and this includes Michigan. These youngsters don't know what a baseball championship is. If the Tigers turn the trick this month, they'll wrap up a huge new crop of fans for the years to come.

But if the Tigers blow it, after having a 9 game lead, oh woe is that. The only crowd in Tiger Stadium next year will be the Senior Citizens Day out. If you think I'm kidding, come take a look. Watch out for Pygmies with blowguns.

Q-You talk very seriously about the Tigers. Don't you know baseball is just a little boys' game sometimes, played by grown men in kickers? There is war and poverty and disease in this world. Don't you feel silly rooting for a baseball team?

Hartman promoted to top job at Big Rock

Russell B. DeWitt, 44, has been named general plant superintendent at Consumers Power Company's planned Midland Nuclear Plant.

He had been general plant superintendent at the Big Rock Point Nuclear Plant, Charlevoix, since April 1966, and previously served as assistant superintendent from the time the plant was in the design stages.

DeWitt is succeeded at Big Rock Point by Cyril J. Hartman Jr., who had been assistant superintendent, Harry R. Wall, senior vice president,

RUSSELL B. DEWITT

CYRIL J. HARTMAN, JR.

DeWitt is assigned to the general supervision of the design and construction of the plant and various facilities in the early stages of planning for the multi-million dollar Midland facility. The assignment, which will be an important power supply for the Michigan Power Corp., in addition, it will provide quantities of process steam and electricity for The Dow Chemical Company at Midland.

DeWitt joined Consumers Power in 1949 after being graduated from Tri-State College, Angola, Indiana, with a degree in mechanical engineering. He has held various engineering positions in the power plant, including that of resident engineer at the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission's Enrico Fermi Nuclear Plant, near Monroe, before his transfer to Big Rock Point as assistant plant superintendent.

His successor at Big Rock Point, Hartman, was first employed in 1946 after earning a degree in chemical engineering. He has been assigned various laboratory and engineering responsibilities in several power plants and the general office.

FIRE LATE TUESDAY morning partially destroyed this expensive cruiser, the Cadco, as it was tied up behind the Chamber of Commerce building. Reportedly owned by an Ohio plastic company, the boat was under the care of Ward Bros. marina and was to be used for a fishing trip. It is suspected the blaze started in the electrical system. Charlevoix firemen arrived minutes after the fire was reported by Chamber of Commerce manager Wally Loder.

The school board in a special meeting shaved nearly $70,000 off the low bid of $1,286,379, bringing it to $1,216,379. The cuts were made by substituting less expensive materials and equipment for those specified in the bid.

Architect Dick Wiggins recommended the changes. Trimming the school construction cost to $1,216,379 leaves the district $367,000 for remodeling and re-equipping the old elementary school, equipping the new elementary and paying the architect and other legal fees. Bonds totaling $1,955,000 were authorized for the project by voters.

Among the major savings listed by Wiggins are $14,400 for mechanical equipment, $18,700 by using liquid tile instead of floor brick inside the building, $7,500 on carpet and a less expensive ceramic tile around the fish pond in the lobby.

Wiggins said the cuts did not reduce quality, but by removing the demand for specified name brand items contractors were able to obtain better buys.

Barnes Construction Co. of Grand Rapids started clearing the site on Division St. for the new kindergarten through fourth grade building last week.

Nathan Linderman of Harbor Springs, foreman on the job for Barnes, said the company will work through the winter. He pointed out Barnes worked through the winter in building the Petoskey High School and several buildings for North Central Michigan College in Petoskey.

The building site, Linderman said, is ideal because it is flat and sandy. Bill Stinson of Grand Rapids will be construction superintendent. About 20 men are expected to be on the job.

The Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene will break ground Sunday, September 29, for their new church, according to Rev. George C. Otto, minister.

In addition to utilizing non-classroom space, Carr is having some teachers use several different classes for the same subject, reducing the effectiveness of visual aids and other materials.

High school students, at least, are feeling the pinch. Many complain that learning is next to impossible with up to 40 students crowded into an English classroom built for 30 or fewer.

The squeeze will be over in all grades next year, when the north side elementary school is expected to be completed.

Grades kindergarten through fourth will move to the north side school. Grades five through eighth will take over the present elementary school, emptying eight classrooms at the high school for grades nine through twelve.

Taking the seventh and eighth grades out of the high school will cut enrollment there by 240 students, leaving 432. The high school was built for a maximum of 500 students.

This year Sluder has one half-day kindergarten class in City Hall and two fourth grade classes in the library. The 16 special education students have a classroom in the basement of the elementary building.

The four portable sixth grade units are under Carr's supervision this year, due to their nearness to the high school.

This year's enrollment by grade, with last year's in parentheses:

Kindergarten 141 (140)
First 113 (121)
Second 118 (105)
Third 112 (108)
Fourth 104 (92)

The inn's owners consented that construction of the six-unit condominium next to them on the channel violate city zoning laws and would undermine the foundation of their restaurant.

COMMUNITY CHEST workers get pointers on their door-to-door drive from this year's co-chairman Maurice Foster at Monday morning's coffee in the elementary school cafeteria. Others addressing the workers were Larry LaGrow, co-chairman, and Tom LaBlance, president. These women and others started making house calls this week.

Rayder support sought

Only an estimated 75 to 100 adult fans followed the Rayders to Rogers City Friday night.

Charlevoix High School sports boosters are worried, what happens during basketball season when the big snows come? How many fans then will follow the Rayders?

Coach Don Carey predicted last winter when CIS joined the Michigan-Illinois Shore League that spectator support would fall off if an organized effort were not made.

At that time a small group of enthusiastic adult fans attempted to organize a quarterback club. Lead by Tom LaBlance, Bob Lieberman, Larry LaGrow and Billy Smith the effort splintered then died after four meetings.

Now they are determined not to let the Rayders down.

"Right now is the time Charlevoix must show it means it or admit we're not behind our boys," LaBlance said.

A meeting of the Rayder quarterback club has been called for 8 p.m., Wednesday, October 2, in City Hall. They are counting on several dozen adults showing up.

The meeting's primary purpose will be to set up a fan bus trip or car pool to the October 4 game at St. Ignace and the October 25 game at Alpena. A bus can be rented from the school or a private concern.

Getting the spectator buses or car pool organized will be the club's first order of business. The club's backers hope to have at least one busload, and preferably more, going to every away game when basketball season starts.

Tentative plans are for the buses or cars to stop at a restaurant enroute home for a post-game social hour.

Other activities the club hopes to develop include quarterback sessions viewing game movies with Coach Don Carey and fund raising efforts to assure that CIS teams will have the support they need.

In the new league Charlevoix travels to St. Ignace, Cheboygan, Rogers City, Traverse City, Gaylord, Petoskey and Boyne City.

Quarterback clubs, LaBlance and Lieberman point out, have worked in other communities. With Charlevoix's tradition of supporting its high school teams, they are confident it will work here.

The quarterback club boosters are especially concerned that because the Rayders are getting a slow start this season (two losses and no wins) fans will be less inclined to follow the team the long distances to their new league rivals. They fear this could set a lasting pattern if enthusiasm is not developed immediately.

CONSTRUCTION FOREMAN Nathan Linderman of Harbor Springs studies plans for Charlevoix's new elementary school on Division Ave. on the building site. Barnes Construction Co. began work on the site last week. Linderman reports his crew will work through the winter to get the building ready for classes in September 1969.

Principals jam more kids into crowded classrooms

Charlevoix school principals are wondering if they shouldn't have taken on the job training in a sardine packing plant.

Elementary students are scattered between our portable units outside the high school (for sixth graders) the public library and city hall. Classes are also being held in non-classroom areas in the basement.

Carr is holding classes in the school cafeteria, school library, student workroom and is using junior high space for high school classes when seventh and eighth graders are in gym classes.

In addition to utilizing non-classroom space, Carr is having some teachers use several different classes for the same subject, reducing the effectiveness of visual aids and other materials.

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LOOER

CHAMBER MATTERS

Sorry that I cannot report on our September Board of Directors' meeting. Unfortunately, again due to necessary absence of several, the meeting was postponed until September 24, Tuesday evening.

As expected, coto fishery licenses are continuing to come in from far and wide. That is office contracts, telephone, and consequently, it is up to the community as to what they choose to do about it, and it is expected that there will be something done about it, we feel certain.

Right now in the taking, exploration stage, is a matter of having a National Convention here in August, 1969 of clubs of certain type campers from all over the country, probably numbering 350 to 500 campers, bringing 1,000 to 1,500 persons into the area, and of course a few extra dollars, so to speak. If this is all agreed upon, the headquarters are expected to be at the sizable facilities of Open Gate Resort on Nowland Lake.

Speaking of salmon, be reminded there will be held a three day affair sponsored by Benzie County Lake Area Chamber of Commerce, a Coto Salmon Festival at Iron-Port, Michigan, September 26-28, a festival atmosphere, queen contest, parade, etc., all will be welcome.

As business and community leaders, it appears we have particularly large stake for the coming election, and can play a critical role to the outcome. Officials in all levels elected in November will, to a large degree, feel sure, influence the solution to many of the great problems confronting our communities, the nation, and the world around us. Let us do more planning and less of the other things.

How many would be interested in another Color Cruise on Lake Charlevoix?

Where is that guy who said talk is cheap? (Taken from Washington Report by United States Chamber of Commerce.)

The Charlevoix Courier apparently gets around. This week I had a letter from Tonawanda, New York in response to Chamber Chat of September 11 having to do with a foot watch mentioned, which was left in one of the public comfort stations here in the Harborside building. These people had been here for about ten days during which time their daughter misplaced or lost her watch, there was hope the one I mentioned was it.

Unfortunately, no, as the watch I have was a good name watch, but of much less cost.

Anyone interested, stop by and review the Marina Survey of Charlevoix County, taken last May by the Cooperative Extension Service of Charlevoix County, headquarters at Charlevoix City, Division of Cooperative Extension Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Michigan State University. This has to do, of course, with stepped up sports fishery in our area.

Iron-ton

By Mrs. Russ Alexander

LI 7-2817

Mrs. Mary Traylor, who spent the summer with her brother William Traylor, will leave this Thursday to visit her daughter Mrs. Charles Traylor and family in Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin before leaving for her winter home in Fort Myers, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jolson and several friends enjoyed a fishing trip this weekend to the Upper Peninsula and came back this Sunday beaming with their good luck.

Mr. and Mrs. James White returned to their home in Paris, Kentucky Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Maudlin of Royal Oak, Michigan are guests of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Boone. Mr. Maudlin and Ed Boone were buddies in the First World War during 1918 and 1919 and is now Postmaster in Royal Oak.

Several of our local residents met with the Marlin Center Home Extension Club at the home of Mrs. Edwin Mann last Tuesday for a dessert luncheon at 12:30.

Mr. and Mrs. Klon Johnson of East Jordan were guests this Sunday at the home of the former's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kemp.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Thomas and family of Flint have purchased the farm of Mrs. Mable Nachazel and have moved here to make their home.

The Family Supper will be next Sunday evening at 7 p.m. Bring your own table service and a dish to pass. It has been ten years since Rev. and Mrs. Harmon came to be one of us and he has taken many movies of the Church activities during that time. Many of the people in the movies are no longer with us and all of the children have grown and changed which should make it a most enjoyable evening. We hope you will meet with us and this will also be the first meeting in our new kitchen.

Convert your home or business to economical Natural Gas heat today and pay nothing for six months.

Convert now to Gas heat, and Michigan Consolidated Gas Company will buy your unused oil or coal—even remove your oil tank—all at no cost to you. What's more, whether you convert your present furnace, or even install a new Gas furnace, we'll pay the bill. And all you pay us, for the next six months, is for the Gas you'll use to make this your most comfortable winter ever. Here's how this special offer works:

1. If you're now heating with oil, we'll buy what's left in your storage tank—at the price you paid for it. What's more, we'll remove the tank from your home or business and even haul it away if you want. All at no cost to you.
2. If you're now heating with coal, we'll take what coal you have on hand, off your hands. And pay you what-ever it cost you originally.
3. Whether you convert your present furnace, or even install a new Gas furnace, we'll pay for it and its installation by a participating Gas heating contractor, and it won't cost you a penny for six months after installation. At the end of six months, you can pay for the unit and its installation with no carrying charge whatsoever. Or if you prefer, you can then start making equal monthly payments, including carrying charges, on your Gas bill, over a period of up to three years. Either way, there are no carrying charges until six months after installation, and you need make no payments until then. If you live in the areas we serve, you're entitled to take advantage of this special offer. So act now. Call your participating Gas heating contractor or Michigan Consolidated Gas Company office today for details.

Remember, too—when you heat, with natural GAS—you save up to 1/3 on your heating bills.

GAS MAKES THE BIG DIFFERENCE... COSTS LESS, TOO. MICHIGAN CONSOLIDATED GAS COMPANY

Hurons to CHS in first seconds

by DAVE BESS

What is beginning to look like a rash season for the Hurons continued Friday as the Rogers City Hurons defeated Charlevoix 7-6 at Rogers City.

The Hurons won the game in the first minute of play as they ran the ball 25 yards for a touchdown plus the conversion making the score 7 to 0.

Mike Lord put up an extra effort as he held the Hurons in almost every tackle.

The whole game seemed to be left up to a few members of the team as Stewart Coleman continued to call the play. The Rogers gained yardage on almost every play just to be set back on penalties. Charlevoix lost over 65 yards.

When Charlevoix received the ball again in the final quarter, they were in for a hard luck.

With a penalty and loss of yardage, the Red Hurons punted on the fourth down with 32 yards to go. Another penalty, which was accepted by Rogers City, made Lord punt again. Rogers City then held the ball until the game was over several minutes later.

Rayders look for break Friday

by DAVE BESS

It has been many years since the Rayders have been held to a mere touchdown in their first two games. Even the old timers can't remember when.

Something is bound to give soon.

Friday night the Charlevoix Chiefs come to town, and the game promises to be a winner.

The Chiefs, known for a tough brand of football, also are known for their mediocre offense.

The Rayders seem to take it for granted about a home game's advantage, and can give the Chiefs trouble.

The Chiefs must be considered a 12 point favorite, but this could be the upset of the week.

The Boys City Rayders travel to Alcona County, where the Gaylord Blue Devils are in the lead.

Gaylord has only 23 boys out this year, but some fans think it is the greatest team ever assembled in Gaylord's grid history.

While Gaylord has their Cardinal and Johnson, the Rayders have their own. The extra point game is also won by Gaylord's and Johnson's. The Rayders' defense is also a factor.

Something Special!

For total performance, try our new & improved gasoline

LEONARD PREMIUM 500

now 5 ways better

1. Better carburetor cleaning. Keeps new carburetors clean and bright, cleans even old carburetors for better mileage, improved performance.
2. Better ice-proofing properties. On cool, damp days, ice may form on the carburetor throttle plate, causing annoying stalling. The new additive forms a slippery film on ice never gets a chance to build up.
3. Better rust protection. The same molecular film protects metal surfaces against corrosion — in engine parts as well as the entire gasoline distribution system.
4. Better exhaust emission control. Works on exhaust emission devices, like Positive Crankcase Ventilation just as it works on the carburetor — cleans and keeps clean, reducing the need for expensive maintenance.
5. Better ignition. A special compound in Premium 500 suppresses pre-ignition and sparkplug fouling caused by combustion chamber deposits. Car performance is noticeably improved.

1969 New Car

PREVIEW

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 25, 1969

SUPPLEMENT to the CHARLEVOIX COURIER

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY State Bank officers, standing, Maurice Foster and Fred Payne explain the bank's New-Auto finance plan to Charlevoix car dealers, from left, Dick Fochtman, Charlevoix Oil Co., Chevrolet and Buick dealers; Howard Parsel, Parsel Oldsmobile; Tom Erber, Erber Auto Co., Ford and Mercury dealers; Bill Kusina, Kusina Motors, dealers for Pontiac, Cadillac, Rambler and Jaguar, and Lyle Miles, also of Erber Auto Co. The bank's plan simplifies financing of 1969 cars for both the dealers and buyers.

New auto dealer introduces Dodge Bank has unique plan for buyers

Ken Depew

Depew has the new Dodge on display in Charlevoix County's oldest auto dealership. This summer he bought Brown Motors from the Brown family. With the acquisition he acquired the Brown property in the 400 block of Bridge St.

Depew came to Charlevoix from Summit, N. J., where he was a sales executive for Goodyear Tire Co. Raised in Southern Michigan, he became familiar with Charlevoix during childhood vacations and never lost his desire to make his home here.

Depew has expanded the agency's service operation and its inventory.

He and his wife Abby live in one of the Brown Building apartments with their three children.

Charlevoix families buying a new car in the next few weeks will cash in on two bonuses:

Local dealers are offering the widest range of the finest cars ever built, and

The Charlevoix County State Bank will give families who finance their new car with them a $25 U.S. Savings Bond.

Bank executives pointed out Charlevoix's five new-car dealers have a major impact on the community's economy. An estimated half-million dollars a year is spent by Charlevoixians on new cars.

Charlevoix has more new car agencies than other communities of similar size, which is especially significant considering the closeness of Traverse City and Petoskey.

Now on display in Charlevoix showrooms are the 1969 Dodge, Ford, Oldsmobile, Pontiac, Chevrolet, Cadillac, Rambler, Jaguar, Mercury and Buick.

Anyone who buys one of these new models and finances at least $1,000 of the purchase for 24-months or longer at the County State Bank will receive the free $25 bond.

Ford predicts sell 2 million

The Ford Division of the Ford Motor Co. unveiled its 1969 models and predicted it would sell two million of them.

The Ford Division's record for a model year, set with the 1965 models, is 2,024,936 cars.

The star attraction of the division's new lineup of cars was the Lincoln-Continental look of its top-of-the-line Ford LTD. Co-starring were two new Mustangs, a high performance Mach I and a luxury-loaded Grande, and a new Fairlane Cobra. Ford autos may be seen at Erber Auto Co. in Charlevoix.

The Mach I and the Cobra feature a 428-cubic-inch, high-performance engine.

Design changes on the division's convertible models provided for a new top stacking mechanism that eliminates wells on either side, adding a full 10 inches to the rear seat width and making it a full three-passenger size.

The LTD and Mustang are longer and wider. Station wagon models offer a redesigned two-way tailgate, allowing it to be opened like a door with the rear window up. The window must be lowered only if it is lowered like a conventional tailgate.

Ford Motor Co. revealed a two-pronged assault to get a bigger share of the imported car market.

Spearheading the attack were Ford's now and sporty minicar, code-named "Delta" being manufactured in Canada, and Ford of England's Cortina, a model which has been around for several years but which Ford has failed to promote with energy in this country.

The Delta, which will have a long front hood sloping to a knife-edge at the front bumper and a semi-fast-back rear end, will be built in the company's new modern plant at St. Thomas, Ont., and imported without duty into this country under the Canadian-American trade agreement.

Mercury presents new luxury cars

A new line of larger luxury motorcars bearing the Marquis nameplate, a new full-size sports-specialty car named the Marauder, and a bigger and completely new Mercury Monterey line high-light Lincoln-Mercury Division's 1969 offerings.

All three new car lines have their own distinctive features yet share in the classic design heritage of the Lincoln-Continental.

In addition, Lincoln-Mercury presents an all new Cougar for 1969, including a convertible for the first time, improved design and performance in the Mercury Montego class cars and refinements to the luxurious Lincoln Continental. There are 37 models in all, compared to 35 at the start of the 1968 model year.

Tom Erber, Erber Auto Co. of Charlevoix, said that the 1969 Marquis, Marauder and Mercury models represent the most dramatic changes in luxury cars in one year in the history of Ford Motor Company.

"These fine automobiles, along with the 1969 Cougars, represent the fourth stage in the complete product revamping of our Division," Erber said. "It began in 1967 with the introduction of the Cougar and continued last fall with the Montego and this spring with the Continental Mark III.

"Lincoln-Mercury is offering for 1969 -- the 30th anniversary of Mercury -- premium medium price car lines of three different overall lengths, on two wheelbases, with choices in front and rear design treatments," he said. "Those give our customers the broadest selection in sizes, styles and performance in standard luxury cars in many years.

"Based on the response of our customers to our previous major innovations we are confident that our steady resurgence in the marketplace will continue," Erber said.

The new Marquis and Marquis Brougham hardtops, sedans and convertibles are on a 124-inch wheelbase and are 224.3 inches long, providing unusual roominess and passenger comfort. The Marquis convertible has a new top design which provides full rear seat comfort for three adults. The Marquis Colony Park station wagon with yacht deck side paneling features a dual-action tailgate that can be opened like a door with the glass all the way up. In total there are eight models.

The Continental look of the Marquis is emphasized by its long hood and short deck with a broad, forward-thrusting power dome in the hood and a full-width grille and dual concealed headlamps.

Now standards of interior luxury and comfort are set for the upper medium price field by the Marquis and Marquis Brougham.

Power and performance to keep them out front is attained by pairing a new 429-cubic-inch V-8 with Select-Shift automatic transmission as standard equipment. The Colony Park wagon has a 390-cubic-inch V-8 and three-speed manual transmission as standard.

The Marauder and the Marauder X-100 are personal two-door hardtops designed to bring sportiness and high performance in a new size to the luxury car field. They have a wheelbase of 121 inches and are 219.1 inches long.

The Marauder X-100 gives top street performance with its standard 360-horsepower, 429-cubic-inch V-8 with four-barrel carburetor and Select-Shift automatic transmission.

These new hardtops are of tunnel-back design, with the trailing edges of the rear roof pillars flowing down and extending to the rear. A special two-tone paint scheme features the entire tunnel-back area of the car with a sporty, matte finish in a color to complement or to contrast with the main body color. Front styling of the Marauder is similar to the Marquis, with broad power dome hood and dual concealed headlamps.

The third major change for Lincoln-Mercury's standard-size motorcars for 1969 is the completely new Mercury Monterey and Monterey Custom line of nine models. They are longer and roomier, with overall length up almost two inches to 221.8 inches, and width increased almost two inches to 79.8 inches.

Riding comfort and roadability are improved, with wheelbase increased to 124 inches and tread increased one inch in front and two inches in the rear.

All Lincoln-Mercury Division cars share in Ford Motor Company's advances in safety design and equipment. The Marquis, Marauder and Monterey car lines are built on an all-new frame that curves outward in front in an "S" shape for greater energy absorption in severe front-end collisions.

Again the most completely equipped personal sports car in its class, Cougar has smoother, sleeker lines with body side sculpture and is 3.5 inches longer and almost three inches wider. It is 193.8 inches long and 74.2 inches wide.

Cougar's first convertible has a new type of convertible top linkage which stacks lower and leaves no unsightly linkage parts protruding into the rear passenger compartment. The back window is clear tempered glass with "invisible" hinge in the center.

More power and performance are provided by Cougar with a new 250-horsepower, 351-cubic-inch V-8 engine that is standard. A four-barrel version ups the horsepower to 290. Additional options give Cougar top street performance.

There's a fresh appearance to the Mercury Montego class cars and additional power from a new 250-cubic-inch six-cylinder engine and from new 351-cubic-inch V-8's. And there are new engine performance options for the Montego and for the Cyclone two-door hardtops which are packing Lincoln-Mercury Division to new sales records.

The top performance intermediate is a new model, the Cyclone CJ, which brings together the 335-horsepower CJ 428 engine and a value leader two-door fastback body to provide maximum street get-up-and-go for a modest price. Ram Air induction with functional hood scoop is optional on the Cyclone CJ. The CJ 428 and Ram Air also are available on other Montego class cars.

Lincoln Continental achieves clearly identifiable design changes with a strong grille theme which bears a subtle reference to the personal luxury motorcar, the Continental Mark III. For 1969, Lincoln Continental details are refined to strengthen the pre-eminence the car has attained in the fine-car field. The Mark III was introduced in April as a 1969 model and continues unchanged.

The 1969 Buick GS 400. With new functional hood scoops for deeper engine breathing. A stiffer, more responsive suspension for improved handling and ride. And the new available Stage I optional high performance package.

The 1969 Buick Riviera. More elegant and personal than ever. With new exclusive colors, elegant new interiors and a revolutionary new suspension system for improved handling and more driving ease than you've ever enjoyed before. Completely equipped with a 430-cubic-inch V8, automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes and much, much more.

The 1969 Buick LeSabre. New colors, new interiors and Buick's revolutionary new suspension system for a LeSabre. It's more appealing than ever before. More response and economy from a standard 350-cubic-inch V8. And a long, impressive list of safety features.

The 1969 Buick Wildcat. With more Buick luxury and a fresh new styling. With Buick's new suspension system and a 430-cubic-inch V8 standard. And a long list of safety features.

The 1969 Buicks.

The 1969 Buick Electra 225. New. Beautifully new. A distinctive new profile. With a big 430-cubic-inch V8 and 11-400 automatic transmission standard. Featuring a new 60-40 seat that you can order. Sure, straight tracking from a revolutionary new suspension system. And much, much more.

There are many new features on every 1969 Buick. Many features you'll like. See them. See if they won't turn you into a Buick owner. And a Buick salesman.

No wonder Buick owners keep selling Buicks for us. Wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

A classic automobile that won't be upstaged even by a beautiful girl is Ford's 1969 LTD. This four-door hardtop lends off with a unique full-width recessed grille. The lower, longer car with a wider stance displays all-new design from front to rear.

THE MARQUIS and the Marquis Brougham, a new line of larger luxury motorcars by Lincoln-Mercury Division, bear a close resemblance to the distinctive Lincoln Continental. They are 224.3 inches long, providing unusual roominess and passenger comfort. The 124-inch wheelbase contributes to the outstanding ride characteristics. The striking front design features dual concealed headlamps in a smoothly styled grille. A new 429-cubic-inch V-8 engine with two-barrel carburetor rated at 320 horsepower is teamed with Select-Shift automatic transmission as standard equipment. Included in the full line of eight models is the Marquis Brougham four-door hardtop, pictured above. All except the station wagon have ventless side windows, and the four-door sedans have hardtop roof design. Standard in the Colony Park wagon are a 390-cubic-inch V-8 and three-speed manual transmission.

New styling, engineering for Pontiac

New styling from the ground up, the latest engineering innovations and added safety are all a part of the 1969 Pontiac story.

Styling highlights include a new split bumper look to complement Pontiac's traditional split grille, new roof lines and the removal of vent windows from all Catalina, Executive and Bonneville models adding picture window visibility.

Sixteen models, offered in three series, go on sale September 26.

The Bonneville series has been given specific treatment in 1969 and features a separate and distinct grille, a rear bumper with a rubber-like pad and a 428 cubic-inch V-8 engine as standard equipment.

The 1969 Pontiac interiors present a pleasant and safer environment with molded instrument panels of a sweeping one-piece design with heavy energy-absorbing padding, a new instrumentation arrangement and complete upper level ventilation.

"The styling and engineering design of these new cars will bring to Pontiac an even greater amount of attention and admiration from the automotive public," Bill Kusina of Kusina Motors, Charlevoix, said.

The front of the new Pontiacs is striking in appearance and functional in design.

A center section of a rubber-like plastic material, called Endura, splits both the grille and the bumper setting a dominant theme. It is painted in body color. Parking lamps are below the massive bumper at the outward ends of the valance panel and dual horizontal headlights complete the wide clean look.

Bonnevilles have a die cast grille separate and distinct from the other models.

The new side appearance emphasizes full length side peak line and new roof lines. The sides are accented with vinyl plastic moldings which are thicker and contain both the front and rear side markers integrated at each end of the molding.

Executive station wagons have an exterior walnut wood design which extends from the front fender rearward over the doors and rear quarter panel. A border of wide, lighter tone teak grained vinyl is used to complete the design.

A major advance in Pontiac's built-in safety is a steel beam within each door which will provide greater protection against passenger compartment penetration in case of a side collision.

The safeguard, which is standard on the new Pontiacs, includes a box-like steel beam positioned horizontally within each door plus additional door-pillar reinforcements.

The beam is designed to reduce the possibility of the striking vehicle riding over the rocker panel and penetrating into the passenger compartment. Concentrating the crash force against the beam will generally cause a deflecting action and in so doing, both vehicles will escape the full impact of the collision.

Pontiac rear ends have new wide tail lamps incorporating back-up lamps and reflex turn signals.

The Bonnevilles have a special energy-absorbing body color insert on the rear bumper for added protection to impact surfaces.

Another new feature on the Pontiac station wagons is a swing gate. The tailgate may be lowered in the conventional manner or may be swung open. A special cut-out on the right side of the bumper provides a built-in step for easier entry into the load area.

The 1969 Pontiacs ride on longer wheelbases - 122 inches for Catalinas and station wagons and 125 inches for Executives and Bonnevilles. This is a one-inch increase over last year.

Catalina models have also increased one inch in overall length to 217.5 inches. Executive models remain at 223.5 inches and Bonnevilles are increased one-half inch to 224.0 inches overall.

Overall width is 79 inches and overall height 54.8 inches.

The wide track is one inch wider at the front making it 64 inches.

In addition to styling characteristics, the Bonneville has been set apart in the performance department also with a 428 cubic-inch, 360 horsepower V-8 engine as standard equipment.

Standard engine for the other models is 400 cubic-inch, V-8 with the 428 cubic-inch V-8 as optional. A three-speed manual transmission is standard with the automatic Turbo Hydra-matic and four-speed manual optional.

All 1969 Pontiac engines have as standard equipment closed crankcase ventilation, thermostatically controlled carburetor air preheater and emission control and a redesigned water pump for greater coolant flow efficiency.

All Pontiacs have 15-inch wheels for improved brake cooling and to accommodate the optional disc brakes. Tire sizes have also been increased to 8.55-15 except station wagons which are 8.85-15.

The high quality of Pontiac interiors has significantly improved in 1969 through the utilization of new materials and methods.

The instrument panel has added thick foam padding that sweeps the entire width and blends into the windshield pillars as well as framing the instruments.

Instruments and controls are purposely grouped for easier reading and reach. An all new systems monitoring panel is located at the left of the speedometer. It consists of a small rectangular section that houses four tolltale lamps.

All accessory control switches are of a rocker action flush design which simplifies their operation. The rear speaker control has been integrated into the right hand radio control knob rather than having a separate switch located apart from the radio.

Steering wheels have a new shallow dish design and the anti-theft steering column lock is standard equipment. Front door lock buttons have been moved forward for easier access by front seat passengers and as an added deterrent to theft.

An upper ventilation system, which provides draft-free circulation of air with the windows closed, is standard on all models except those equipped with air conditioning, which already have similar air distribution characteristics.

Pontiac seats are tastefully trimmed in the highest quality cloth and vinyl materials with two front head restraints standard.

The Bonneville Brougham option gives an exclusive interior including special biscuit design seats of molded foam rubber. This molded vinyl theme is carried to the doors and quarters for an exclusive rich look. Power windows are standard with the Brougham.

Available on all Catalina models except the convertible is the Ventura Custom option featuring interiors in Expanded Morrokide or cloth and Morrokide. Door trim panels are all vinyl with carpet in the lower area. Accenting the door panels is a full length strip of wood grain insert matching the instrument panel insert.

All 1969 Pontiacs will be equipped with newly designed ignition systems to significantly reduce radio frequency interference. Among the changes are new spark plugs which contain a resistance element conductor instead of a solid metal conductor to eliminate electrostatic radiation from the engine ignition system.

The new Pontiacs have a complete list of options and accessories for additional driving pleasure.

Among them is the Instant-Aire portable air pump pioneered by Pontiac. This lightweight easy-to-use pump, driven by the engine manifold vacuum, permits on-the-spot tire inflation.

Pontiac Reveals 1969 Firebird, LeMans

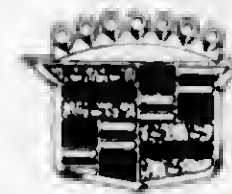

Both the 1969 Pontiac Firebird and the LeMans models combine sports car design and big car luxury. The Firebird, represented above by the hardtop coupe, is also available in a convertible model. A choice of five engines and now a three-speed Turbo Hydra-matic transmission option make the Firebird one of America's most popular sports cars. The LeMans convertible, along with the two-door sports coupe, two-door hardtop coupe, four-door hardtop and station wagon feature new interior fabrics and colors, draft free ventilation and additional padding for safety and comfort.

Dodge all-out to improve its Polara, Monaco

The "most improved" contenders in the traditional standard and medium priced segments of the automobile market recolve brand new starts in 1969.

The Dodge Polara and Monaco get everything changed but the wheel-base for the coming year. Including the cargo distance between the wheel housings on station wagons.

There is "integrated total form," "moulded air spoilers," a "tuck under" sill, "hidden windshield wipers," "ventless windows," and "Super-Lite" to package Dodge's new concept in medium priced luxury.

"The Dodge Monaco has been making steady progress in the medium priced market and the Polara in the standard priced segment," said Ken Depew, K & A Dodge, Charlevoix. "They were on the plus side of the sales chart in a declining auto sales market during 1967 and they continued their momentum through the 1968 model to show the greatest improvement of any car in their field."

"For the 1969 model year the Dodge Polara and Monaco have been redone completely. New exteriors, high styled interiors, and new options enhance and improve the position these two cars enjoy in this highly competitive segment of the automobile market.

The new Dodge Polara and Monaco feature aerodynamic styling themes accentuating the exterior form and driver oriented cockpit interior treatment.

The dash on both the Polara and Monaco is completely driver oriented with all controls mounted on a panel directly in front of the driver and protected from impact by extended dash padding. The ignition key has been moved to the lower left of the dash to remove it from the area of impact by an unrestrained center front seat passenger.

The exterior styling concept of the basic car is completely aerodynamic with a family hint of the highly successful Dodge Charger.

The Polara will be available in six models for 1969. The Polara 500 in two, The Monaco will be available in five models with special Monaco Brougham and Monaco 500 packages offered for the new model year.

Both model lineups will feature a two-door hardtop, four-door sedans, four-door hardtops, and two and three seat station wagons. The Polara and Polara 500 include convertibles, and Monaco, the new high luxury Brougham.

Dodge Coronet

A sleek and sporty fourth generation Dodge Coronet series is being introduced in Charlevoix, according to Ken Depew, K & A Dodge, Charlevoix.

Classified as an "intermediate size car", the 1969 Coronet will boast of being the largest of its class in the industry.

The biggest seller of Dodge's automobile line, Coronet will again be offered in the widest variety of body styles and power train options.

The five series will have a total of 17 choices in body style.

Safety foremost has brought now innovations to the automatic brake adjusting system; improved disc brakes; wide tread tires, as well as a new fiberglass belted tire that provides not only additional safety, but added tread life. Improvements in power steering pumps, a new design in Suro-Grip differentials, automatic speed control, changes in transmissions, all contribute to making the Coronet a tailor-made or buyers' choice vehicle.

The summary of the 1969 Dodge Coronet will be a family size car that is still not too big for urban traffic problems and versatile enough to fit any new car buyer's pocket book.

Dart 'swings'

Dodge's compact champion, the Dart, will introduce a new model concept, the Swinger, along with its traditional models and series for 1969, according to Ken Depew, K & A Dodge, Charlevoix.

The Dart, which will hit the million sales mark in 1969, has proved to be the most sales durable car of the luxury compact field Depew said.

The new "Swinger" model will be aimed directly at the youth market. The Swinger is a low-price, two-door hardtop, and will be available with a wide variety of power plants. The 340-cubic-inch engine of 1968 will be featured in the "Swinger 340". In addition to the 340 engine, Dodge's four-speed floor shift transmission, dual exhaust, heavy duty rallye suspension, and D70 wide tread tires will be featured.

A special bright red color will be another exclusive for the Dart Swinger 340. Establishing a unique identity, will be a performance hood, a "340" nameplate, and its own wide bumble bee stripe.

Engineering and safety innovations are again part of the Dart program. An optional tire choice will be the fiberglass belted tire. Two fiberglass belts encircle the tire carcass which increases tread life by as much as fifty percent and provides a reduced rolling resistance which in turn improves fuel consumption.

Chevrolet offers wide choice

DETROIT -- The widest choice of engines and transmissions in automotive history head a parade of exclusive Chevrolet features for 1969, according to Dick and Bill Fochtman of Charlevoix Oil Co.

"This unparalleled opportunity for the 1969 buyer to custom tailor his car's performance and economy typifies the variety and value with which Chevrolet expects to increase its industry leadership," the Fochtman said.

"Other exclusive Chevrolet features are computer-selected springs for improved ride, jet stream headlight washers for better illumination in bad weather, wider wheels to improve vehicle handling and a 'liquid tire chain' system to increase rear tire traction on icy streets."

They said 35 new Chevrolet models in seven distinctive car lines for 1969 go on sale nationally on Thursday, September 26th.

"The industry's top seller—the big Chevrolet—is all new in 1969 and has the largest base V-8 engine in its class," they said. "It is a 327 cubic inch V-8, increased from a base 307 engine in 1968."

"Two new 350 cubic inch V-8's are also introduced, one using regular fuel as does the base V-8. The big Chevrolet also offers a high torque, regular fuel 396 cubic inch engine, largest regular fuel engine in its field."

Other exclusive features listed for the new big Chevrolet are full door glass styling with improved Astro Ventilation on all models, variable-ratio power steering for more responsive maneuverability, an electrically-heated rear window defroster and a one-of-a-kind roofline for the Caprice Coupe and Impala Custom Coupe.

Chevrolet introduces in 1969 a new Turbo Hydra-Matic three-speed automatic transmission specially designed for six cylinder engines* and V-8 engines up through 350 cubic inches. Teamed with the regular Turbo Hydra-Matic offered on larger displacement V-8's, this gives virtual across-the-board availability of this highly advanced transmission, Estes said.

Chevrolet also introduces a new heavy duty, three-speed fully synchronized manual transmission. Others in the wide transmission selection are the standard three-speed, optional four-speed, Powerglide two-speed automatic and Chevrolet's pace setting Torque-Drive "clutchless" transmission for four and six cylinder equipped Chevy Novas and the six cylinder Camaro.

Safety and security advances on the 1969 Chevrolets range from an improved energy-absorbing steering column, contoured windshield headers and front seat head restraints to an anti-theft ignition, steering and transmission lock mounted on the steering column.

There is also an all-new outside and inside look for Chevrolet's sporty Camaro in 1969, plus exterior and interior styling improvements in Chevelle, Nova and Corvette and continued Corvair individuality.

Other quality improvements include stronger V-8 engine construction for greater durability, smoother, quieter engine drivelines to help reduce noise and vibration, a new air cleaner snorkel design that makes six cylinder engines quieter and new accessory drive systems of V-8 engines which give improved durability and quieter operation. Frame and sound insulation improvements give better ride.

An exclusive headlight washing system is among the newest of Chevrolet's more than 400 options and accessories for 1969.

Caprice. Match this, you other 69's!

There is no joy in the land of our competitors today. But let us ask you this.

Should we have made Caprice shorter instead of the longest Chevrolet ever built? Or adorned it with flashy nicknacks to make it look less expensive? Just because competition doesn't, should we not have offered you washers to clean your headlights, new variable-ratio power steering, liquid tire chain you can apply to your rear wheels at the touch of a button?

Should we have given you less power, instead of the largest standard V8 in its field?

Some people think so.

Our competitors.

Olds restyles, safety features get emphasis

LANSING--Oldsmobile, for 1969, is introducing completely restyled 88's and 98's, a longer and sleeker Toronado with a major change in rear end appearance, and power train improvements designed for greater economy and performance in F-85 models.

"These styling and engineering advancements, as attractive as they are, compete for the customer's attention this year with a wide range of new safety-related product improvements," according to Don and Howard Parsel of Parsel's Garage, Charlevoix.

They said the new safety features include side impact bars inside the doors of 88's and 98's, a more uniform rate of energy absorption in all Oldsmobile steering columns, head restraints as standard equipment, larger rear view mirrors, and a sloping interior header bar from roof to windshield to reduce the likelihood of head injury in case of accident.

"Styling changes in every 1969 Oldsmobile enhance their traditional appearance of top quality and emphatically designate series identification. Interior appointments are designed to stress luxury and elegance to a previously unmatched degree.

"From a marketing standpoint," the Parsels said, "Oldsmobile has further simplified its medium price class lineup. All cars in the '88' family are Delta 88's. These cars with wheelbases increased to 124 inches are richly designed, longer looking and have more trunk room. They include the Delta 88, the Delta 88 Custom, and a newly-created top-of-the-line hardtop coupe, the Delta 88 Royale.

"This elegant new 88 has a distinctive backlight, chromed front fender side louvers, identifying hood ornamentation, a vinyl top as standard equipment, and several other distinguishing features including its own exclusive exterior paint striping," they explained.

The new 1969 Oldsmobile 98's also have been completely restyled. Wheelbases have been increased to 127 inches. They are longer looking cars with longer hood, longer rear deck, and greater luggage capacity. The new 98 hardtop coupe, particularly exemplifies these qualities. The increasingly popular 98 Luxury Sedan has been expanded to two models for 1969. Previously available only in a 4-door pillar version, Oldsmobile in '69 is offering a companion car, identified as the 98 Luxury Hardtop Sedan.

An optional feature in this automobile is a divided front bench seat with independent controls for driver and passenger positioning, representing a significant comfort improvement for front seat passengers.

The 1969 Toronado, lengthened 3 1/2 inches, displays a dramatically redesigned rear end. It is extremely clean-lined and involves a new deck and rear quarters.

The Toronado interior is richer and the Toronado ride has been further improved to better absorb road irregularities without any sacrifice in handling. Other product improvements include a more conveniently located ash tray for the driver, and a rotary latch on the glove box door.

Optional on this car is the electrically heated rear window defogging system which Oldsmobile introduced last spring.

The new Oldsmobile F-85's, including the Cutlass, Cutlass Supreme, 4-4-2 and Vista Cruiser models, have undergone just the right degree of change--front, rear and interior--to achieve a sportier look combined with the high quality detail for which the young family of today is shopping.

Oldsmobile's high-performing 4-4-2 becomes even more distinctive in 1969, aided in part by a special rally hood paint scheme replacing the previous side rally stripe.

Among major engineering advancements by Oldsmobile in 1969 is the expansion, on many F-85 models, of the power train philosophy introduced on full-size Oldsmobiles in 1968. This has been accomplished by combining an all-new 3-speed automatic transmission with a lower 2.56-to-1 axle ratio, resulting in performance and fuel economy gains.

This new Turbo Hydra-Matic 350 transmission, functionally the same as the Turbo Hydra-Matic 400 available in full-size Oldsmobiles, is smaller and lighter to meet the torque requirements of the 350 cu. in. engine.

Front vent windows are eliminated on all 88's, 98's and F-85 hardtop coupes and convertibles. An upper ventilation system like that first introduced on the Toronado in 1966, has air outlets in the ends of the instrument panel. It provides quiet draft-free ventilation.

In the area of safety-related product improvements, Oldsmobile 88's and 98's are equipped with side impact bars along the inside of car doors to reduce the hazard of side impacts.

Another new safety improvement for 1969 is the redesigned energy-absorbing feature built into the steering column. Instead of the "Japanese-lantern" type of collapse used in 1968, the new device uses ball bearings between tubes. In an accident situation, one tube is forced farther inside the other to provide a more uniform rate of energy absorption.

"The ignition lock on all Oldsmobiles is located in the steering column just below the steering wheel," Metzel said. "It is more accessible, especially for a belted driver. Its purpose is to act as a car theft deterrent when the driver takes the key with him," he explained. The new device locks the ignition, steering wheel and transmission shift mechanism.

Bank offers FHA loans

Modern home financing through FHA mortgages is now available to all Charlevoix families, the Charlevoix County State Bank announced this week.

Bank Vice President Fred Payne announced that the bank is the first in the area to offer the long-term, low-down payment government insured mortgages which have been available in other areas of the nation for a generation.

"This, Payne said, means that responsible local families will be able to buy new or used homes for as little as four percent down. Previously local lending institutions required a minimum of a 25% downpayment.

For instance, Payne explained that the minimum down payment on a $20,000 home under FHA would be $800, compared to $2,000 with conventional financing.

"Banks, Payne said, have been reluctant to get into FHA financing due to the paperwork involved and heavy drain it can create on the amount of mortgage money available.

The County Bank, he explained, decided it had to make the move in the interest of enabling young couples to stay in the Charlevoix area and so that young couples could move into the area from downstate.

Many young people have left Charlevoix with skills badly needed by industry because they could purchase homes downstate under FHA but had to save for years before they could afford the downpayment for a home here.

Local industry, he said, is having problems recruiting skilled workmen who want to move north but would not due to the home financing problem.

The bank was able to make the move by adding personnel to handle the increased paperwork and through an arrangement with a downstate brokerage firm which will buy the locally-issued FHA mortgages if necessary.

The amount of mortgage money available for FHA loans, Payne explained, is determined by the amount of savings deposited in the bank.

To increase its savings in preparation for FHA the bank recently upped its interest rate on passbook accounts to four percent, the highest in the area. This move, Payne said, is attracting savings that area people have been depositing in downstate banks which were paying higher interest rates.

FHA loans are available on all new and sound used homes in the city or townships. Rural homes must have good septic and well systems to pass the FHA inspection.

Downpayments under FHA range from four to ten percent, instead of the 25 to 40 percent required under conventional financing.

The current interest rate on FHA mortgages is 7 1/2%. This rate is set by the federal government and varies depending on national economic conditions.

Closing costs, which range from $350 to $500, are included in the mortgage, Payne said.

Homecoming October 11

In addition to the football game against Alpena Catholic Central, Homecoming will feature a queen and court, parade and pep rally.

One of the following five seniors will be elected Homecoming Queen by the students: Lynne Weidman, Debbie Stenman, Gail Forberg, Ruth Peobles and Becky Hillier. The others will be the Queen's court.

Students in grades seven through twelve are making floats for the parade through the downtown area early in the evening October 11, Thursday evening, October 10, there will be a downtown snake dance, culminating in a bon fire and queen crowning at the high school.

Urge plan to avoid coho diseaster

Some Charlevoixians who have been to the Coho Country are beginning to have second thoughts about the desirability of having salmon in Lake Charlevoix.

"I don't know if we want anything to do with what we are seeing and hearing is happening down there," one local businessman said.

Coho fishermen have destroyed private and public property, wantonly littered beaches, openly fought with each other and have demonstrated little respect and common courtesy for other fishermen, according to reports from the Frankfort-Manistee area. In recent weeks they have gone so far as to openly defy law enforcement officers.

Charlevoix anglers coming back from the salmon fishing area emphasize three things:

- Charlevoix public officials should start making plans immediately to control crowds and boaters; police must be given full authority and responsibility to see that rowdiness, vandalism and litter do not become a problem here.

- The problem may not be nearly as bad next year because the coho will be widely spread and this year they are concentrating around Frankfort and Manistee.

Almost in the same breath, they warn that Lake Charlevoix could become the chief target for salmon fishermen because it will offer the most protected fishing available.

The Conservation Dept. last spring planted 50,000 coho in Porter Creek (at Advance). The majority of these fish, along with strays, should make their spawning run next fall.

"I'm scared of it. I'm afraid of it," former Sheriff Glenn Rose admitted. Rose has been coho fishing at Frankfort and at Thompsonville in the 11's.

Rose urged the Sheriff and City Council to get down stiff rules on litter, use of the launching ramp at Ferry Ave. beach and then get tough with the first violators. More policemen may be needed to do the job, he said, and recommended that auxiliary police be used, if necessary.

Rose said the Sheriff's Dept. will need at least two boats on Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan to stop littering and maintain order among boaters.

If the first few rowdies and litterers are jailed and heavily fined, Charlevoix will rapidly gain a reputation which will attract more desirable fishermen, Rose said.

Rose also supported recommenda-

Begrow answers Inn's lawsuit

Charges by owners of the Weathervane Inn that architect Jack Begrow's proposed condominium on the Pine River channel violate city zoning have resulted in similar charges being filed against the inn.

Begrow's attorney Don Berlage last week filed his answer in Circuit Court to the lawsuit initiated by the inn. The inn's suit attempts to block Begrow from constructing the six-unit apartment building on the grounds that it does not comply with zoning laws.

Berlage claims the inn's owners are not a proper party to initiate these charges against Begrow because the inn is equally, or more so, in violation of the zoning ordinance.

His answer argues that, in effect, a person cannot charge another of an illegal act if they are guilty of the same thing.

Berlage, further, denies Begrow's building would violate zoning laws.

He also suggests that the inn's owners deliberately delayed starting its lawsuit until construction of the apartments was to begin. For this reason it is hinted Begrow may have been done an injustice for which he can seek damages.

Berlage points out the inn's owners knew about Begrow's plans in April but did not start the lawsuit until August 30. Construction was reportedly to begin this month.

It is also Berlage's contention that the inn's owners should have appealed the building permit the city issued to Begrow through the city zoning appeals board before it started a court suit.

The inn owners' claim that driving

U.S.
MAIL

ACCOMPANIED BY A PRAYER

Many a letter starts on its journey through the mails bearing a message that will not be found within the envelope. It accompanies the letter, nevertheless. Such messages are prayers offered by the sender when the letter is sealed or when it is dropped into the mail box. It is often a prayer by a parent for a son in the armed forces, a daughter in a hospital, or for those in anxiety from many causes.

Prayer, with a firm belief in its power, can accomplish wonders. The occasion may be a mass disaster or a purely personal and intimate matter.

How can you make your prayers effective? By first learning how to pray and practicing a faith. The church that best suits you can be of tremendous help in this direction. Here, through active participation in the services you can learn to pray effectively. Prayer is dynamic.

Yamaha-world's largest manufacturer of two-cycle motorcycle engines-makes another breakthrough with proven 5-port power and exclusive "Autolube" oil injection system.

The Yamaha 350cc 2-cycle engine, the ultimate in dependability

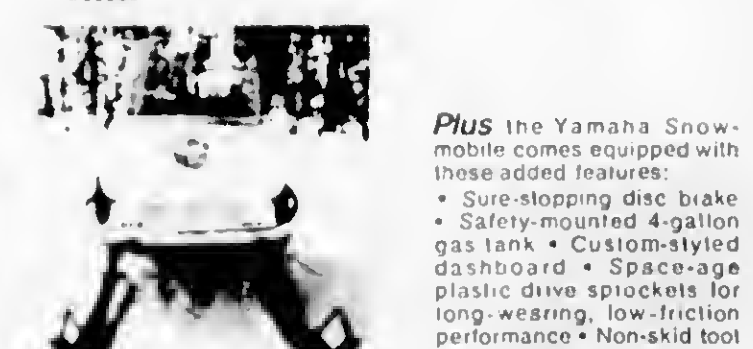

Every Yamaha Snowmobile is powered by the same basic 350cc engine that Yamaha used in their racing motorcycles to defeat machines of more than twice their size at the Daytona Motorcycle Classic. This engine utilizes Yamaha's revolutionary engineering breakthrough—the 5-port power system—for greater efficiency and combustion through two extra transfer points.

The Yamaha exclusive "Autolube" oil injection system.

Here is a pressure-lubrication system that does away with messy fuel pre-mixing. Oil goes in one tank, gas in another. Then, oil is metered automatically to the engine on demand, depending on speed and load. Lubrication is extremely thorough, exhaust smoke is markedly reduced, and carbon buildup and spark plug fouling are brought down to negligible levels.

An attack against an "enemy objective" is launched by tough Army National Guard infantry troops in a highly realistic weekend training exercise. Many Army Guard units will be ready to undergo more demanding Army activities during Annual Field Training, because this practical experience, in place of traditional drill nights, has materially stepped up unit readiness. Guard units get help from State and local communities in obtaining the use of land for training sites to provide troops the elbow room needed to practice platoon and company level tactics.

The city of Charlevoix gained more than $2,000 in state aid for street work, collecting $39,396 compared to $34,293 the previous year.

Each mailman delivers 1,500 letters every day 5,000 chances to make error

Hereafter, after me, I promise never...to get upset...with the Post Office again.
This seems to be a logical conclusion after visiting Charlevoix's Post Office and talking to Postmaster Dan Genet. Considering that over 5,000 pieces of mail goes through the office daily, the actual number of mistakes made appears insignificant.
What happens to your letter after you drop it into one of the town's 12-odd boxes?
The first step is the pick-up by carrier. Your letter is taken to the Post Office and dumped on a sorting table.
The letters are then sorted and put in the right alignment for the cancelling machine.
After cancelling, the letter are put in their proper boxes by a dispatch clerk. Each box is labeled with the name and zip code of district, a city or a portion of a city, depending on the volume of mail sent there.
Letters are then picked up by truck and taken to our sectional center in Saginaw, where it is broken down further and sent on its way. The bundle your letter is in will not be broken open until it reaches its destination.
What about the letter you received in the morning mail? Charlevoix's mail comes in through the Saginaw center. First class mail is in a locked pouch, second, third and parcel post are all in large bags. Postal workers begin putting the mail in the right distribution cases at 8 a.m. The case is divided into three city routes and three rural routes, except in the summer, when one is added for the Bolvedere.
Each route is then separated according to street and number. Then everything is arranged in order of delivery.
Mail is tied in bags and dropped off at the relay boxes. Each carrier has eight to ten relays and in an average day carries 1,500 pieces of mail.
Ninety-five percent of the mail is in the office by 8 a.m., and mail received before the carriers begin their routes at 9 a.m. goes out in that day's mail.
It is estimated that the U.S. will handle 85 billion pieces of mail in the fiscal year which started July 1. Genet, who has been postmaster four years, has a tip for you to help the postal employees get your letter through faster and easier.
Did you know the difference. That's why you're living here. I just wondered if you knew you were buying the wonders of Charlevoix for about a tenth of what much less would buy your family in the Detroit area-Shop.

GORDON DENNIS has hundreds of opportunities to make mistakes as he sorts mail in the Charlevoix Post Office under the new zip code system. More amazing than the few mistakes postmen make are the thousands of mistakes they don't make.

Putting-you-firsts:
(A quick tour of some of the thoughtful new features the 1969 Chevrolet offer that other cars in Chevrolet's field don't.)
Headlight washers
You push the windshield washer knob and hold it, and your headlights come clean.
Fluid is diverted to two jet nozzles of each light lens. (Outer lights only on duals.)
The spray removes up to 80% of accumulated dirt.
The feature is standard on 1969 Corvettes. It comes with the hidden headlights available on Camaro, Caprice and Kingswood Estate Wagons. It is available on all other models except Corvair.
Heated glass
In a moment your rear window will self-defrost.
Because we've built onto it a network of tiny ceramic strips capable of heating the entire surface.
Fog and frost disappear quickly and quietly. You just flick a switch.
The heated rear window is available on the 1969 Caprice Coupe and Impala Custom Coupe.
Pushbutton tire chains
You press a button on the instrument panel and the rear tires get a set of "liquid tire chains."
You spin your wheels once, wait a moment, and you're off with traction you wouldn't believe possible on slick ice, or packed snow.
Available on all 1969 big Chevrolets.
Steering wheel lock
When you own a car as desirable as the 1969 Chevrolet, you don't take chances.
When you leave it, you lock it. Not just the doors.
You lock the ignition, steering wheel and transmission lever, too.
Our new lock on the steering column takes care of all that.
Standard on all 1969 Chevrolets, Chevelle, Chevy Nova, Camaro and Corvair.
Sorry, car thieves.
Power steering plus
The 1969 Caprice, Impala and Camaro are available with a new type of power steering.
Variable-ratio power steering. What it does is give you faster steering with fewer turns of the wheel.
Variable-ratio power steering is particularly helpful in short, full turns.
And parking becomes unbelievably easy. You'll see.
Walk-in wagons
The tailgate swings open like a door on most of our 1969 station wagons.
Which in itself is no big deal. But wait, there's more.
We've built a concealed step into the rear bumper.
You simply step up, over, and in.
(The way we build our wagons, you can do it without bumping your head, and without acrobatics.)
Walk into a wagon soon at your Chevrolet dealer's.

U. P. color tour lures Charlevoix travelers

This should be the weekend for an Upper Peninsula color tour. Last weekend was a bit of a washout, but it was worth the trip, anyway.

Larry and Jeannine Wallace and Alice and I route-tested a special "U. P. Color Tour for Charlevoixians." We left about noon Saturday and returned about the same time Sunday. Even if the color was a week away from its peak, it was a grand way to play tourist.

Our destination Saturday was Tahquamenon Falls.

We deliberately left hungry so we could lunch at Nell Downings in Mackinac City. The hamburger stand which has grown into one of our favorite places in the north served up a wonderful sandwich and surprise. Alice found herself carrying the outside door knob to the restroom. The waitress took her gift in stride.

We had to scout the St. Ignace football field before we could turn up I-75 and then west and north up 123.

About 40 scenic miles later Lake Superior was all of a sudden right there, in front of Wallace's Pontiac. It was the first time Jeannine and Alice had seen the big, cold, brooding giant of a lake.

Alice had to sneak her stockings off under her slacks and walk barefooted in Superior. Jeannine was content to frolic in her flip-flops. Wallace got a little sunburn about leaving when we got to Harland. A few miles further up Whitefish Bay's shore, the Tahquamenon Falls are as magnificent today as I remember them from 1950-20 years ago. And autumn has to be the perfect time to visit them. Few people were around. The park was the cleaner than I have ever seen any public place.

Large rustic signs asked visitors to "Take nothing but pictures. Leave nothing but footprints." Visitors, apparently, get the message. (A few signs in the Charlevoix area might be worth trying.)

We reached a sturdy rowboat for one buck and rowed to the island that divides the lower falls. Alice literally had to be carried across the falls—barefooted, of course. (How do people pick up those kind of little quirks?)

The upper falls—as I remember them when my dad and I walked to it years ago—makes a larger and louder splash, but doesn't have the grandeur of the lower falls.

With the falls behind us we headed for Newberry. Jeannine and I were looking for a good motel and a good lunch. Newberry, but really couldn't remember anything about the place except that it had a fair-sized hotel.

My bluff paid off, though. There were at least a half-dozen modern motels which couldn't have been there when I last visit. They were all open and busy when I went for a walk about 11 p.m. Several were full of autumn Tahquamenon visitors.

But the grand prize was the snowboard at the Falls Hotel. For three bucks each—less than one-way across the state—I got a snowboard, a ravelio, meatballs, potato sausage, beef, bun, chicken, barbecue, hot sauce, fruit, candy, desert and etc., etc., etc. The meal, alone, seemed worth the trip.

Our only complaint was the hotel's failure to serve hard beer. When we went to the city did not allow liquor, he instantly demanded to know why anyone would want to drink where they couldn't serve booze.

Sunday morning we turned down 127 and then onto US-2 for the shoreline. Wallace, for the bridge, forstall, all the way. Wallace and I managed to keep the girls out of about half the trip. Wallace, however, it was our weekend to play tourist, so we allowed about a dozen stops before we paid our fare across the bridge.

The final leg of the journey, down to Le Verrier and then across to Cross Village and along the Lake Michigan shore to Harbor Springs, the most scenic hour we spent. The most discouraging moment of the entire trip was the awful realization of the ugliness of the north—end approach to Charlevoix.

If you've been talking about flying home for a weekend, this is the weekend to do it. —Shen.

Chamber Chat

BY WALLY LODER
CHAMBER MANAGER

Having to do with our 1968 Venetian Festival, the total expenses were $1,068.73. Total receipts (sale of tickets to label show, also including drawing, one contribution, fees charged for booth space, and percentage of gross from the top top corn, etc., wagon vendors) totaled $1,205, which was supposed to be a fund raiser. Therefore, the actual cost of the Chamber was $762.73.

The Board of Directors regular meeting for September, having been postponed, was held the evening of September 24 at the Chamber office. Those present were Charles Carey, L. Miles, Don Kowbel, Ralph Hess, Tom Acton, Dave Juffer, Don Smith, and John Schroeder. At roll call, all present were unanimously late, and arrived some minutes later. Sec-Mgr. present who took the minutes.

Secretary's report indicated August sales balance $3,358.49, receipts for August only $396.43, disbursements for August $2,951.61. Loder pointed out the need for ways and means to provide money for $150 obligation in connection with Venetian Festival, $2,030.20 for publishing the new brochures, which includes freight, and tax, and the $3,000

We are endeavoring to increase the number of our total right membership, so it pointed out the need for ways and means to provide money, especially quite a number of people who have been asked to join the Chamber and are a lot of normal donors and quite a number of worthwhile suggestions. To work them out successfully, it takes numbers of persons, and last, but not least, reasonable willingness. I can honestly say that after this past good season, total complaints here at the office were at an extremely minimum—only $10,000. Complaints, etc., were in an abundance, it behooves us all to keep this way. Don't you agree?

Along this line, this unusual one came into the office a few days ago under the letterhead of The State Journal, Lansing, Michigan, which is a daily and Sunday newspaper. I am very happy to quote this humble little bit. This letter was addressed to the Chamber of Commerce at Charlevoix and goes on—

"Gentlemen: Perhaps you should know something about the people who live in your town.

"One month ago today I stopped here, with my family and trailer, looking for a place to stay. A small gentleman, slightly bald with glasses, dropped everything to tell me how to get to the Open Gate Room. There the operators did their best to help us get organized.

"The following day in two harbors stores, a bakery, grocery store, shoe shop and a drug store, the clerks were more than patient with us. At the bank my daughter cashed in her $16 worth of pennies, nickels and dimes. Your biggest merchant could not have been treated better.

"We stopped for ice, opposite Al Smith's service station, and when we tried to start up the engine was dead. All thought an expensive repair bill would end our modest trip. At not only found our problem—a loose battery connection—fixed it and then refused any payment.

"Last night I had my five-year-old daughter who wanted to go on vacation next year. She's got back to that place with a funny name but she's a nice people," she said.

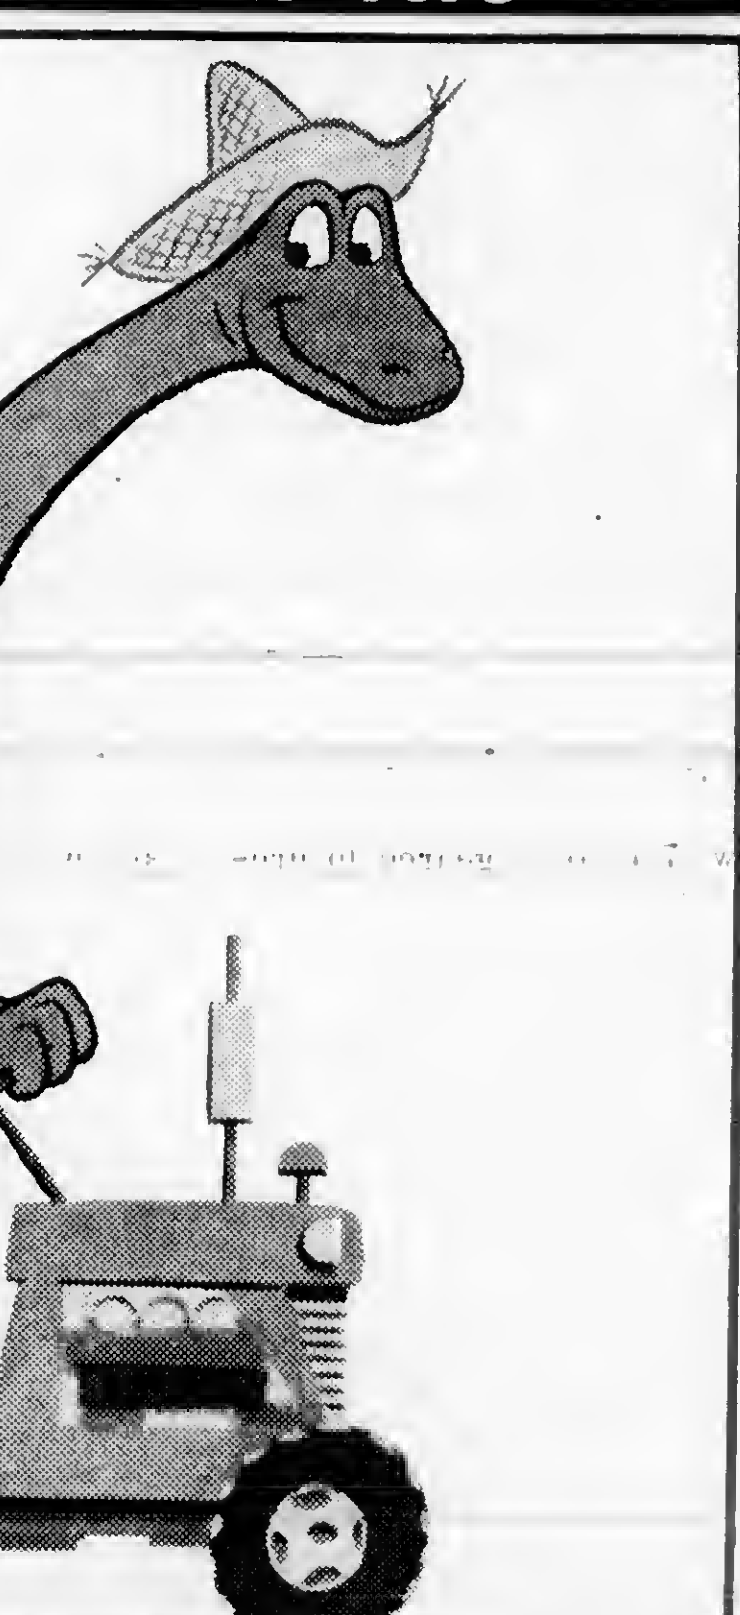

I hope you will agree that this is a kind gesture and personally I am proud to have received it.

Michigan's Upper Peninsula, nearly one-third of the total area of the State, is as big as Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts and Rhode Island combined—and larger than either Belgium or Switzerland.

Time coming to vote on Voc Ed

The cost is high because the programs are expensive to operate.

Another excuse, which is especially true in Charlevoix' case, is that school and parental counseling is not realistic.

Though changes are coming slowly, Charlevoix's counseling effort is geared to urging students to get a college education.

Each year many students are sent off to colleges with no realistic ambitions. And each year many of them drop out of college, get married and accept the first job that promises to pay some of the bills.

Our counseling effort should be advising a great many of those young people that they will find the most satisfaction in life by preparing in high school for a skilled trade.

Voters in Charlevoix and throughout the intermediate school district blew their noses to open these doors of equal opportunity when they rejected the special area vocational millage proposal last June. The parents who so abruptly rejected this bargain for their children will someday soon be given a chance to veto their earlier decision.

The state has authorized the area to vote on vocational education support at anytime. This gives educators more flexibility in calling another election.

The state has also agreed to provide state aid for vocational programs in individual schools, rather than only an area center, for non-local students. This is an advantage to the North because it means transportation problems can be reduced.

There is also a good chance more federal funds will soon be available for construction and operation of vocational facilities in the North.

The final responsibility for our children, however, is with local parents. Now is the time for them to be pondering the need for vocational education.

Backing our boys

NOW IS the time for all good Charlevoixians to come to the support of our Rayders!

Rayder boosters are not screaming wild when they tell sports fans their presence at games and support is desperately needed. Tonight's meeting at 8 p.m. in City Hall can have historic significance in Charlevoix's future sports program.

Either townsmen turn out to see what help and support the Charlevoix High School teams need or they sit it out, and in so doing are counted among those who were not there when their backing was asked for.

The team's first long-distance game in the new league proved last year's prophecy that fans would be reluctant to travel the more than one hundred miles to sonic contests. If only a hundred, or so, fans made the trip to Rogers City in perfect weather it's a sure bet fewer than half that many will tackle snow-clogged roads during basketball season.

Organization of a quarterback club can offset this. The club can get fans to the games in car pools during good weather and busses during bad weather. After-game stops can become as much fun as the game. Film sessions with the coaches could become one of our most popular community activities.

The handful of men trying to organize this support for the Rayders have heard so many people give club meetings, bowling or other personal excuses for not turning out that they almost gave up. Tonight is the time to begin showing Coach Don Carey and the Rayders that we are not ducking out on them.

Another addition

In less than a year since he arrived to hold services in the house at 101 Maple St., North Point, Rev. George C. Otto has seen his church prosper to the point where it can launch the building program.

This is certainly indication that Charlevoix's spiritual foundation is firmer than ever.

Earl Young on Medusa Regrets sniping at plant

by EARL A. YOUNG

These comments by Earl A. Young attempt to give some historical perspective to Charlevoix's concern with the operation of Medusa's South Point cement plant. As a worshiper of Charlevoix's beauty and charm for nearly 80 years, Mr. Young is uniquely qualified to comment on an issue of such historic significance.

Some people immediately began to call it the Taxpayers Growl and claim that The Bridge could have been built in a way that it would not have been so noisy.

As we put a few lines on the place map of the Charlevoix area in a few seasons ago a little golden haired girl, watching the bridge opening and closing and then listening to the cars starting to go across, she was a very young girl. Her father, "It's a singing bridge," was a viewpoint but the people in the place about any growl, rumble and roar that they have heard from the bridge. But he insisted on starting operation only two people have admitted that they were disturbed by the noise. I asked them if it was quiet enough to hear the Medusa Plant if they could not hear the roar of the traffic going across the bridge, night or day, more clearly than any noise from Medusa.

The whole Sells Bay Lake front area has been a most popular spot and it is very close to Medusa.

After sunset and the damson was a hundred year plan was bare, you noticed how the Medusa Plant with its thousand lights reflected on the evening calm of Lake Michigan. One would expect that there is a coordinated color scheme with a lovely huge Christmas tree? Medusa has paid taxes on unused land to the Township 50 years.

Medusa paid $300,000 taxes to the Township of Charlevoix last year. What a Christmas present Medusa has an annual payroll of over $1,000,000 for the economy of Charlevoix. What a Christmas present it is to the Township of Charlevoix. This area that does not envy our having the kind of a cement plant we have owned in the Medusa kind of people.

Charlevoix Township has been most fortunate in having a dedicated Supervisor, who always has his Township's welfare as his first concern. He has been so for everything strong about any loading docks extending out into Lake Michigan. Medusa immediately at a tremendous expense dug a deep water channel from the lake into the plant so there would be no nagging docks.

How many people have seen the Medusa ship Challenger backing out of their slip with most modern cement plant in the world of the engineering drawing boards, bringing it into actual physical existence with a planned deadline and a period of extreme unfavorable weather conditions could not help but contribute to a fact that there must have been bags that got into the construction with huge valves in the wrong places or arm sized electric cables in the wrong terminals. We don't know, but Medusa could have had some tremendous obstacles to overcome to get into production at all or to get into a smooth running production as is evident now. People with 100 year plans are not small people, not to be able to overcome necessary obstacles of their own first.

We should be most thankful that in the original formation and going out by the glacial area 10,000 years ago left the finest deposit of cement rock in the whole United States right here for our benefit.

Twenty-five or thirty years ago we had a wealthy client most persistent that he was going to buy an acre of the extreme end of the South Point. I advised him that I thought it could be absolutely impossible. But he insisted on paying our expense to Cleveland to sell one acre of Medusa to sell one acre of their land. We drove to Cleveland and the President and some of the officials very graciously gave us an appointment and took us into the board room and showed us blueprints as big as bedspreads and talked about their 100 year plan.

My remark to the president was a hundred year plan was not going to do either one of us much good and he said, "Mr. Young, I hope that you and I both live to see the kind of plant we plan for Charlevoix." One would expect that there is a coordinated color scheme with a lovely huge Christmas tree? Medusa has paid taxes on unused land to the Township 50 years.

60,000 barrels of cement going out from Charlevoix? It should get a thrill of pride knowing some of these facts.

A lot of the principal sniping has been coming from Boulder Park owners, how many of the snipers have put their properties up for sale?

Recently a $60,000 sale was made of a home in Boulder Park that the writer built over 40 years ago. There are other homes under construction and planned on lots recently sold at Boulder Park.

Over 40 years ago the person who has been married to me for over half a century and I were invited to Manitowish to visit the Medusa plant. Seeing what that plant was like, then knowing what Medusa must be considering for Charlevoix we have always carried on and shall continue to carry a torch for Medusa as an asset for Charlevoix and feel that much more can be accomplished by friendly cooperation and that eventually the 50-share property will be beautifully landscaped and no doubt with dustless trucks.

Down through the years we have always understood that Medusa has been very friendly to its neighbors. When the City of Charlevoix wanted a right-of-way for the expansion of the airport there was a Medusa plant. When you get the land over as long as they were promised some other right-of-way when they would have been for. When discussion seemed to be quite strong about any loading docks extending out into Lake Michigan, Medusa immediately at a tremendous expense dug a deep water channel from the lake into the plant so there would be no nagging docks.

He can hang a lantern from his rear pocket.

Whenever anyone points out the obvious insanities common to women's fashions, some always say, "Yeah, but who do you think designs most female clothes — men?" She means Mrs. Mitter or Beau Brumm, darling, but whatever doubt might be cast upon gender still doesn't subtract from the satisfaction it gives a matron to blame her Shirley Temple dress and fullback shoes on some stupid man.

So if anyone has evidence that some females, even baronesses, are responsible for taking the size out of my slacks, I'd like to hear about it. The news won't increase my comfort but it will help me to understand. If women designers are choking men with fabric get revenge for what men designers do to women. I don't blame them. For instance, the man who invented stretch slacks that stretch beyond size 10 should be stretched to death and re help put.

Taxpayers are boss

(Lapeer County Press)

Coming on top of the Genesee park baloney, the Sincerest blow-up prompts us to write a short primer for public officials. There are 4 main points:

1. Public officials, elected or appointed, work for the taxpayers. The taxpayers are boss and the officials are employees. It is not the other way around. President Johnson is employed by the taxpayers and so is the County Board of Social Services (Welfare Board).

2. Public officials spend taxpayer's money. They should not spend it without telling the taxpayers how much, where, why and what for.

3. When public officials hire help, they are hiring them for the taxpayers and paying them with taxpayers' money. The officials should be prepared to explain why they hired a person—and why they fired him.

4. When a newspaper reporter asks a public official a question concerning the public, the newsman isn't seeking information to tell his wife over the dinner table. He is asking questions for X number of readers—taxpayers, the boss. When the public official lies to the newspaper, he is lying to his boss, who is without public information from the newspaper, the official is refusing to tell his boss how the boss's business is being conducted. The same truth holds for radio and TV reporters.

We're one-fifth Rambler, and all the rest is new.

There was a time when all we made were Ramblers. And those Ramblers made our name. With the predictable result that we got a reputation for building dependable, little cars that were high on economy and low on sex appeal.

We still make the Rambler. It's a smarter buy than it ever was. But it's no Javelin.

When American Motors can build a hot, sporty car that out-sports the other sports cars, that's news.

So far, more than 15,000 sporty-car drivers have decided that the Javelin is a better car for the money.

The Ambassador SST 4-door sedan is our luxury car. It comes with standard air-conditioning, standard V-8, standard automatic transmission, optional velour seats, a long, long wheelbase for an elegant limousine ride, and an astonishingly low price for the package.

We also make the Rebel.

The Rebel is the family car that dared to cross the treacherous Baja peninsula. Most of the specially equipped cars that start this trip never finish. The Rebel did.

But, if anything changes our image, it will be the AMX, our two-seater sports car. The AMX, specially equipped and modified, has set 106 American, national and international speed records.

At this point, it looks like our image will never survive.

plies for the apartments will underwrite its foundation is denied by Berlage.

On the zoning charge, Berlage's answer contends that the apartments will be 1 1/2 stories (about 19 feet) above street level, instead of the three stories claimed by the plaintiffs.

He also denied the charge that the apartments will not have a 25-foot rear yard setback, as required in the ordinance. He says the lot's owners have failed to take accepted steps to strengthen and maintain the property.

He also points out that the Corps of Engineers is driving piles in the channel at least as close to the lot as the apartments and the lot's owners have not started suit against the Corps.

Berlage asks that Circuit Court dismiss the lot's suit.

nance. The building, he says, will have a 50-foot rear yard, measured from the back of the building to the middle of the Pine River.

Berlage also contends that if buildings are to be measured from the rear of the structure to the channel, the lot does not have the required 25-foot yard.

The front yard of the apartment will be the same as that of the lot, Berlage points out, claiming that if one is in violation of the other, he also points out the Weatherly Terrace, in which the lot's owners have controlling interest, is in violation of zoning ordinance from side and rear lot setback requirements.

Both the Inn and Terrace were built after the city zoning ordinance became effective in 1942.

The street in front of the Inn and apartment building has never been officially dedicated as a public roadway and its "official" location has not been ascertained, making it impossible to determine where the front yard setback line begins, Berlage points out.

On the charge that pile-driving for the apartments will damage and weaken the lot's foundation and structure, Berlage

Great Lakes Fishery Station chief Myrl Keller, who is also a member of the coho committee, said Charlevoix should give serious consideration to advance preparations for controlling large crowds of anglers.

The same number of coho (50,000) were planted in Thompson Creek in the U.P. as were planted in Lake Charlevoix, Keller pointed out. Thousands of fishermen descended on Thompson Creek into this summer and early fall.

Keller made several suggestions:

•Adequate policemen should be on hand both on land and water to stop littering and that disposal facilities—including fish cleaning areas—be readily available.

$10,000, in additional state gas and weight taxes for maintenance of township streets.

Because the city spends about half its street budget for maintenance, the auditor appears to have estimated it would cost about $32,000 to maintain streets in the township. Rabach's and the county's figures show that is about $25,000 too high.

Furthermore, the city is already spending more than $10,000 a year for administration of the street department. Rabach suspects more streets could be added to the system without corresponding increase in administrative costs, resulting in greater administrative efficiency.

Rabach and Stroud also disagree with the auditor's conclusion that the merger would increase expenditure for the police department by $12,000, or more than $10,000.

•The Chamber establish an information booth at the launching ramp directing fishermen to motels, restaurants, etc., and giving them accurate advice on how fish are being caught.

•That policemen direct traffic at the launching ramp so it is kept orderly and clear. (Fishermen, he also pointed out, are generally willing to pay a reasonable charge for use of public launching facilities.)

one third of the $32,000 the city spent for police last year.

Stroud pointed out the township has no more than 800 people, and probably nearer to 600 compared to the more than 3,000 in the city. He doubts that additional police would be needed to handle the small area and population of the township.

Rabach pointed out that if the township levied the eight mills city property owners pay it would have an additional $100,000 a year for capital improvements, such as water, sewer, paved streets.

If, however, it merged with the city and the majority of the funds raised from the eight mills went into street maintenance and the police budget there would be only $38,332 left for capital improvements.

The city, Rabach said, has agreed to take another look at the auditor's estimates of anticipated revenues and costs.

•That the Chamber make it known statewide that anyone calling will be given accurate information on fishing and lodging conditions. This, Keller explained, will prevent fishermen coming up when the fish are not in or all available facilities are full. In the long run, Keller said, this kind of policy will develop more business for Charlevoix.

•That police provide a courtesy boat safety check at the launching ramp.

Sawtelle files lawsuit on shipwreck furniture

A routine court case to collect an alleged $2,097 bad debt has turned into a $150,000 lawsuit against several leading Charlevoix citizens.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Sawtelle filed papers in Circuit Court last Monday seeking $150,000 in damages from John Michael, Tom Acton, Josh Barnes, Bob Lieberman, Bill Carey, William Boyer and Robert Shaw as owners and officers or directors in Traverse Bay Corp.

The Sawtelles claim Traverse Bay Corp. •Failed and neglected to pay commissions and royalties it owes Sawtelle for using his designs in making shipwreck furniture.

•Attempted to compel and coerce the Sawtelles into making an unjustified payment through "fraud and perjury."

•Destroyed "valuable business relationships" and "valuable property rights" of Sawtelles by using his exclusive de-sigs for the shipwreck furniture.

•"Willfully and maliciously" had some of Sawtelle's shipwreck furniture taken from the Weatherly Inn.

Sawtelle also asks Circuit Court to name a receiver to preserve the assets of the Traverse Bay Corp., for the protection of plaintiffs and other creditors.

The request for a receiver to take control of the corporation and a complete audit of its records is based on Sawtelles' claim that Traverse Bay has a large deficit due to "unauthorized expenditures" which have "jeopardized the financial well being" of the firm.

Filing of the suit stems from a suit Traverse Bay filed in 1967 against Sawtelle. The corporation then claimed Sawtelle owed it $2,097.

The court authorized Traverse Bay to take possession of several pieces of Sawtelle's furniture, including a large

Chamber sets color cruise

The Chamber of Commerce's Lake Charlevoix autumn color cruise is becoming an annual event.

The second annual color cruise aboard the Beaver Islander will be held Sunday, October 20, according to Chamber manager Wally Loder.

The ship will cruise to Boyne City and back, and, probably, make a short trip into Lake Michigan for a view of the sand dunes, Loder said. The trip will last about two hours.

The cruise, Loder said, is not limited to Chamber members. Only 20 tickets can be sold due to the boat's capacity. Tickets may be obtained in person or by mail from the Chamber office.

The $3 per-person ticket includes beverages and snacks on the boat.

The Beaver Island Boat Co., Loder said, is not charging the Chamber for the boat.

Tom LaBlance with Colwell

Tom LaBlance has joined the sales force of the Colwell real estate office in Charlevoix, Irving Drost, office manager, announced this week.

LaBlance, Drost said, has received his license from the state to sell real estate. LaBlance will be in charge of the office in the LaBlance Insurance Co. building on the foot of Clinton St. during the winter months, while Mr. and Mrs. Drost are in Florida.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. George LaBlance, Tom, 31, was born here and attended Charlevoix schools. He is a partner in his father's insurance business. The insurance and real estate offices are in the same building.

Supervisors

The Charlevoix County Board of Supervisors will start the 1969 county operating budget next week.

A public hearing on the budget is scheduled at 1:30 p.m. Thursday, October 17, in the County Building.

The tentative budget, adopted in April, is $615,848. This is expected to be cut considerably before a final budget is presented Thursday. This year's budget is $412,942.

Club set for homecoming

With a near-win over the state's second-ranked team under their belts and the support of a new adult sports booster organization behind them, it is homecoming for Charlevoix football team this Friday.

Two days of activity have been organized around homecoming, including selection of a queen, a snake dance, parade and, of course, the game on Kipke Field against Alpena Catholic Central.

Homecoming activities get underway tomorrow (Thursday) at 7 p.m. with a snake dance from the grade school to high school.

The newly organized Charlevoix Sports Boosters Club will make its first public appearance at the homecoming pep assembly. Charter club membership cards will be sold at the game and three of the club's members will be judges in the float contest.

The club last week elected officers and adopted by-laws. It held its first game function to get a crowd of 1000 boosters to the St. Ignace game, from which the Boosters came away with a 13-12 defeat against a team no one else had even scored on.

Under the guidance of the Booster Club, fans met at Downings restaurant in Mackinaw City prior to the game.

Officers of the club are Tom LaBlance, president; Bill Suprenant (radio announcer), vice president; Larry LaGrow, treasurer; Billy Smith, secretary; Hal Hill, Bob Lieberman, Ralph Dean, Bill Carey, Mrs. Mel Plumm and Jim Alger, directors.

Persons who do not get their club membership cards at Friday's homecoming game can pick them up at LaBlance Insurance, Lieberman's Department Store and Celler's barbershop.

Following the snake dance tomorrow evening—in which everyone is invited to participate—a bonfire and pep rally will be staged on Kipke Field.

Georgia Lusk, CHS Pep Club president, will address students and adults in the bleachers and Pete Burns will announce which of the five seniors nominated was elected queen. Students Monday elected the queen, but results will not be announced until Thursday. Candidates are Lynne Weldman, Becky Miller, Gail Forbrigg, Ruth Peebles and Debbie Stegman.

The queen will execute the traditional dabbling of a paper grid squad co-captains.

Friday evening's activities begin at the grade school at 7 p.m. with the parade. At least six class floats, and perhaps others, will be entered. The band will lead the parade, followed by the queen's float.

Enroute to the high school the floats will be judged by Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Chew, Condit Drury, Peter Spitalis, Tom LaBlance, Dick Donaldson and Arnold Loper; the latter three from the Boosters Club.

At halftime the queen will be introduced by last year's homecoming queen, Gert Oliver and the float winners will be announced.

TOM LABLANCE, right, was elected the first president of the Charlevoix Sports Boosters at last week's organizational meeting of the new group. About 20 persons attended the meeting in City Hall. They elected officers, adopted by-laws and made plans for club activities.

Teacher militancy brings improvements for students

Vince Chew used to be frustrated because he felt the public had a skewed view of teachers as "timid little old ladies in sneakers."

As long as that image prevailed, Chew realized, taxpayers were not going to treat teachers as respected professionals rating competitive wages and a voice in shaping the quality of education.

So as president of the Charlevoix Teachers' Association this year and an active leader in the association since he came to Charlevoix three years ago, Chew was part of the team that effectively changed the public's image.

Though he recognizes that today's image of teachers as militant, striking unionists may not be as palatable to the public as that of the timid lady teacher, he accepts it as unavoidable.

Lake the school board and public, Chew welcomes the relaxing of tensions that this year's two-year contract has brought to board-teacher relationships.

But unlike some board members and most taxpayers, he is convinced the militancy teachers demonstrated to get the contract paved the way for exciting improvements in education.

However, teachers had virtually no influence on what was being taught or how it was taught as long as they were treated as docile public servants without power to negotiate for these changes, he points out.

Chew also says use of the word "strike" was unfair and inaccurate when Charlevoix teachers did not report to work for a week until their contract was signed. No matter when they strike work, he explains, they will stay on the job 183 days. So

The majority of the Michigan and National Education Association's budgets go toward improvements in teaching techniques and classroom conditions. Chew explains. Professional journals published by these organizations, of which the Charlevoix Education Association is an affiliate, deal almost exclusively with subjects other than teacher welfare.

Chew contends the public view that the MEA is a union is misleading. The NEA, he explains, does not negotiate for teachers anymore than the Bar Association or medical Association bargains for doctors.

The MEA does advise teachers, provide a lobby in Lansing and legal counsel and training for local negotiators. However, the Michigan Association of School Boards provides the same assistance for Charlevoix school board members. Membership fees for local school board members in the MASA is paid from tax monies, he adds.

Chew also says use of the word "strike" was unfair and inaccurate when Charlevoix teachers did not report to work for a week until their contract was signed. No matter when they strike work, he explains, they will stay on the job 183 days. So

He had made statements available to the Directors and the City Hall showing expenses in detail for 1968 Venetian Festival totaled $1,968.75, total cash received from this event was $1,205, a difference of $763.73, costing your chamber. The Water-front Fair gross receipts (entry fees) totaled $1,265 and the total expense was $421.34, a profit of $843.66.

Saltonstall home is showplace

by PAT BEGROW
The house of Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Saltonstall at 429 Michigan Avenue has long been a Charlevoix showplace.

In the summer out-of-town cars cruise slowly down Michigan Avenue, stop, and stare unabashedly at the imposing residence.

Because the house and grounds are scrupulously maintained strangers might suppose that the people who live in the house are formal and formidable.

Nothing could be farther from the truth and if the strangers once walked through the front door they would realize at once that the Saltonstalls planned and furnished their house for frequent company and fun.

The spacious front hall allows plenty of room for removing wraps and boots, or for boisterous welcomes or prolonged farewells. From this pivotal entry hall guests may enter either of two large rooms.

The living room is carpeted and painted in warm shades of gold. There are long couches and comfortable chairs which Mrs. Saltonstall has arranged for easy conversation and informal gatherings. She always keeps a handsome card table and chairs set up for an impromptu game of bridge, a favorite with both of the Saltonstalls.

His good friends know that Dr. Saltonstall is an enthusiastic quartet and group singer and so it's natural for this family to have two grand pianos, one in the living room and the other in the family room.

From the front hall you can enter the family room and here the piano bar seems to get the most use.

It is often the gathering place for musical fun lovers. Amateur musicians play the piano, bongos, banjos or glockenspiels while guests crowd around to join in the singing of traditional songs like The Whiffenpoof or Dr. Saltonstall's favorite, "I Want to Go Back to Charlevoix."

This family room lends itself particularly well to such informal gatherings and is a popular room too for daughter Wendy's high school friends to gather. Mrs. Saltonstall has used gay prints and patterns in couches or chairs placed with a view toward Lake Michigan during the day or a cheerful fireside at night. The family eats their meals in this pleasant room.

Truly in this gracious home a person is a stranger but once.

THERE IS glass on two sides of the Saltonstall's family room. On a sunny winter afternoon the view of Lake Michigan is spectacular from this room.

Auto plates

License plates for commercial vehicles and all trailers went on sale October 1 at all branch offices of the Secretary of State.

Plates for passenger cars do not go on sale until November 15, two weeks later than in past years.

Revenue from commercial licensing is expected to go up around $4-million for the 1969 licensing year.

Unlike passenger plates, commercial license plates will not have the slogan "Great Lake State" imprinted on them. The space normally reserved for the slogan, has been set for affixing gross vehicle stickers on commercial vehicles.

Druggists observe Nat. Pharmacy week

Charlevoix druggists are joining others throughout the nation to celebrate National Pharmacy Week, October 6-12.

A drug has been defined as any substance which by its chemical nature influences the structure or function of the living organism. Such a definition includes medicine, but it also covers household and industrial chemicals, some beverages and tobacco. Charlevoix drug store owners John Schroeder and Frank Och point out. The public has come to expect to use drugs for self-medication. Some individuals have become so conditioned in the curative effects of drugs for their ailments, Och and Schroeder said. This attitude they add, appears to be a key part of the overuse and thus misuse of drugs. Still others attempt to draw a "chemical curtain" between themselves and life's pressures. Drugs are double-edged swords. They have great power for good and great potential for harm, especially if misused or abused. There is one drug that in large doses has been observed to affect the heart, produce shock and cause self-damage the liver. It is acetylsalicylic acid, as it is better known, plain aspirin.

We can only wonder how many disease symptoms are being masked by continued self-medication, or how many work-days are lost, or how much the nation's medical care cost is made larger, through misguided auto therapy, Schroeder and Och noted.

If you are taking medication prescribed by your physician Schroeder and Och recommended you ask your pharmacist for advice before you take any remedy for the so-called "over-the-counter" drugs. As an authority on the chemistry of drugs and the effects of drugs in combination, your pharmacist is well-qualified to counsel you.
